PALMIST HUNTED IN BURLINGAME CASE

It is no mere coincidence that the men who would like to sink the Navy are the very ones who favor raiding the Treasury for a $24,000,000 tribute to the Antisaloon League—he who is a loose thinker on one subject is always consistent.

Those who condemn the benefit for the families of four fellow-townsmen now doing a little stretch for refusing to squeal are so squeamish that they don't care for the milk of human kindness unless it's pasteurized.

We trust that the friendly visit of Al Smith will not cost Mr. Hoover the moral support of John Wanamaker Straton.

Moving to Florida seems to be the only one of the Bryan policies this Government has ever adopted.

It appears upon investigation that most of the Embassy liquor peddled around Washington is made in the bootlegger's bathtub.

Prof. Hewitt's research into the origin of the famous Iroquois League of the Five Nations reveals that old Deganawide owed his success largely to the fact that in 1570 bitter-enders had not yet been invented.

It appears that the people of the Continent do without breakfast in order that by selling all the bacon and eggs to England they can raise the price of a real dinner.

The House gets into a bad parliamentary jam on the $24,000,000 licker tribute bill, some of the more ardent drys feeling that if they weren't mighty careful it might do something sensible and patriotic without being able to help itself.

The visit of the Prince of Wales to some of the mining regions of England where ghastly poverty walks hand-in-hand with death discloses an economic condition that is a reproach to modern civilization. Here's a story that will make you feel like doubling your contribution to our own Community Chest.

The most significant side-light on the Stewart incident lies in the changed conditions in the industry under which anybody in the oil business could be found to defy a Rockefeller.

* * * *

What we can't understand about the thrilling case of the Queen of the London Night Clubs is how anybody in England could be convicted of selling liquor illegally. Did she do it standing on one foot, or something like that?

Mr. Coolidge, in the matter of the cruisers, comes out firmly in favor of his Armistice Day speech. Not a word in it about blueprints!

Senator Jim Reed is indeed an optimist if he thinks the United States Senate will ever consent to give the Interstate Commerce Commission jurisdiction over natural gas.

Capt. Fried will be on the bridge of the S. S. Board of Trade on its world cruise, in case any S O S calls should come in.

We trust that his going into the glass business will not get Representative Zihlman in bad with the Antisaloon League.

Well, Washington has known Capt. Burlingame a heap longer than it has his accusers, and, after all, it's a poor story that hasn't got two sides.

Tom Blanton says he will be "back here in two years." It's a long time for Washington to muddle along without any government, but we'll do our best.

FIRST REPORTS IN CHEST DRIVE SLATED TODAY

SPECIAL GIFTS GROUP HAS LISTED $538,617

Letter, to Be Sent to U. S. Employes, Cites Approval of President Coolidge.

The Community Chest "contest" is on.

Store is arrayed against store, street against street, office building against office building, section against section, and even family against family, all striving to be the first to report 100 per cent collections in the battle to put over the chest quota of $1,343,348.93.

Results of the first skirmish will be heard at the opening report meeting at the Willard at 12:30 o'clock today. There will be seven of these report meetings during the ten days of the campaign, and Chairman John Poole points out that it will be necessary to report a minimum of $114,000 each day if the remaining $800,000 of the quota is to be raised.

Special Unit Working Hard.

Members of the special gifts unit, under Chairman Robert V. Fleming, are working hard to bring the amount of their pledges up to the $725,000 mark tentatively set as their portion of the quota. This committee had reported $538,617 up to the last meeting and will hold another report meeting at the Willard tomorrow.

"The raising of the quota for the Community Chest was based upon the special gifts committee's ability to collect contributions of 54 per cent in gifts of $500 or more," President Frederic A. Delano, of the Community Chest, said yesterday. "So far this committee has not raised the required amount, but hopes to reach its quota before the campaign ends. Many of the gifts, however, are below the $500 mark, and this means that the members of the Metropolitan unit, which started campaigning yesterday, will have to work just that much harder, and the average of the smaller gifts will have to be increased.

57 Gifts in One Stressed.

"This is a big task and must be done in a big way, and I think that when the people of Washington realize that they are really making 57 gifts in one and thereby avoiding 56 other solicitations, they will increase the average of their gifts sufficiently to put the chest over."

In accordance with a plan approved by President Coolidge and the Cabinet, a letter, setting forth the appeal of the Community Chest, will be sent to 62,500 Government workers Thursday. The letter, which is signed by E. W. Libby, chairman of the governmental unit of the Chest, points out that the plan is indorsed by President Coolidge and President-elect Hoover, and that the 57 agencies listed include Catholic, Jewish, Protestant and nonsectarian agencies, caring for all creeds and urging the workers to figure out what they would give to the 57, and then include it in the one girt.

Gifts From Corporations.

Maj. Charles Demonet, chairman of the committee on national corporations, who is striving for gifts from corporations doing business in Washington,

DE RIVERA CRUSHES SPANISH REVOLUTION

AIR THREAT IS SUFFICIENT

Madrid, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Prompt measures by the government of Premier Primo de Rivera today nipped in the bud another military revolt against the dictatorship. Although the rebellion was planned to break out simultaneously throughout Spain and indeed did crop out in several of the larger cities of the south, its only foothold was gained in the provincial capital of Ciudad Real.

A regiment of field artillery there rolled out their cannon so as to command the roads and approaches of the walled city. The government, blaming only the officers, sent a squadron of airplanes over the city to drop proclamations promising that only the leaders would be punished if the soldiers surrendered before serious fighting occurred.

While awaiting the outcome of these peace overtures several squadrons of cavalry clattered out of the ancient city of Alcala, and a large force of the civil guards, heavily armed, proceeded south in motor buses. Gen. Orgaz led an infantry brigade from Madrid. The premier announced tonight that the general was expected to reach Ciudad Real at midnight and would take charge of the situation.

OFFICIALS SPLIT IN OPINIONS ON GAMING BENEFIT

COLLINS AND CAPPER FLAY TRIBUTE PAID

Although the midnight benefit performance staged at the Gayety Theater early yesterday morning for four gamblers who went to jail rather than "squeal" was condemned in two official quarters yesterday, Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, announced a policy of "watchful waiting" until he can look into the matter and ascertain the facts.

While officials were unleashing their wrath or unlimbering the "probe" machinery, members of the sporting fraternity were praising the benefit, or "testimonial" as they prefer to call it, as the most beautiful tribute ever paid to a group of Washington's demimonde.

Senator Arthur Capper, (Republican), Kansas, chairman of the Senate District committee, and Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins were the official denouncers.

Will Not Stretch Law.

Maj. Hesse explained his attitude with the statement that so far as he knew there had been no violation of the law and he had no intention of trying to stretch some law to the point where he could use it to punish any one connected with the benefit performance.

He stated that he understood some of the quartet of beneficiaries had children and that he knew of no person "with a bit of human kindness in him who wants to see little children hungry, cold and unclothed, whether they are the children of gamblers, bootleggers or the children of policemen or any one else."

Maj. Hesse added that he had heard that part of the fund raised at the show was to be used for the defense of the convicted men before the Court of Appeals. While not saying so directly, it was believed that the police investigation will be in an effort to confirm or repudiate this report, since the superintendent believes that "to contribute to a fund to aid in defeating the intent and purpose of the law is not good citizenship."

Shelby Agrees With Hesse.

Inspector William S. Shelby, assistant superintendent of police, in his statement declared that he agreed with Maj. Hesse that "good citizenship demanded that individuals and groups do not flout the law." He added that "it is an enlightening commentary on the attitude of a large body of people toward the sumptuary laws which have been enacted in recent years."

Collins was appearing before Chief Justice McCoy in the case of four other men who were being tried on gambling charges, Wilbur Dorsey, Jack Stein, Emmett Johnson and Bart Kennett. The trial was postponed due to the illness of defense counsel.

The prosecutor declared that the court, in all probability, had been informed through the morning papers of the huge performance given for the benefit of the families of Albert J. Lowry, Ralph A. Holland, Frank A. Stevens and John A. Mahoney. The quartet, Collins reminded Chief Justice McCoy, were convicted of gambling charges and sentenced to serve three years in the penitentiary after they had refused an offer of the court to go before the probation officer and tell all they knew of gambling and gamblers in the Capital.

Lack of Respect Cited.

"Such a demonstration is an evidence of the respect which gamblers and some other residents of Washington have for the law and indicates the regard they have for the law," Collins declared.

"It is my opinion that the performance was not staged whole heartedly as a benefit, but for the purpose of creating a false sentiment in the public mind—a sentiment of prejudice for the Government in the trial of gam-

SENATE BALLOT ON CRUISER BILL LIKELY MONDAY

Hoover's Telegram Should Not Deter Favorable Vote, Oddie Declares.

ADVERTISED PACIFIST FILIBUSTER IS NIPPED

By ALBERT W. FOX.

With national defense lines holding taut in the cruiser bill battle, the Senate yesterday agreed by unanimous consent to limit debate on Monday next and insure a vote on that day or the day following. Opposition to deciding the issue and the widely advertised pacifist filibuster collapsed under the pressure of public opinion.

The die is apparently cast for passage of the bill with the time clause in so that actual construction of steel ships must be begun during the fiscal years 1929, 1930 and 1931. Neither President Coolidge's previous statements relative to eliminating the time clause, nor President-elect Hoover's telegram of Monday, nor statements from the White House yesterday explaining the President's willingness to begin construction of some of the ships at once appeared to have any effect on the majority of the Senate which is firmly entrenched in support of the naval defense program, as contained in the cruiser bill.

View At White House.

It was made clear at the White House that President Coolidge sees no connection whatever between the cruiser building program and any future naval arms limitations conference which may be called.

Even if such a conference were called in the immediate future and even if the conference agreed on limitation there would still be need for the fifteen cruisers and one airplane carrier provided for in the bill, according to the view which President Coolidge is understood to entertain. And the President is represented as favoring the construction of even more cruisers irrespective of any disarmament conference. The reasons, according to the White House information, are that no limitation of naval armaments reached by any conference could possibly be so low as to affect the national defense requirements embodied in the cruiser bill.

In other words, with the fifteen cruisers, besides additional ships of the same size and type, America would be below the tonnage limit which any conference could be expected to agree upon.

Thus, the authoritative news from the White House placed President Coolidge in a position which is diametrically opposed to the position which Senator Borah has taken and which Senator Walsh, of Montana, took on Monday.

Both these senators have linked the cruiser program with the possibility of reaching accord with Great Britain on limiting naval armaments and have expressed the belief that the cruiser building program should be held up awaiting the possible outcome of such a possible conference.

Norris Resolution Offered.

Likewise, an amendment to the cruiser bill, introduced by Senator Norris yesterday is blown up, so far as the White House can blow it, by the statement relative to the President's position.

The Norris amendment calls for the automatic suspension of cruiser building in the event of an arms limitation conference between the United States and Great Britain.

President Coolidge, according to information at the White House, is prepared to immediately transmit to Congress a budget recommendation for beginning construction of the cruisers at once, in case the bill passes with the time clause stricken out. This was explained in connection with the reiterated statement that the President be-

HOOVER AND SMITH JOKE OVER CONTEST

RAIN PREVENTS FISHING

By CARLISLE BARGERON
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 29.—Former Gov. Smith may sometimes have his regrets and strong feelings over the recent campaign, but he did not display them today when he walked briskly through the portals of President-elect Hoover's temporary home, grasped his proffered hand and then sat down to smoke a cigar.

It was a case of old-fashioned, workaday democracy in its most formal clothes, calling upon dignified republicanism only to find it dressed for play. The governor was dressed in a formal cutaway coat, faced with silk-striped trousers and spats and jauntily swaying a cane. From the side of his mouth stuck a cigar and held out to Mr. Hoover's French butler was the brown derby, both symbols of the recent campaign. The President-elect was attired in the blue coat, white trousers and white shoes which is the play apparel of millionaires here.

"I congratulated him and I wished him luck, and I meant it," was all the governor would say later to newspaper men, and with that he and his friends, William F. Kenney and John J. Raskob, dashed away in their Rolls Royce.

No noisy motorcycle escort attended the Smith party. The baby blue motor buggy, instead, passed through the gates of the J. C. Penney estate most quickly and within two minutes of 11 o'clock, the hour of the appointment, Lawrence G. Richey, Mr. Hoover's representative, appeared at the door almost immediately the butler had opened it and Mr. Hoover came with outstretched hand. First there was the introduction of Kenney and Raskob and then the party moved into the sun parlor looking out over the blue waters of Biscayne Bay, whipped by a stiff wind and drizzling rain. Out came the cigars—then a joke—and another one—the governor harking back not to the bitterness of the campaign but the light spots of it, and Mr. Hoover responding in similar vein.

The governor recalled the funny presents that were given him. Out in Missouri somebody put a pig on the train, and Mr. Hoover said that reminded him of the time somebody gave him a chicken. And there were other funny things. It was a funny cam-

CUTTER TOWING SHIP DISABLED IN ATLANTIC

Mojave Radios of Intention to Take British Craft to Bermuda.

HOPE SEEN FOR TRAWLER

Aboard U. S. Coast Guard Cutter Tampa, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The Coast Guard cutter Mojave radioed today she was preparing to tow the disabled British steamship Silver Maple to Bermuda.

In a message intercepted by the Tampa, the Mojave said she had put a line aboard the vessel at 12:30 p. m. and would start for Bermuda shortly afterward. The Mojave, which, with the Tampa, went to the aid of the Silver Maple when the latter sent out an S O S call on Saturday, found the disabled ship in a position given as 34.30 north and 55.30 west, which would place the Silver Maple approximately 550 miles northeast of Bermuda.

Early today the Tampa reached the position given by the Silver Maple yesterday and found the vessel had drifted about 85 miles to the southeast.

The ship sent out its distress call when its steering gear broke, and at that time was 780 miles due east of Boston. The ship, at the mercy of a gale-swept sea, had drifted more than 250 miles to the southeast before the Mojave reached her.

Boston, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—With the Coast Guard Cutter Tampa near the Silver Maple, anxiety in maritime circles centered today on two other craft.

News from St. Johns, Newfoundland, that the coal-laden steamship George Cochrane was unreported after leaving Sydney, Nova Scotia, a week ago, was causing disquiet, but there was believed to be a possibility she might be held in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Hope for the safety of the missing trawler Seiner and her crew of 20 was stimulated today when a coast pilot reported to Coast Guard headquarters he had sighted a trawler resembling the Seiner Sunday morning about 12 miles south-southwest of Nantucket shoals.

Capt. Eugene Blake, commander of the Eastern Division, Coast Guard Service, immediately radioed the United States destroyers Shaw, Davis and Elkins, which are searching for the Seiner in that region. He requested the destroyer which is nearest to the position given by the pilot to search the vicinity. The Seiner, owned by the Portland Trawling Co., is more than a week overdue at her home port, Groton, Conn.

The pilot had just returned from New York after having conducted the tank steamer Cities Service Empire from Boston to Bayonne, N. J. He said the trawler apparently either was drifting or at anchor. He said she showed no distress signals, and at the time he had not heard the Seiner was missing.

MRS. BLALOCK'S CHARGES CAUSE COLLINS' ORDER

DRAMA MARKS MOST SCENES AT HEARING

ALLEGES REVENGE FOR STAPLES CASE

Affidavit by Accuser Says Precinct Chief Plotted to Get Her Property.

A nation-wide search is to be made for Mrs. Helen Blalock, missing palmist, whose bombshell affidavit against Police Captain Guy E. Burlingame was made public at the Capitol yesterday, it was learned last night.

In her affidavit, the woman said that she was afraid that Burlingame would kill her if she returned to Washington, and she quoted him as saying that they would both "go to hell together" if she ever talked.

Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins, who is investigating the case, said last night that he would ask that Department of Justice agents be put on Mrs. Blalock's trail. If she is found, and if it is her wish, a bodyguard probably will be furnished her.

Absence Blocks Progress.

Collins frankly admits that until Mrs. Blalock is found it will be virtually impossible to proceed with his investigation and present his evidence to the grand jury.

In the meantime, Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, intends to keep Capt. Burlingame in command of the Second Precinct. He sees no reason to suspend him, until Collins completes his investigation.

The lid blew off the case yesterday at a dramatic hearing before the Gibson subcommittee of the House District committee; rather, it was pried off by Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, an ancient adversary of Burlingame.

It was Blanton who read Mrs. Blalock's affidavit against Burlingame, and no more scorching indictment ever found its way into a House record. While it was being read, the spectators leaned forward and Burlingame squirmed.

The palmist charged that Burlingame took money from her; that he gave her a ring and that she returned it to him because she had heard "rumors that one was taken in a raid;" quoted him as saying that Blanton ought to be killed for dabbling in Washington affairs, and told of his threats to shoot her and himself if she told Blanton about his mistreatment of her.

Love Passages Bring Titters.

A hush hung over the crowded committee room while Blanton read the affidavit—that is, until he reached the romantic part. Then there were titters.

The letters Burlingame wrote to Mrs. Blalock, the affidavit said, contained such drooling endearments as "Heartsore," "Your Broken-hearted Daddy" and "Your Loving Daddy."

The big policeman, described by his chief as the best "rough-neck cop" on the force, held his head down, and crossed his feet. Somewhere he had obtained what appeared to be a woman's hairpin, and this he twisted into every conceivable shape.

Clashes were frequent at the hearing and the climax was a bitter one. "I ask for fair play," shouted Representative Bowman, of West Virginia, at

Mother-in-Law of 2 Peers Is Given Prison Sentence

London, Jan. 29 (United Press).—Mrs. Kate Merrick, known as the queen of London night clubs, has given up her plans to start a chicken farm and retire to quiet old age, because she is going back to prison for the third time.

This time Mrs. Merrick will spend fifteen months at hard labor because she was found guilty today on conspiracy to bribe a former detective sergeant and obtain immunity from police interference with her night clubs.

Mrs. Merrick, who is the mother-in-law of two peers and is known in every strata of London society, met her sentence calmly. She stepped from prison gates only last month after serving six months for illegal sale of liquors in her clubs. It was at that time that Mrs. Merrick announced her intention of buying a chicken farm and starting a quiet life. But instead she went back to the night clubs.

And now she is going back to prison under one of the most severe sentences the courts may impose, a sentence which has often broken women younger than the night club hostess.

With Mrs. Merrick will go the former detective, George Goddard, who was found guilty of accepting bribes and will serve eighteen months at hard labor as well as pay a fine of $10,000. Goddard's bank balance totals something like $90,000, the court was told.

Luigi Ribuffi, manager of Mrs. Merrick's clubs, also was sentenced to prison. He faces a term of fifteen months at hard labor. Ribuffi failed to show the coldness of Mrs. Merrick and Goddard when he heard his sentence. He sobbed violently as he was led from the courtroom where the trial has attracted greatest interest during the last seven days.

Mrs. Merrick is one of the most unusual characters in London night life. Her two daughters—neither of whom was in court today—met their hus-

Girl Breathes Again After an 11-Day Battle

Administration of oxygen, which has kept her alive since January 18, ended today for a time at least, when her lungs were drained of fluid resulting from a complication following pneumonia. Her physicians described her condition as "a great deal better" and said it was probable oxygen would be administered occasionally for several days until the little patient gained strength.

Planes on Way to Kabul To Aid Foreigners There

London, Jan. 29 (United Press).—Airplanes have proceeded from Peshawar, India, to Kabul, capital of Afghanistan, to start evacuation of the remaining members of foreign legations in that city, according to advices from Peshawar tonight.

Otherwise the confusion and state of revolt which has existed since abdication of Amanullah Khan continues as the former king pushed his plans to regain the throne. According to advices from Karachi and Peshawar, Bacha Sakao, brigand king who captured Kabul from the Federal troops, is threatened by the march of tribesmen under Ali Ahmed Jan.

Babe Ruth Is Bequeathed $5 By Wife; Child Gets $50,000

Estate Willed to Girl Who Was Regarded by Many As Couple's Daughter—Executor, Questioned as to Kinship, Says He May Explain Later.

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The $50,000 estate of Mrs. Helen M. Ruth, wife of Babe Ruth, goes to her beloved charge and ward, Dorothy Helen Ruth, at one time known as Marie Warrington.

Babe Ruth, Mrs. Ruth's mother, her four brothers and three sisters are given $5 each under the terms of Mrs. Ruth's will, filed here today for probate.

Mrs. Ruth, who was burned to death at Watertown, Mass., January 11, executed the will in New York July 11, 1927. Personal property was valued at $32,000.

When James J. Conlin, attorney, who filed the will and is named as sole executor was questioned as to relationship of the child legatee to Mrs. Ruth and her husband, he said he was "not prepared to make a statement at this time." He indicated that he might have something to say on the subject tomorrow.

Conlin's petition for probate said that Dorothy Helen Ruth is a proper legatee under Mrs. Ruth's will, adding "upon information and belief, the said Dorothy Helen Ruth is not heir and next of kin but is referred to here for the reason that she stood as the mutually acknowledged child of the said decedents."

Dorothy Helen Ruth was a familiar figure at the Yankee Stadium before the estrangement of Babe Ruth and his late wife and the child went on one Southern training trip with the slugger of the Yankees.

Hundreds of photographs were made of the huge home run king holding the little girl in his arms and she often clapped her hands in childish glee from a box close to the New York bench as Babe made his home runs and other hits for extra bases.

There were suggestions that the child was adopted although both Mr. and Mrs. Ruth referred to her as their own. The air of mystery was heightenone point. "This information rightly ought to be turned over to the District Attorney. I don't want to sit here and see a man's character assassinated."

Defended by Maj. Hesse.

Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, who says he has reason to believe that Burlingame doesn't like him, jumped to the accused captain's defense, and demanded that he be given a fair trial in court.

Burlingame, who had refused from the outset to answer Blanton's questions, asked one himself of Representative Gibson, of Vermont. He asked Gibson who brought Mrs. Blalock to him.

"Orville Staples," Gibson replied.

"That's all I want to know," Burlingame said.

It was Staples who caused the first clash between Burlingame and Blanton. The latter was defending him when he was up before the police trial board on a variety of charges, and the captain was sitting as a member of the board. When the board found him guilty, Blanton cried "Frame up!"

Burlingame told the subcommittee yesterday that Blanton threatened "to attend to me" after the Staples trial.

In leaving the witness stand yesterday Burlingame hissed something at Blanton that could not be caught by the reporters.

Ban on "Crucifixion."

Capt. Burlingame and Representative Blanton were among the first to reach the committee room. Neither one offered to speak. After Col. Gibson had opened the hearing and asked Burlingame the usual questions to establish his identity. Blanton took over the dominant role.

In reply to protests by Representative Bowman, Gibson made it very clear that he was not going to permit Burlingame to be "crucified." While nobody present said so, the truth is that if Gibson had not allowed the hearing to proceed, the evidence in the case might never have come out. Gibson had Bureau of Efficiency agents seek this evidence in vain.

Blanton, apparently very much surprised at Bowman's outbreak, explained that he was exposing the evidence against Burlingame in the interests of the people and the Government.

"We have a right to investigate the Police Department," Blanton said.

"Yes," said Bowman, "for publicity purposes."

Coming Back, Blanton Says.

Then the two engaged in a political argument, which ended when Blanton predicted that he was coming back to Congress two years hence. He forfeited his seat in the last campaign when he ran for the Senate.

"I will be back here two years from now, sitting around the table here," Blanton said confidently, and he very probably was right.

When the talk turned to Mrs. Blalock's fear of Burlingame, Maj. Hesse leaped up to say that he had 1,262 policemen "that we can put around her and give her protection."

Representative John Schafer, 270-pound Republican from Wisconsin, who just dropped in at the hearing, asked if Orville Staples knew where Mrs Blalock was. Gibson said that he couldn't answer for Staples.

"If she is afraid of her life," Schafer said, "and if the police force can not be provided, then let us have the Department of Justice agents to guard her. If necessary, let us have special agents appointed by Congress."

As matters now stand, the Gibson subcommittee has washed its hands of the case for the time being and is looking to Collins to run it down. At the same time, however, the subcommittee still has a string attached to the matter.

Note Believed From Lost 'Dawn' Fliers Discovered

Salem, Mass., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—A possible clew to the fate of Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson and her three male companions who hopped off from Long Island, N. Y., on December 23, 1927, in the airplane Dawn for Europe and were never seen again, has been found in a message contained in a bottle washed ashore here.

The bottle was found by Charlton Hatfield, in Salem harbor. The message, written in pencil on a piece of yellow note paper said:

"1928, we are freezing. Gas leaked and we are drifting off Grand Banks. Grayson."

Woman Kills Husband; Gives Threat as Cause

Fort Scott, Kans., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Mrs. Maude Bruner shot and killed her husband of a few months as he sat in a rocking chair in their rooms here today. The woman told police Bruner had threatened to kill her and had "toyed with a butcher knife all night." The knife was found beside the chair.

Bruner had served a term in the Missouri Penitentiary for a liquor law violation. His first wife, from which he was divorced, lives in Keyport, N. J. He is the fourth of four brothers to meet violent death and the second to be slain.

Posse Chases Ten Who Beat Shooting Suspect

Mendenhall, Miss., Jan. 29 (A. P.).—A posse of deputy sheriffs today started in pursuit of ten men who had seized a negro apparently with the intention of lynching him, but he was turned loose after having been given a beating. The negro, Jack Walker, was taken from his place of employment on the farm of E. K. Hall, near here, by unmasked men, Hall told officers.

Walker was accused of having shot and wounded Alfred Little, a planter, recently, and had been released under bond.

Man Tried in Slaying Of Husband Testifies

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Walter L. Liggett, on trial, accused of the murder of Turney Cunningham, hotel manager, here last October, took the stand in his own defense today to describe his relations with Mrs. Cunningham for six years prior to the killing.

The State, after more than a week of testimony, which included that of the widow, rested early today, and Liggett, local grain dealer, immediately began his recital.

TEXT OF CLASHES AT GIBSON HEARING

The more pertinent passages from the transcript of yesterday's hearing of the charges involving Capt. Guy E. Burlingame before the Gibson subcommittee follow:

Rows With Maj. Hesse.

Maj. Hesse—Mr. Chairman, Congressman Blanton has said that he called these matters to the attention of the chief of police and the district attorney. Now, I ask a few minutes——

Mr. Blanton—No. I did not say that to the chief of police.

Maj. Hesse—You said to his superior; and I was sitting there.

Mr. Blanton—No, I said I asked you to be present.

Maj. Hesse—Just a minute. Didn't you say that you called——

Mr. Blanton—No, I never called it to the attention of the——

Maj. Hesse—I wanted to make myself clear on it, Mr. Blanton. When these newspaper articles came out about Capt. Burlingame, I asked permission to come before this committee——

Mr. Blanton—Major, I was not even in Washington.

Maj. Hesse—Yes, but you won't let me explain, or listen to me, and let you know what happened in Washington.

Gibson Asks for Order.

Mr. Gibson—Now, let us have a little order about that. Do you want to make a statement, Major?

Maj. Hesse—Yes, sir. I want to make myself clear. I do not stand for Burlingame; I carry no brief for him; if he is wrong. If he is right, I am with him as long as there is breath in my body; if he is wrong, I will turn him in as quick as I would a thief.

Mr. Blanton—I am the same way.

Maj. Hesse—The day I was here I said this case did not belong, in my opinion, to this committee or to me as a supervising or disciplinary official; that it belonged to the United States district attorney, because this man, according to the press, was charged with felony and with the consent of this committee I appeared before the United States district attorney for the District of Columbia and gave him all the facts that the committee gave me that morning, and with the newspaper articles. I have done my utmost to attempt, if there is anything wrong with this officer, to bring him where he belongs, and that is before the grand jury and the courts. If he has stolen $14,000, if he has tried to welch a poor woman out of money, he does not belong on the police force, he belongs in jail.

No Concern, Says Blanton.

Mr. Blanton—I have no concern about that at all; that is a matter——

Maj. Hesse—I hold no brief for Burlingame. I do not believe he thinks too much of me, but he is a captain of police and he has got to obey my orders.

Mr. Gibson—The chairman does not understand that there is any criticism of any action on your part.

Maj. Hesse—I have tried to do the best I could.

Mr. Blanton—I have no concern in it at all, major.

Maj. Hesse—But you did not understand me, Mr. Blanton, and you would not let me explain.

Mr. Blanton—It was because I had no connection with it, and I did not want you to be attributing something to me when it came from somewhere to me in Texas; and I had nothing to do with it.

Mr. Gibson—The chairman's opinion is that the conduct of Maj. Hesse is exemplary in this matter, and we have no criticism of him at all. Now, we have got these things out in the open and the district attorney is going to have the benefit of it. Let us have the matter cleared up, so that the people of Washington will know about it. They are entitled, and you are entitled to know what the situation is.

Can Not Stop Gambling.

Maj. Hesse—You bet I am, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Gibson—This committee has not anything at all against Capt. Burlingame or any member of the police force. We realize that we can not stop gambling, we can not stop bootlegging, but we are concerned that the police force is honest.

Maj. Hesse—And we think we are.

Mr. Blanton—Captain, I wanted to ask you some questions in the matter of a certain inquiry that the committee has had under investigation.

Burlingame Bars Answers.

Capt. Burlingame—I will state right now, Mr. Chairman, that I have no desire to answer any questions propounded to me by Mr. Blanton. I do not care anything about Mr. Blanton. I do not say this with any disrespect to the committee, but I do not intend to enter into any controversy with Mr Blanton.

Mr. Blanton—I have no controversy.

Capt. Burlingame—I will state my reasons fully, if you wish to have them.

Mr. Gibson—Capt. Burlingame, Mr Blanton is a member of this subcommittee, duly constituted by Congress.

Capt. Burlingame—I understand that perfectly, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Gibson—And I do not think there is any personal feeling between you and Mr Blanton.

Capt. Burlingame—Yes, there is.

Mr. Gibson—I do not believe there is on his part.

Capt. Burlingame—That is exactly where it is.

Mr. Gibson—I do not see any reason why you should be excused from answering on that ground.

Captain Asks No Favors.

Capt. Burlingame—I do not ask to be excused. I do not come here asking for favors or privileges. I am standing on my rights, and I will give you my reasons if you care to have them.

Mr. Gibson—If you want to put them on the record; anything that you want to put on the record.

Capt. Burlingame—I am not asking to have anything on the record, but as an act of courtesy to you, for whom I have the greatest respect in the world, I will give you my reasons if you wish them. But I do not care to enter into any argument or contrcversy with Mr. Blanton.

Mr. Blanton—I am not going to enter into any argument.

Mr. Gibson—But not to state your reasons without the knowledge of the other members of the committee.

Mr. Blanton—When any question arises, if I ask him a question that he does not want to answer—my questions shall all be courteous and proper questions——

Capt. Burlingame—Well, I can save you a lot of trouble right now, Mr. Blanton, by suggesting that you do not ask me any, because I refuse to answer any questions that you ask.

Mr. Blanton—Well, any question that you refuse to answer, you can take it up at that time.

Understands His Rights.

Mr. Gibson—Now, I will suggest to the captain that there are certain rights, of course, that he has.

Capt. Burlingame—That is right.

Mr. Gibson—You understand your rights?

Capt. Burlingame—I do, and I am here to protect my rights.

Mr. Gibson—You are fully advised of your constitutional rights?

Capt. Burlingame—Well, I have not any legal advice. I am just using my own common sense. I know what my rights are. I do not propose to be dragged into an argument with Mr Blanton.

Mr. Gibson—Well, we will try to see that you are not dragged into an argument.

Capt. Burlingame—I thank you very much.

Mr. Gibson—If you will just answer the questions, we will try to see that your rights are fully protected.

Capt. Burlingame—I am going to answer any question from you, but I am not going to have any dealings with Mr. Blanton. I think it would be better for me to give you my reasons.

Mr. Gibson—If you want to give it in public.

Recalls His Long Service.

Capt. Burlingame—Yes, sir. I do not care. Everything I do is open and above-board, and the public is welcome to it. There has come a time—to start off with I have been in the Police Department nearly 33 years—it will be 33 years next March.

I have been through practically all the grades. I have served as a uniformed patrolman on the street for eight or nine years in precinct work; I was assigned to headquarters as detective sergeant, and I was there, I don't know how long—probably fourteen, fifteen or sixteen years.

During that time I have given, as I have before and since—I have given the department 100 per cent. I have never had a bed of roses. I don't know that this would interest you, but just to make you understand my position, I will say that I have never had a bed of roses in the department.

Whenever they had a rotten, nasty job to do, I usually fell heir to it; and I never asked for any promotion in the department. What promotion I received was given to me on account of my work in the department; and all of this the records in the department, and some of our present officials, will substantiate.

On one occasion when we had a very great emergency arise, when some of our high District officials threw up their hands and let me handle it, I was in a position where I had to assume as much responsibility as the President of the United States.

Stole U. S. Troops to Work.

I wound up by stealing the United States Army and put them to work. After that was all settled, the District officials came in to Congress and provided for an extra lieutenant in recognition of my services for that night's work.

There came a time when there was controversy with some of our late officials, fighting among themselves. I was pushed into the shooting gallery to tell what I was supposed to know something I was not involved in, but I was supposed to know each side and I was pushed in before another official to help the case of one against the other.

I frankly asked the gentleman if the other official had told him what was the trouble, and he said, "No, not a word." I said, "Well, I have been in the department a good many years, and I think I stand—I have the respect of all the men in the department. Now," I said, "I have never gained that respect of the men that I am working with by carrying tales from one official to another to benefit a third official, and it is too late for me to start now."

He informed me that he was satisfied that I knew certain things that were going on in the department, that the higher officials would not tell him, and if I did not tell him that he would never promote me as long as I lived.

I said, "I thank you. I am sorry you feel that way, but I have not anything to tell you." And I went out, and I did my duty as I saw it, and did the best I could.

Recalls Staples Case.

Mr. Blanton—Now, it was about matters affecting the property rights of a citizen of the District that I wanted to ask Capt. Burlingame, in a respectful way. If he wants to answer, all right; if he does not, I will proceed without questioning.

Mr. Gibson—Let us let Capt. Burlingame——

Mr. Blanton—But I do not want him to take up my time——

Mr. Gibson—He is coming down to the reason why he does not want to answer questions.

Capt. Burlingame—There came a time about a year ago when I was placed upon the trial board to try one of the members of the department——

Mr. Gibson—That is the Staples case?

Capt. Burlingame—That is the Staples case. We sat for ten days or more, listening to misstatements of facts, deliberate untruths, threats, abuse of all descriptions coming from this man, Mr. Blanton—Now, I do not care to go into that.

Capt. Burlingame—I insist——

Mr. Blanton—If he does not care to answer questions, I do not care to have him make that statement.

Mr. Gibson—We want to have this record straight. Are you about through?

Case Held "Part of It."

Capt. Burlingame—I am nearly through.

Mr. Gibson—You do not want to answer the questions because of the spirit that was engendered in the Staples case?

Capt. Burlingame—That is a part of it, and what I have been annoyed with ever since. I would like to finish that.

Mr. Blanton—I do not want my time taken up with that.

Mr. Gibson—Let him finish it.

Capt. Burlingame—There came a time at the close of that trial when things got to such a pass that I felt called upon to stop it, and to state just how I felt about it. Mr. Blanton publicly stated then that he would get me later, or, to use his own words, that he would attend to me later. Now, since that time, Mr. Chairman, every few days——

Mr. Blanton—I deny that, Mr. Chairman. I made no such statement.

Charges by Burlingame.

Capt. Burlingame—Ever since that day about a year ago, here is what I have been annoyed with. Every few days some one would come in—this will cover the whole thing—two gentlemen that I had never seen before came to the station and asked to see me. They introduced themselves and said that they were at the Capitol and introduced several Congressmen, and among others was Congressman Blanton, of Texas. After they had finished their business, he asked them did they know me, and with quite a little conversation, about that he was in a position to help them and they could help him, that he would like to have them get something on me, something he could break me with——

Mr. Blanton—Mr. Chairman——

Capt. Burlingame—Just a minute.

Mr. Blanton—Wait just a minute, just a minute.

Mr. Gibson—You can ask the question.

Attacks Captain's Veracity.

Mr. Blanton—Just a minute. Now, I am not here for this witness to put those statements in about me. Let him produce those witnesses here and I will show that no such thing like that ever occurred. I never made that statement to anybody about Capt. Burlingame. So far as that Staples trial is concerned, I dismissed it from my mind. I was down in Texas at my home with some sick children when this matter came up. I had forgotten about Capt. Burlingame; I dismissed him entirely from my mind. I made no such statement about him. I never made any statement about him since the Staples trial except what was given to the Commissioners themselves in the printed brief. That is all.

Capt. Burlingame—And every few days——

Mr. Gibson—Let me ask you right there, Capt. Burlingame, do you know the names of those men?

Promises to Give Names.

Capt. Burlingame—I can get the names of those men.

Mr. Gibson—Are you willing to give them?

Capt. Burlingame—I am, at a proper time and proper place.

Mr. Blanton—I ask that they be subpenaed.

Mr. Gibson—Can you give them to us, so that we can produce them?

Capt. Burlingame—I will give them to you. Now, this would continue to happen, every few days; something of this kind; some of the individuals that the congressman had surrounded himself with. I would hear that they had been running around to get something on me. Now it has come to the point that through the efforts of those men that I am charged, I understand through the public press, with being a thief, with being a grafter, with imposing upon some defenseless woman.

Affidavit Made by Mrs. Blalock Charging Burlingame Took Money

"The State of Texas,
"County of Taylor.

"I, Mrs. Helen F. Blalock, of Washington, D. C., being duly sworn, upon my oath state: At the insistence of Congressman Ernest W. Gibson, and Congressman Thomas L. Blanton, chairman and ranking minority member, respectively, of the Gibson subcommittee investigating affairs in the District of Columbia, that I relate the treatment accorded me by Capt. Guy E Burlingame, of the Metropolitan Police Force. I have decided to tell said committee what I know, in order to obviate my being forced to return to Washington to appear personally before said committee, this statement to supplement that partial evidence I have already given before said committee:

"I left Washington because I believed Capt. Burlingame would take my life, and he would have caused me to lose all of my property there on January 15, 1929, if I hadn't succeeded in getting Congressman Blanton to have extended for me loans of $7,000 and $210 accrued interest, and $1,045.66 that was due and payable on said January 15, 1929, same being first and second trusts against my property on "H" street northeast, and I also left there because life was simply unbearable with said Capt. Burlingame continually annoying, harassing, browbeating, threatening, and dominating me and my property, which for two years he has been deliberately planning to take from me.

Loathed Him, She Says.

"Said Capt. Guy Burlingame found out that I had some money and two pieces of valuable property in Washington, and that I was a licensed palmist, and he began to call on me in a social way, pretending to be desperately in love with me, and forcing his attentions upon me.

"I finally learned that he was a married man, and when I upbraided him about it, he said his wife was dying with cancer, and that I couldn't get along in Washington without his friendship and protection, as I couldn't get a license without his help, and that I would be constantly molested and put out of business without his help.

"I simply loathed him, and I lived in constant dread and fear of him, and I did everything within my power to stop him from coming to see me.

"He forced me to give him a key to my apartments, and he would come there at any time of night or day that suited him, and through threats and intimidations harassed me until I was a nervous wreck.

Quotes Alleged Threat.

"I stopped him many times, and demanded that he stay away, and he would write me ardent messages of love and affection. The letters, and slips, and cards, all written on his same typewriter, and some unsigned, and some signed "Heartsore," and some "Your Broken-hearted Daddy," and some "Your Loving Daddy," and others in various ways, were all written by Capt. Guy E. Burlingame, and sent to me urging me to let him come back.

"He rang me up so much on the telephone that I had to have it disconnected. He simply wrecked and ruined my life.

"When I intimated that I would go away from Washington where he couldn't bother me, he said he had means of finding me any where, and that through his police connections he would have me worried and molested anywhere I went, so that I would have to come back to Washington, as I couldn't live anywhere else.

"He insisted on buying things for me and then he would take my money to pay for it.

"He would pay my taxes for me, and then take my money to cover it. He would make the contracts for the repair of my buildings, and then I would give him the money to pay for it. He gave me a diamond ring. I didn't want it.

"I told him it would not fit. He took it off and had it made smaller, and returned it in the box it was in when I turned it over to Congressman Gibson of Vermont, as I heard rumors that one was taken in a raid.

Kept Money Charge.

"He cashed and kept the money on the check for $2,500 I gave him January 7, 1928, on the National Bank of Washington. He withdrew and kept the $8,700 which on June 16, 1928, he drew from my account, Series No. 80 146 with the Perpetual Building Association, at Eleventh and E streets northwest. He received and kept the $700 withdrawn on December 17, 1927, and the $669 withdrawn on December 19, 1927, from my account Series 48 1364 in the said Perpetual Building Association.

"For months he has kept me from getting a tenant in my "H" street property, thinking I would not be able to extend the loans against it on January 15, 1929, and he has suggested to me that I make a will in his favor, and several times he suggested that I commit suicide.

Staples Case Recalled.

"During the time he sat on the trial board in the Staples case, after each session, he would come to my apartments some time during the night and tell me about it; during the first four days he said that even if the headquarters were demanding his conviction, he wasn't going to convict Staples on the ridiculous evidence of negro bootleggers and prostitutes, but toward the end of the trial he stated to me that he had decided to convict Staples, in order to stop policemen from reporting police matters to congressmen.

"When I asked him if he wasn't ashamed to convict an innocent man, he said that he was going to make Washington policemen afraid to tell anything to congressmen and senators, and his conviction had been demanded by headquarters.

"He said that Blanton was continually dabbling in Washington affairs, and ought to be killed.

Blanton Threat Alleged.

"When he kept bothering me, and made my life miserable, I told him that if he didn't let me alone, and stay away from my apartment, I was going to let Congressman Blanton and his committee know about how he had mistreated me. He said that if I ever made his affairs public, 'he and I would go to hell together,' he intimating that he would shoot us both, and he said 'Congressman Blanton would get his, if he didn't let Washington affairs alone.' Several times he wanted me to promise him that I would marry him just as soon as his wife died, but I told him I wouldn't do it.

"I knew that Capt. Guy E. Burlingame will kill me if I live in Washington, and I can't return there, as his forced attentions upon me are simply unbearable.

"I have thus been forced to move away from my home city where I was born in order to have any peace of mind, and to escape him. I am a widow with no one to protect me, and he has simply ruined my life for two years.

"I know how insincere and false his protestations of love for me were, and how unfaithful he was to his wife, and how he was prostituting his official power for his own selfish gain, and I couldn't stand for him to be around me.

Wanted Jewelry, Charge.

"I have considerable jewelry which was given me by my husband during our married life, among which are two valuable diamond rings and a valuable diamond necklace with eleven diamonds in it. He wanted me to let him keep this jewelry and my other valuables in his safe at Precinct No. 3, saying that they would be safe from fire, but I wouldn't let him keep them.

"I knew that he was after my jewelry, for he had begged me to let him have my diamond necklace, but I wouldn't do it. He told me that he would keep my valuables for me in a sealed envelope marked as my property, which he would put in his safe, and later I found out that he had been keeping large sums of his own money in his safe in similar large brown envelopes marked on the outside as my property and sealed with a seal that had 1504 on it, which was the number of my apartment on Seventh street.

"At one time he opened one of these envelopes, that was thus sealed and marked my property, and he counted out $14,000 that was in it in bills of the denomination of $1,000 and $500 each, and I thus found out that he was hiding out in this way large sums of his own money. From time to time he would present me with an envelope containing large sums of bills, stating that it was a gift from him to me, but I refused to accept any gift from him, because I knew he was simply trying to get me in his power and get hold of all of my property.

"I returned to Capt. Burlingame everything that he ever gave me and have refused to keep anything that he ever gave me.

"For one Christmas present he tried to get me to accept $1,500 in bills that he gave me, but I wouldn't accept it. I knew he was doing this simply to get me to let him have my property.

Wants to Be Let Alone.

"All I want is for Capt. Guy E. Burlingame to let me alone, and to let my property alone. I would not have told about this treatment of me if said members of the Gibson committee had not insisted that I do so, claiming that they were entitled to know about same in their congressional investigation of affairs in Washington, for I am afraid of Capt. Burlingame, and know that he will cause me injury if he can.

"If I had not gone to Representative Blanton and implored him to help me save my property, and if he hadn't arranged extensions of my loans by telegraph, I would have lost all of my property that I possess, for I am simply stripped of all money and ready cash by reason of Capt. Burlingame's wrongful treatment of me.

"HELEN F. BLALOCK."

Sworn to and subscribed by said Helen F. Blalock before me on this the 19th day of January, A. D. 1929, she having carefully read over her above statement before signing, and having approved it as true and correct. Given under my hand and seal of office this January 19 1929, at Abilene, Tex. (Seal.) FLORENCE CLIFTON, Notary public in and for Taylor County, Tex. (My commission expires June 30, 1929).

New Sandino Plot Bared in Honduras

Overthrow of Government in Nicaragua Planned if Marines Withdrew.

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—A plan of Augustino Sandino to overthrow the new Liberal government of Nicaragua after giving the appearance of abandoning the warfare which he has waged for two years was disclosed here today. Froylan Turcios, who has been the rebel's general representative abroad, resigned rather than subscribe to these methods.

Sandino outlined the plan last December in a letter to Turcios. He would agree to cease fighting and leave the country provided all United States troops evacuated Nicaragua. Sandino was to discharge his men and surrender, apparently his arms to President Jose Maria Moncada.

Sandino, however, would hide his main armament. His men would remain in the four northern departments, apparently dedicated to agricultural work but in reality ready for a call from their leader.

Sandino would go to Mexico and secretly organize a strong maritime expedition. Once the country was clear of its northern defenders, he would attack the important seaport of Corinto while his former army, reorganized, would march on the capital.

If the plot succeeded President Moncada would be overthrown and Pedro Zepeda would be appointed provisional president to convoke a new election in which Sandino would be the only candidate for the presidency.

Kills Sick Wife and Self; Seemed 'Gracious Thing'

Boulder, Colo., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Leaving a note to the county coroner in which he said "It seems to me the gracious thing to do," James E. Kirkbridge, former deputy district attorney, shot and killed his wife and then ended his own life here.

The wounded and frozen bodies of the couple were found in their home. Apparently they died last Sunday.

"Frances pleads to be released from earthly bonds," Kirkbridge wrote. "I see nothing in the future but cares, worries, failure and possible collapse. I have thought it over from every angle, spiritual, moral, legal and social, and it seems to me the gracious thing to do."

Kirkbridge was not reappointed to office early this month, he explained in a note, because of "politics." His wife recently had been a patient at the Denver Psychopathic Hospital.

Lady Heath, Noted Flier, Applies for Citizenship

Holder of Altitude Record for Women Takes Out First Papers.

New York, Jan. 29 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Lady Catherine Sophia Pierce-Evans Heath, England's leading aviatrix and wife of Sir James Heath, wealthy industrialist, intends to become an American citizen. The heroine of many air exploits and holder of the distance and altitude records for women, took out her first papers today, which will enable her to become a full-fledged citizen in five years.

Wearing a black, close-fitting hat and a brown fur coat, the tall, good-looking aviatrix appeared unexpectedly in the naturalization bureau in the Federal Building and made her declaration before Deputy Clerk John A Granie. She gave her age as 32, her occupation as commercial aviator, and her birthplace as Kockaberry, County Limerick.

Lady Heath, who came to this country three months ago with the intention of remaining only six months, said her decision to become an American citizen was a matter of arithmetic, although she had learned to like Americans when first she came in contact with them toward the end of the war.

She said she meant to devote her time to the promotion of aviation among women in this country, which offered better distances than Great Britain. Only after women take an active interest in aviation will it be a complete success, she declared.

She intended to remain a free lance and fly about the country to lecture and organize women's aviation clubs, but there was a possibility she would join some American aviation outfit, she said.

After leaving the Federal Building Lady Heath underwent a medical examination preparatory to taking out a commercial aviator's license in this country.

Lady Heath achieved fame for her solo flight from London to Cape Town and back and for her altitude flight of 24,000 feet, the record for women. Last December her husband publicly disavowed responsibility for her debts, declaring she spent the money he gave her for other purposes than those for which it was intended.

JUDGE CALLS CHECK PRESENT, NOT FEE

CRITICIZES BAR'S ACTION

Los Angeles, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The $2,500 "love offering" check from Aimee Semple McPherson and her Angelus Temple came as a surprise to him, Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy told a State legislature investigating committee here today.

"I was going on a vacation and she said they wished to show their appreciation of my activities covering three years of developing and carrying on the work of Angelus Temple," he told the committee which is to determine whether impeachment action shall be taken against him.

"But I never considered I gave them any legal advice or acted in any way as a lawyer," he declared. He insisted that whenever any question arose in which legal advice was needed, that he advised Mrs. McPherson and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, to employ counsel.

Appearing as a voluntary witness, Judge Hardy said he had defied a State bar association's attempt to question him about the $2,500 check.

"As a member of the judiciary, I did not think the State bar had jurisdiction over my case," he testified. "I believe it would tend to intimidate the judiciary and place them under the rule of a group of attorneys if they were allowed authority in matters of this kind."

The jurist's appearance followed the questioning of Mrs. McPherson and the Rev. J. W. Arthur, of Angelus Temple, the only other witnesses to appear since the committee began its sessions Saturday.

Met with repeated denials from Mrs. McPherson that the check was for "legal advice," Chairman Walter Little pointed out that the jurist previously had admitted advising the evangelist of Angelus Temple about "income taxes" and "matters involving large sums of money." It was on this point that the State bar sought to investigate the jurist's action following the charge of Mrs. McPherson's mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, that the check was for "legal advice."

Mrs. McPherson, when asked where her mother, with whom she had disagreed, is living, said she presumed she was in Seattle. When the committee indicated it would like to have Mrs. Kennedy as a witness, Mrs. McPherson said: "If I see her, I'll tell her about it." The evangelist had planned a tour of Canada which would take her through Seattle, but her trip was delayed when the committee demanded her presence.

An indication that the committee would attempt to refute a statement of the evangelist that she never paid any of the temple bills in cash, was made when Chairman Little said he was prepared to present a "mystery" witness. Little said the individual had seen the evangelist paying salaries to two Los Angeles newspaper men at the time a grand jury was investigating her kidnaping episode.

Man, 74, Dies by Gas; Efforts at Rescue Fail

Thomas Griffin, 74 years old, of 1342 North Carolina avenue northeast, was found dead in a chair in the rear of his home at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Fire Rescue Squad, No. 2, responding to the call, found him dead from gas flowing from five jets in the kitchen range.

The squad arrived too late to revive him. He was rushed to Casualty Hospital, where Dr. Louis Jimal pronounced him dead. Police of the Ninth Precinct, who investigated, reported that he may have committed suicide.

Order Reported Restored In China Army Revolt

Hongkong, China, Jan. 29 (U.P.).—Unofficial advices from Haunghaien tonight said order had been restored there after a military revolt in which Communists joined with part of the second army division.

JUDGE DENIES CHECK WAS FEE

BROOKHART SEES CRUISERS AS JUNK WHEN LAUNCHED

lieves the time clause should be eliminated.

But the new suggestion from the White House is not acceptable to the supporters of the cruiser bill, who want the time clause left in.

Carrying out the President's suggestion, they fear, would almost certainly mean defeat of the bill, even though this fact is not now realized by the President. The budget recommendation would be filibustered and no appropriation made, it is stated, and the same fight would ensue when later efforts were made to obtain appropriations for the rest of the cruisers.

Curtis Introduces Agreement.

In any event the immediate program would call for constructing only five of the fifteen cruisers with the future fate of the other ten uncertain, it is added.

Senator Curtis introduced the unanimous consent agreement which was adopted and which calls for limitation of debate on Monday next.

No senator is to speak more than once and longer than 30 minutes on the bill nor more than once and longer than 15 minutes on any amendment until the hour of 4 p. m. when debate is further limited to 10 minutes on the bill and 10 minutes on each amendment.

Early in the day Senator Oddie, second ranking Republican member of the Senate naval affairs committee, told the Senate that President-elect Hoover's telegram should be construed in a broad way and should not deter the Senate from voting for the cruiser bill with the time clause left in.

"The President-elect can not be expected to comment on slegislation of this administration," Senator Oddie said. "It would ill become him to disagree with the present President. We can not expect him to discuss the technicalities of the bill. President-elect Hoover has been placed in a very unfortunate position and we must construe his telegram broadly."

Sincerity Not Doubted.

"Does the senator from Nevada doubt the sincerity of the President-elect?" asked Senator Harrison.

"No, no; not at all," replied Senator Oddie, "but we must remember that the President-elect has been placed in an embarrassing position."

"I wish the senator from Nevada would tell me," persisted Senator Harrison, "whether he thinks the President-elect agrees or disagrees with the time clause in this bill?"

"I believe the President-elect should be taken at his word," replied Senator Oddie. "He declared for adequate national defense in his acceptance speech."

"But the senator has not answered my question," persisted Senator Harrison. "Does he feel that the President-elect is in favor or against the time clause?"

"The Hoover telegram should be viewed in a broad way," answered Senator Oddie, "and should not deter the Senate from passing the bill with the time clause in."

Will Be Junk, Brookhart Says.

Senators Brookhart and Wheeler sought to ascertain why Senator Shortridge, a regular administration Republican, proposed to vote for the bill with the time clause. Shortridge, in reply, said he did not believe in supermen, that the Senate was a legislative body and that he proposed to do what he believed best.

The point which Senator Brookhart endeavored to make in his prepared speech was that big cruisers and battleships would be of no value in war and that the only safe place for the American Navy, in the event of a war with Great Britain, would be "as far up the Mississippi River" as the American ships could get.

"If they could get up as far as the Missouri they would be safe," he added. "These ships will be junk from the minute they are launched."

Senator Bruce spoke in support of the bill and expressed the conviction that no naval disarmament conference would ever be reached between Great Britain and the United States and that no agreement on freedom of the seas could logically be expected.

Northcott's Father Aids Lad's Defense

Examined by Son, Acting as His Own Attorney in Murder Trial.

Riverside, Calif., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—For the first time in his trial for the murder of three boys, Gordon Stewart Northcott, acting as his own attorney, today presented testimony in refutation of the prosecution's charges.

His 62-year-old father, Cyrus Northcott, who has been in custody as a material witness, took the stand and under the questioning of his son, said he had never seen anything at the Northcotts' Wineville chicken ranch that indicated "there ever had been a crime committed."

Sanford Clark, 15-year-old nephew and principal accuser of Gordon Stewart, as a State's witness had described the killing of the boys. It was his story of the ranch horrors that brought about the arrest and indictment of his uncle.

When he took the stand, the father's attitude toward the son appeared somewhat unfriendly. But as the examination proceeded the harsh tone of the defendant toward the witness was modified and he occasionally addressed him as "Daddy."

Man Believed Lost Escapes Ice Floes

Both His Feet and Hands Are Frozen in Long Crawl to Safety.

Petoskey, Mich., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Crawling and climbing over miles of jagged ice as best his frozen feet and hands would permit, Lewis Sweet, fisherman and guide, given up for lost after he was carried out into Lake Michigan on an ice floe a week ago, came ashore at Cross Village, north of here, today.

He had been carried on the floe about 25 miles, he estimated, before a change in the wind sent the huge ice cake back and piled it up on Skilagalee Island, some 8 or 10 miles from shore. On the island Sweet found shelter and food in a lighthouse and remained there until early today, when he began his perilous journey to shore.

Sweet was crawling up the icy bluff at Cross Village when found by Henry Sullivan and taken to the latter's home. With the village snowbound excepting for dog team communication, preparations were made to take him on a sled to Levering, 30 miles north of here, and thence by motor to this city for hospital treatment.

Texas Senate Would Bar Hoover Adherents

Austin, Tex., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The State senate committee on privileges and elections today refused to approve five election bills offered by State Senator Thomas B. Love, of Dallas, bolting Democrat in the November general election, and voted to report favorably a bill which would keep supporters of Herbert Hoover from running for office in the next Democratic primary.

The Martin proposal would require an aspirant for a place on the ballot as a candidate for a county, district or State office to make an affidavit that he had supported all the party nominees in the last general election, or that he had not voted. Under the terms of the bill, Democrats who voted for Herbert Hoover would not be permitted to run for office on the Democratic ticket until 1932.

PLAN FOR GREAT AIR SYSTEM REVEALED

New Tells Progress Diners of the Projected Service to South America.

MAIL PILOTS ARE PRAISED

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Postmaster General New, speaking on aviation before the progress dinner here tonight, said that the air mail service was now turning its attention to the building of a great international air mail communication system after having been a pioneer in the development of aviation in the United States.

Sketching briefly the history of the first efforts to carry mail by air, the Postmaster General declared that the commercial development of the airplane in the United States had come about largely through the efforts of the Postoffice Department.

"Flying day and night through the snow and over the frozen ground of the North and down through the palm-bordered lanes and orange groves of Florida and California, the air mail routes now operate day in and day out 24 hours a day," Mr. New said.

"Twenty-three routes are flown within the borders of the country," he declared, "serving over 100 of our larger cities, carrying an average of 7½ tons of mail each and flying in excess of 30,000 miles daily."

The Postmaster General said that he could speak with pride on the subject of our foreign air mail routes. "With the line from New York City to Montreal, one from Miami to the British possessions in the Bahamas, another to Cuba, Haiti, Dominican Republic and Porto Rico, we are about to establish a route to the Canal Zone, touching at the larger cities in our sister republics of Central America," he said.

"We are bringing into closer contact the peoples around us and thereby closely cementing their friendship and sharing their commerce, trade and industry through this medium of fast transportation."

Mr. New said that an air mail service that will carry mails down the Pacific Coast to all the South American countries is being arranged and that consummation of that project was in the very near future.

Honor guests at the progress dinner were Maj. Carl Spatz, Capt. Ira C. Eaker, Lieut. Elwood Quesada and Sergt. Hooe, of the crew of the big Army Fokker, Question Mark, which early this month remained in the air longer than any aircraft ever had before.

As Maj. Gen. J. E. Fechet, Postmaster General New, F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for Aviation; William P. MacCracken, jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aviation; Edward B. Warner, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aviation; Merle Thorpe, editor of Nation's Business; David Lawrence, writer and editor, traced the progress of aviation, their talks all led finally to this last feather in the cap of America's flying men.

Three thousand persons from 44 States attended the dinner, which was sponsored by the National Exchange Club. Dr. John H. Finley, editor of the New York Times, was the toastmaster, and Mayor James J. Walker extended the welcome of the city.

The speeches at the dinner were broadcast. Communications were read from Commander Richard E. Byrd and Sir George Hubert Wilkins, both heading aerial expeditions of exploration in the Antarctic.

Whisky, Not Wine, Made Girls Tipsy

No Proof Yet That Father of One Is Bootlegger, Says School Head.

Baltimore, Md., Jan 29 (A.P.).—That three Eastern High School girls accused of being drunk in class had been drinking whisky, and not wine, was established by the investigation of the Public School Association, Mrs. William Bauernschmidt, secretary of the association, said today. Beyond that fact she had nothing to announce on progress of the association's study of the matter, while Dr. David E. Weglein, superintendent of public instruction, declined to divulge what had been learned in the department's investigation.

Concerning a report current last night that the father of one of the girls was a bootlegger, who occasionally gave his daughter a package containing liquor to be mailed on her way to school, Mrs. Bauernschmidt said:

"We have no definite information or conclusive proof to that effect at the present time."

Results of both investigations were to be presented to the meeting of the board of school commissioners early next month.

G.O.P. LEADER NAMED AS RUM PROTECTOR

SPECIAL INQUIRY LOOMS

Col. Lloyd E. Hill, of Fort Worth, testified before the Brookhart Senate patronage committee today that Rene R. Creager, Republican national committeeman of Texas, had protected liquor traffic at hotels in Dallas and Fort Worth, and that P. V. Petty, a prohibition officer, was suspended for raiding one of them "against orders."

Hill also swore that he paid $600 on a note for $1,200 as a contribution to Creager for the postmastership at Dallas. He told the committee that while an applicant for the office in 1921, he attended a Republican meeting at the Metropolitan Hotel at Fort Worth, "where it was the general understanding that Federal jobs were being bought and sold."

Mr. Hill declared that liquor was served openly at some of the Republican meetings, although there were United States marshals and prohibition agents present.

Special Inquiry Looms.

The Brookhart committee—a subcommittee of the Senate committee on postoffices and post roads—was not asking for prohibition enforcement information, but the startling testimony given will result in a special inquiry.

Petty, the committee was informed, raided a Fort Worth hotel "against orders from Dave Morris, prohibition director for the State of Texas." He was warned he would be punished if he made the raid. He bought liquor of a bellhop at a Dallas hotel, and was told that Creager got his drinks there, and had "taken care of things."

Hill produced canceled checks, made out by him to Creager, to pay on his note. One of them was dated August 1, 1921, and indorsed to Creager.

Petty May Be Called.

Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, member of the subcommittee, asked that Petty be subpenaed to testify. He said that the story of the protection for bootleggers and the job selling must be gone into thoroughly.

Leonard Withington, secretary of the Republican State committee, on a salary of $10,000 a year, admitted that Federal officeholders in Texas contributed a portion of their compensation to keep up the organization. They gave notes and paid them off as they continued in office. The notes ran from $150 to $1,200, but, he explained, these payments had no connection with securing jobs.

The Senate committee will go further into the Texas system.

FESS DENIES MAKING DRY RAID PROTEST

Declares Statement, Involving Brewery in Cincinnati, Entirely False.

REPUDIATED BY WITNESS

Senator Simeon D. Fess, Republican of Ohio, one of the dry leaders of Congress for years, yesterday denied he had in any way protested against a raid on the Jackson Brewing Co. at Cincinnati. When shown a report from Columbus that John F. Eckhart, acting assistant prohibition administrator for Ohio, had testified in the trial of Bert B. Buckley, State Treasurer, on conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law, that Buckley had told him that he (Fess) had protested, Mr. Fess said:

"The reported statement of Mr. Buckley carried in this morning's press is without a scintilla or basis of fact. I had never had an intimation of the trouble of Mr. Buckley until within ten days of the indictment, when Mr. Mau, in my office here, mentioned the possibility of an indictment. The news was shocking to me, for it was the first suggestion I had had of it. My only advice to Mr. Mau was that there was no course open to him except to go to the bottom of the affair. Any suggestion that I had spoken as reported to Mr. Buckley or to any other person during the campaign is without any foundation whatever. In no way, either by direct expression or by inference or any conversation with any one, could such a conclusion be reached. In no way, at any time, did I seek to influence this case, unless my statement to Mr. Mau that he should go to the bottom of it might be regarded as such influence."

Contradicts Own Testimony.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—John F. Eckhart, acting assistant prohibition administrator for the Ohio-Indiana district, today contradicted from the stand the testimony he gave yesterday in the conspiracy trial of Bert B. Buckley, Ohio State treasurer, in which he had quoted Buckley as saying Gov. Myers Y. Cooper and Senator Simeon D. Fess had objected to a raid on the Jackson Brewery at Cincinnati.

Eckhart is the Government's star witness against Buckley, who was indicted with John L. Schrimper, Cincinnati attorney, and Joseph Sperber, brewmaster at the Jackson Brewery, on charges of conspiracy to arrange with Eckhart for advance information of raids on the Jackson plant. Schrimper and Sperber have pleaded guilty.

Confronted with a memorandum to which he had referred in testimony that Buckley told him the governor and senator had interested themselves in the raid, Eckhart said he "inferred" that Buckley meant Cooper and Fess when he said "higher-ups" had protested the raid.

Data Given to Defense.

The memorandum had been placed in the hands of defense counsel by order of the court, and Eckhart's testimony today was under cross-examination.

The memorandum was contained in a large notebook, to which Eckhart repeatedly referred in the course of his testimony. In the notes relating to Eckhart's conversation with Buckley were the names of Cooper and Fess on parenthesis. Asked what the parenthesis meant, the witness said it indicated his own conclusion that Buckley meant Cooper and Fess as his "higher-ups," because they had been mentioned in the conversation. He admitted, however, that Buckley had not specified the governor and the senator.

It was at that conversation, which occurred in the State treasurer's office, that Buckley attempted to induce him to arrange a "tip-off" system, Eckhart said.

ROCKEFELLER HIRES HUGHES IN OIL ROW

BOTH SIDES GIVE VIEWS

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Charles Evans Hughes and Henry . Hornbrook, a leader of the Indiana bar, were retained today by the proxy committee conducting John D. Rockefeller, jr.'s, fight to have Col. Robert W. Stewart removed as chairman of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, but it was said that no unexpected turn in affairs had developed to prompt obtaining such eminent counsel.

"It is always done," a Rockefeller spokesman said, "in a contest of this sort. The best legal advice is necessary, and so we made the arrangements we have."

Mr. Hughes will act as general counsel for the committee and Mr. Hornbrook as its expert on Indiana law.

Qualifies Published Statement.

The committee made the announcement the occasion for qualifying a published statement attributed to Thomas Debevoise, a Rockefeller associate, that enough proxies had been promised the Rockefeller group to assure its victory at the Indiana company's annual meeting.

"We fully expect to have enough proxies," it was said. "But we do not claim them now. We have every reason to believe we will have proxies from the largest stockholders and a majority of the shares, and we are trying also to get a majority of the stockholders."

There are slightly more than 9,000,000 shares owned by 58,000 stockholders.

The Rockefeller agents said it was particularly gratifying the way numerous trust companies holding large blocks of stock were promising to support Rockefeller.

"These trust companies, of course," they said, "can consider only the monetary phase of the contest and can not let themselves be guided by a merely moral aspect."

Some time before the annual meeting, early in March, it was said, the directors for whom the Rockefeller proxies will be voted will probably be announced.

Reporters mentioned rumors that Percy Rockefeller might throw the votes he has by virtue of his holdings in the Indiana company to Col. Stewart and against his cousin, John D Rockefeller, jr., and asked if the committee knew how Percy Rockefeller was going to vote.

"Yes, we know whom he will support," was the reply.

"Who is it?"

"That we are not yet prepared to state."

A letter from a stockholder to the committee and the reply were made public to show that Rockefeller intends to vote all the proxies intrusted to him in favor of the adoption of the third employes' stock purchasing plan, one of the matters that will come up for decision at the annual meeting.

The younger Rockefeller is trying to oust Col. Stewart because of the latter's attitude, and testimony in the Senate Teapot Dome oil investigation, which Rockefeller considered would tend to shake public confidence in the company.

Chicago, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The agents of John D. Rockefeller, jr., are not winning as many followers for the Rockefeller bandwagon as they expected, said a statement today from the office of Col. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana.

The statement was issued in connection with the news that Charles Evans Hughes had been retained as general counsel for the Rockefeller interests in their fight to oust Stewart.

Text of Stewart's Views.

The retention of additional counsel belies the victory claims of Mr. Rockefeller's proxy campaign manager, T. M. DeBevoise, the statement said.

"Mr. T. M. DeBevoise has acquired the habit of issuing daily claims of victory. The activity of Rockefeller agents throughout the country, including the retention of additional counsel, belie those claims.

"There is only one purpose for the claims. They want it to appear that the bandwagon is trundling down their way. They are not getting as many to follow that bandwagon as they expected.

"It is very apparent their statements are being broadcast in an effort to get some large stockholders that they expected to get but have failed.

"This fight isn't going to be won by claims; it will be won by votes. In the same way, Mr. DeBevoise's statement that they 'hope' to continue the present dividend policy can be answered. The dividend policy of this company is not determined by 'hopes.' It is determined by earnings."

Novel Plea Proves Futile.

Jesse James Smith, colored, when arraigned before Judge Gus A. Schuldt in Police Court yesterday on a charge of stealing a coat and watch, declared: "I plead guilty to not stealing." He was sentenced to 30 days in jail.

TROOPS IN SPAIN STAGE NEW REVOLT

They occupied the barracks of the gendarmes. Ciudad Real is about 100 miles south of Madrid. The revolt also was reported to have shown itself at Valencia, Barcelona and Corunna without gaining headway in any of these cities, however.

Primo de Rivera, in announcing to the assembly this afternoon that the government had the situation in hand, declared that "what took place was only the mad affray of a single regiment, which the government will suppress shortly without neglecting to take precautionary measures to avoid possible repetitions."

A few hours later the premier again appeared before the assembly to assure it that the revolt in Ciudad Real was at an end and that tranquillity had been restored throughout the country. He attributed the prompt quashing of the disorders to the zeal of local authorities, the vigilance of the police, the solid discipline and patriotism of the military institutions and the saneness of the country.

In contrast to some similar occasion when the government of Spain has been threatened, the government throughout the tense day announced and kept its intention to communicate to the assembly and the press for the information of the country the facts of the disturbance.

PATRIOTIC WOMEN FOR ADEQUATE NAVY

CRUISER BILL EXPLAINED

That an adequate Navy is the best peace insurance of the United States was the central theme of addresses made at the opening mass meeting of the fourth women's patriotic conference on national defense before 500 delegates, representing 88 women's societies and organizations, in Memorial Continental Hall last night.

Mrs. Boyce Ficklen, jr., national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, of Indianapolis, is chairman of the conference.

Senator Frederick Steiwer, of Oregon, declared that America, the great treasure house of the world, has already made notable sacrifices in naval armament necessary for its security and protection and that it needs "fast cruisers for the protection of our merchant shipping and for other purposes away from the battle fleet."

He pointed out that the cruiser bill is not an instrument of war and that, because of the suspension clause, it is "rather an argument in behalf of the limitation of armaments and becomes an instrument for peace." The senator called the present naval strength no better than second rate and said that, with the land forces also taken into consideration, the military strength of the United States is not even third rate among the powers of the world.

The welcoming address to delegates was made by Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau, president general of the D. A. R. and vice chairman of the conference, and Mrs. Boyce Ficklen, jr., the chairman and national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, sounded the keynote of the conference in her address.

Paul V. McNutt, national commander of the American Legion, put his organization on record as believing that the construction of the fifteen cruisers asked in the pending bill is "in the interest of peace, and in the interest of eventual agreement to limit navies to the necessities of police work on the high seas."

The sessions of the conference will continue today in Memorial Continental Hall when a number of Government officials and leaders in national defense will be heard.

ROBBERY WITNESSES IDENTIFY PRISONERS

$50,000 BAIL DEMANDED

Centerville, Mich., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Further identification of Ralph A. Wood and Cecil Holt as participants in the $75,000 robbery of the Sturgis, Mich., National Bank, was claimed today by James T. Sloan, acting prosecutor of St. Joseph County. Wood and Holt, arrested on information furnished by Mrs. Grace M. Wood, the former's estranged wife, whom they have accused of plotting to kill Wood, were subjected to another "show-up" in the county jail today.

After the visit to the jail, Sloan said that one more witness had identified Wood as the one-armed man who stood with a pistol in his hand at the front door of the bank during the holdup, and that two others had identified Holt as the man who got into the cashier's cage and scooped up $15,000 in cash and $60,000 in securities. The names of those who connected Wood and Holt with the robbery were not given out by the prosecutor. It was understood seven witnesses of the robbery took part in the "show-up" today.

Likelihood of the legislature investigating the case, agitated last night in the house of representatives, appeared remote today.

A resolution urging such an investigation was in the hands of the house rules and resolutions committee, but its chairman, Representative Alonzo B. Green, said it would require "deliberation" before any action could be taken toward reporting it. Gov. Fred W. Green also indicated he did not favor a legislative inquiry and added that he would not order an investigation into the conduct of the State police in the case.

Arnold Zeleznik, counsel for Wood, intimated arrangements to post the $50,000 bond required of his client had been completed and that his release was expected by tomorrow. Counsel for Holt announced no effort would be made to obtain the same amount of bond for his client.

$24,000,000 DRY BILL BRINGS TILT IN HOUSE

Session Cut Short to Permit of Decision on Handling of Measure.

WOOD ASKS CONFERENCE

(Associated Press.)

For the second time in two years the House yesterday cut short a session to solve a problem of parliamentary procedure, the trouble developing this time over how to consider the prohibition and tax refund items in the deficiency appropriation bill.

The day had been set aside to take up the $24,000,000 increase for prohibition enforcement and the $75,000,000 item for tax refunds, and a virtually full membership was on hand. After an hour of wrangling, adjournment was taken to enable the rules committee to decide upon the procedure to be followed.

Committee Meets Today.

The committee will meet today to consider the perplexing parliamentary situation. It first had planned to convene yesterday afternoon, but when it was found other business would prevent consideration of the deficiency measure by the House today, the meeting was postponed.

A year ago the House got into a somewhat similar situation over the McNary-Haugen farm bill, which President Coolidge later vetoed. At that time the House debated at length whether an amendment which had been adopted killed the equalization fee provision of the farm measure, and it was not until the next day that the question was straightened out.

The trouble developed yesterday almost at the outset. Representative Wood, of Indiana, who by virtue of seniority on the appropriations committee, is in charge of the deficiency measure, called the bill up and asked that it be sent to conference with the Senate.

Move to Block Bill Foiled.

If this motion had been adopted, the House, for the time being at least, would have been prevented from voting on the $24,000,000 increase in prohibition funds which was tacked on the measure by the Senate with the provision that its expenditure should be directed by the President. Shortly after Wood's motion had been offered Representative Garner, of Texas, who, with several other Democrats, favors approval of the prohibition item, countered with a suggestion to debate the proposal.

After further discussion Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, Republican leader, moved adjournment and this carried by a vote of 195 to 93. His proposal was supported largely by Republicans, with Democrats voting in the negative.

The voting had been preceded by several heated exchanges, with the Democrats pressing for a record vote on the direct questions of prohibition and tax refunds. They argued that a vote later on final approval of the bill, after revisions by a conference committee, would not be an expression of the views of the House on those specific proposals.

Garner for Showdown.

The verbal strife began with Garner pressing Wood for a promise that if the House consented to have the bill go to conference with the Senate, the Indianian would bring these two proposals back to the House for a vote before disposing of them.

Wood said he understood that under no circumstances would the Senate recede from its position on the matter and that this would force the conferees to come back to the House for a vote.

Garner, however, pressed for a specific promise that, even if the Senate should recede, the questions would be submitted for a vote in the House, but Wood and Representative Cramton, of Michigan, another member of the appropriations committee, argued that this would tie the hands of the House conference committee.

Day in Congress

SENATE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 4:50 to noon today.

Agreed to limit debate on the cruiser bill beginning Monday.

Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, offered an amendment to the bill authorizing the President to halt construction of the cruisers if another arms limitation conference is arranged with Great Britain.

Senator Reed (Democrat), Missouri, announced he would speak on the cruiser bill today.

Lloyd Hill, of Fort Worth, told the committee investigating patronage charges in Texas that R. B. Creager, Republican national committeeman of the State, had "protected" some Texas hotels from prohibition raiders.

Appropriations committee added $2,298,858 to the War Department supply bill for the construction of Army airplanes.

Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio, denied the statement made in the trial of Bert Buckley, Ohio State treasurer, that he had protested against the raiding of the Jackson Brewing Co., of Cincinnati, during the last political campaign.

Immigration committee decided to call Government officials before it Monday to get further information on the bill to postpone for a year the operation of the national orgins provision in the immigration act.

Senator Reed (Democrat), Missouri, introduced a bill to amend the interstate commerce act by including natural gas pipe lines under its provisions for regulation of rates.

HOUSE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 12:45 to noon today.

Delayed action on the deficiency bill containing $24,000,000 additional for prohibition enforcement until the rules committee could recommend a course of procedure.

Ways and means committee heard witnesses who want higher tariff duties on fruit juices.

Attributing his health and long life to "the providence of God," Maj. Charles M. Stedman, of Greensboro, N. C., the only Confederate veteran serving in Congress and the oldest member of the House, celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday anniversary yesterday.

The Democratic veteran was kept busy receiving the congratulations of his friends at the Capitol. Many messages also were received from various parts of the country.

Attention of the House to the birthday of Maj. Stedman was called by Representative Clarence Cannon, Democrat, of Missouri. The House members arose and lustily applauded. Maj. Stedman has served 20 years in the House and having been reelected, will be 90 years old when he retires. He appeared in the House yesterday as "chipper" as he did when he took his seat in Congress.

Taking frequent baths seems to keep the doctor away from Maj. Stedman. He takes two or three baths a day and washes his hands and face at least ten times a day. He is an inveterate smoker and is not a prohibitionist. During the 20 years' service in the House, Maj. Stedman has not been sick one day and holds a record of being at his office every day while Congress was in session. He said yesterday he plans to retire when he has completed his term in the next Congress.

In addition to the demonstration in the House, the United Daughters of the Confederacy observed the birthday anniversary by founding a new chapter at a meeting in the Woman's Party headquarters. Senator Francis E. Warren, Republican, of Wyoming, the only Union veteran serving in Congress, attended the meeting to pay his respects to his old friend and former foe.

Mrs. Charles Fisher Taylor, organizing chairman of the new chapter, and other charter members, greeted the two distinguished veterans.

Maj. Stedman served with Gen. Robert E. Lee and was wounded three times. He was with Lee at the Appomattox surrender.

Often Maj. Stedman is referred to as the "bluebird." He is a great lover of birds and believes the singing of the bluebird s an omen of good luck. When he was in the war between the States he often told his command when the bluebird sang the gray line would win. According to his friends, this prediction generally came true. He is a profound student of history and lover of tales of Napoleon. He reads late at night and never uses glasses.

Maj. Stedman believes modernism is sweeping away much of nature's handiwork. In commenting on current events, he admonished the American citizens to guard State rights.

Maj. Stedman was born January 29, 1841, and after the war received a degree in law and later married Miss Katherine De Rossett Wright, of Wilmington, N. C. He was elected lieutenant governor of North Carolina and then sent to Congress.

King Unchanged; Queen Heads Council Meeting

London, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—King George's condition tonight remained unchanged. It was not thought necessary to issue a medical bulletin. Lord Dawson of Penn, the royal physician, paid his usual evening visit.

Queen Mary presided at the meeting of the privy council held in Buckingham Palace today dealing in routine business. The Duke of York and Stanley Baldwin, the premier, were among those attending.

bands in their mother's clubs. Lord Declifford and the Earl of Kinnoull are Mrs. Merrick's sons-in-law and both of them were waiting for her at the gates when she was released from prison in December.

The rather tragic queen of night clubs combines an unusual business acumen with motherliness and simplicity. She gained control of a dozen clubs, including one in Paris, after a long struggle for existence. A number of years ago she was thrown on her own resources with six children to support. She established a dance club, and in 1918 her first club, Dalton's, was raided and closed.

As her clubs continued to grow she was assisted by her daughters and they attracted the patronage of many prominent members of society. Her clubs became luxurious places which were frequented by society leaders, and until her recent encounters with the law Mrs. Merrick was without doubt commander in chief of London's night life.

EMBASSY RUM SALES REFUTED BY RECORD

TOO LITTLE TO BOOTLEG

Diplomatic liquors a bootleg channels exist largely in the imagination of Washington bootleg patrons, the United Press learned yesterday from an authoritative source.

An examination of liquor import records to foreign embassies and legations disclosed not "enough to float an ark" as has been charged by dry speakers and some members of Congress but scarcely enough to dampen the decks of a good-sized ark.

For 1928, foreign diplomats brought into this country an average of 50 cases monthly, a grand total of 1,800 cases for the year. This figure includes both whiskies and wines and is about the average yearly business of a prosperous bootlegger.

Only 8 Bottles Per Month.

With approximately 250 officially accredited diplomats, the importation for last year would permit each one less than eight bottles a month. And as nearly 75 per cent of all liquor imported was wine, the diplomatic consumption is not regarded as excessive according to standards in their respective countries.

Representative Celler, New York Democrat, recently asked Prohibition Commissioner Doran for figures on diplomatic liquor importations but was refused on the grounds of "diplomatic courtesy." Once before, in 1923, the House asked Secretary of Treasury Mellon, for similar information, which was denied.

The United Press, however, was able to learn from an unquestionable source the amount of diplomatic liquor importations.

One Exception to Rule.

With one exception—that of Venveslas Sokolowski, former Secretary of the Polish Legation, who was recalled to Warsaw—no embassy, legation, diplomat or attache has ever been known or suspected of diverting privileged liquors into illegitimate channels.

And in the case of Sokolowski, the State Department later made an apology for the police raid, which resulted in the legation secretary's recall.

So the "embassy liquor," which has drawn fire in congressional and dry speeches, dwindles down to nothing but good "sales talk" by enterprising bootleggers.

About the only thing genuine in some purchases of "embassy liquor" is the bottle. Bootleggers have been known, it was learned, to collect empty liquor bottles from the embassy and legation trash piles, refill them and offer the official-looking bottle as "genuine stuff."

Empty Bottles Saved.

Some bootleggers, it was said, have arranged with servants of certain embassies to save empty bottles for them.

One incident was called to the attention of prohibition enforcement officers, where a kitchen employe of one of the larger embassies had established connections with a well-known bootlegger and was apparently engaged in selling diplomatic liquor.

An investigation disclosed the so-called imported liquor was a home-made product and the embassy employe's name was used merely to give an air of genuineness to the transaction.

No diplomat can secure a custom's bureau permit to import liquors without the signed approval of the chief of the embassy or legation, which is transmitted through the State Department and then to the Treasury Department.

All ambassadors and ministers, it was pointed out, are very careful in signing requests for liquor importations so as not to cast reflection on their diplomatic status.

Liquor Is Locked Up.

Also, it was said, practically all embassy and legation liquors are kept under lock and key under the personal supervision of the men entitled to it.

The diplomats, it was explained, pay for their liquors out of their own pockets and are not passing out to servants or minor employes liquor which might be diverted into illegitimate channels.

Several cases have been known where legations, after large entertainments, have run short of liquor, because of the limited supply, and were forced to borrow from other legations.

"If a bootlegger offers to sell you a bottle of 'genuine embassy liquor,'" an official high in the Government service said, "you can be sure it is nothing but pure, unadulterated bunk."

BRIG. GEN. WILLIAM E. HORTON.

GEN. W. E. HORTON SLATED TO RETIRE

VETERAN OF SPANISH WAR

After more than 30 years service, Brig. Gen William E. Horton assistant quartermaster general and chief of Army construction service, will retire from the Army February 1.

Gen. Horton was born in this city graduating from Georgetown University Law School and entering the District of Columbia volunteer infantry regiment in the Spanish American War in 1898. He took part in the San Juan Hill battle and received a silver star citation for gallantry.

He remained in the service and fought in the Phillippine insurrection, being recommended for the congressional medal of honor for gallantry at Taboatin Bridge in 1899. He was assistant chief quartermaster of the Philippine department and later quartermaster of the brigade to subjugate Malver, successor to the insurgent leader, Aguinaldo.

In the World War he was chief quartermaster of the advance section of the A. E. F., and received the distinguished service medal and many foreign honors for this work. He became a permanent colonel in 1920 and a brigadier general in 1927, having been in charge of Army construction projects totaling $50,000,000 during the past year.

Pay Increase Given Railway Employes

36,000 to Share in Grant of $3,500,000 Given by the Pennsylvania Road.

Philadelphia, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—A wage increase amounting to $3,500,000 a year and affecting 36,000 employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad was announced today after a conference of company officials and employes' representatives.

The prevailing wage rate, to become effective February 1, will be 82 cents an hour, an increase of 4 cents an hour for those affected.

Twenty-two representatives of the management and 34 representatives of employes attended the meeting, the latter including shopmen, machinists, boilermakers, blacksmiths, sheet workers, carmen, electricians, coach cleaners, helpers and apprentices.

The agreement was signed for the employes by F. H. Davis, chairman of the Eastern region and New York zone; Charles Mode, Western region; L. M. Graham, Central region, and J. J. Gluntz, Altoona Shops. H. A. Enochs, superintendent of wages and labor, signed for the management.

Paraguay Ready to Trade Prisoners With Bolivia

Asuhcion, Paraguay, Jan. 29 (U.P.).—The government has advised the Paraguayan Legation at Washington that it is willing to arrange for an exchange of prisoners with Bolivia, it was learned on good authority tonight. The prisoners were taken in the recent Gran Chaco boundary clashes. Paraguay will insist, however, that Bolivia issue a list of the names of prisoners, as has been done here in regard to Bolivian prisoners.

Madge Bellamy explains the growing popularity of Old Golds in Hollywood

"The 'hero' in a movie may easily become the 'villain' if he coughs at the wrong time. A cough isn't nice at any time, but when it interrupts the taking of a movie scene, it's a calamity! Re-takes are costly!

"The high tension of movie work makes smoking a vital relaxation. But we relax with OLD GOLDS. They're so smooth, as smooth as the polished manner of Adolphe Menjou, who himself is an OLD GOLD fan.

THE CRUISER SITUATION.

The agreement to limit debate upon the cruiser bill, with the prospect for a vote on Monday, discloses the fact that opposition to the bill is not only weaker than was pretended, but is crumbling. The threatened filibuster has failed to materialize. There is no indication that the various efforts to emasculate the bill have gained any votes.

Information obtained at the White House yesterday brought out more emphatically President Coolidge's previously clear statement that whether an arms limitation agreement be reached or not, the cruisers provided for in the pending bill will be needed. No agreement providing for substantial equality between Great Britain and the United States would require the scrapping of any of the proposed cruisers, as the total American cruiser tonnage with the new cruisers added would still be below the British total.

If the pending bill proposed to build a cruiser tonnage in excess of the British tonnage, there might be some point to the argument that a naval race is proposed. But there is nothing competitive in the building of fifteen new cruisers.

Mr. Coolidge has also helped the enactment of the bill by intimating that no limitation conference is contemplated. This information, taken in connection with the statement by Sir Austen Chamberlain last Saturday night, to the effect that Britain has no proposal to make for a conference at this time, removes from consideration such proposals as that made by Senator Norris, providing for a suspension of building in case of a conference. There is no pressing reason for a conference so long as the two governments are not engaged in competitive building. Neither government presumes to suggest to the other what it should build or not build. Each should provide what is needed, and Great Britain has done so.

The suggestion that Congress should eliminate the time clause from the bill, thus making the building of cruisers a matter of doubt; in the hope that an agreement can be reached with Great Britain that would make the building of cruisers unnecessary, is unwise for two reasons. In the first place, the United States Navy must be maintained in an efficient state if it is not to be worthless, and the new cruisers are needed to replace old and obsolete vessels. Secondly, failure by the United States to build new cruisers would be a poor way to induce Great Britain to come to an agreement, because any agreement in such circumstances would require Great Britain to scrap vessels already built. Great Britain will not scrap any vessels. To do so would be to give the lie to all that British statesmen and naval experts have asserted as to the necessity of guarding British sea routes by a sufficient naval force.

Since no naval race is threatened by the new cruiser program, and since the United States Navy should be kept reasonably up to date, no valid argument can be made against the passage of the pending bill, which will require the ships to be laid down in 1929, 1930 and 1931.

LOSS OF CAPABLE OFFICERS.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, Assistant Engineer Commissioner of the District, has resigned from the Army, giving as his reason the fact that "there is little future in the Army for an officer who was appointed from civil life following the World War." His resignation automatically vacates the post of Assistant Engineer Commissioner of the District, which he has occupied since June, 1926.

Several measures are before Congress, each of which seeks to remove the so-called hump in which some 5,000 officers find themselves as a result of the expansion of the Army during the war. These officers under the present promotion scheme have no opportunity of advancing to the higher commands to which their age and experience entitle them. They can not look forward to retirement upon adequate pensions. They are enmeshed in a web from which there is no release except by resignation. If Congress will alter the promotion system their future will be made secure. If Congress fails to act, or delays action much longer, the more capable officers caught in the hump will resign to accept positions in civil life in which they can build up a competency.

Capt. Whitehurst is an able officer and efficient executive. As Assistant Engineer Commissioner of the District he was in charge of the highways, bridge, surveyor's, sewer, and trees and parking departments. His resignation because of dissatisfaction with promotion prospects is not unique. Frequently of late competent young officers have resigned for this reason. If Congress believes that there is anything to be gained by keeping efficient younger officers in the Army, it should act upon promotion readjustment legislation.

THE HOOVER-SMITH MEETING.

The most bitter and disappointed partisan should see in former Gov. Smith's visit with President-elect Hoover yesterday morning the happy end of the strife that marked the recent campaign. At the conclusion of the 25-minute chat Mr. Hoover is represented as saying that he was glad Mr. Smith had called, and the latter said he felt honored. They talked, according to reports, of incidents of their respective campaigns, and each seemed to be in the most jovial spirits.

A good precedent was set in the meeting. During campaigns it is inevitable that partisans should get the idea that the deepest enmity exists between rival candidates. When the election is over, however, a President has been elected for the entire people and the sooner animosity is obliterated the better it is for the country. Mr. Hoover and Mr. Smith set a good example by their friendly meeting, in which vanquished congratulated victor and wished him "all the luck in the world."

During the coming four years the American people, Democrats and Republicans alike, will stand solidly behind the President. They may differ in matters of policy; they may divide on disputed issues, but so far as vital affairs are concerned they will stand united as Americans. Former Gov. Smith, leader of the Democratic party, called upon Mr. Hoover only as an individual desiring to wish the President-elect well, but he set an example for leaders of the defeated party that should be followed through the years.

THE CHANNEL TUNNEL.

Possible highway connections between England and the continent and between Spain and Africa are seen in projects which are drawing considerable discussion on both this and the other side of the Atlantic. Meeting in Paris, the French committee on construction of a tunnel under the English Channel has approved the project and pledged collaboration with members of the house of commons in the effort to get the approval of that body. Prime Minister Baldwin has laid the matter before parliament and announces that an impartial examination of the project will be made.

For 60 years the proposition of building a tunnel from England to France has been under consideration. The proposal has now taken precedence over the scheme to bridge the Channel, and it appears that it can only be defeated by the militarists of Britain. A poll of the house of commons shows that a large majority of the members are in favor of the tunnel, but there is still some fear that in case of war it would provide an open path for invasion of England.

From an engineering standpoint the tunnel would be an easy problem. The only exceptional feature would be its length. One estimate of the cost is $145,000,000. On the other hand, engineering difficulties loom much larger than military questions in the proposed construction of a tunnel under the Straits of Gibraltar to connect Morocco and Spain. Because of the depth of the straits, it is doubtful if this latter project will be undertaken for many years, if it is ever found feasible.

It is significant to note that while England has heretofore looked with disfavor on the proposed underwater highway to France, the vice president of the French tunnel commission forecasts that "on the day that the tunnel is completed England and France will have found the real road to peace."

GOVERNMENT ECONOMY.

"I do not claim," said President Coolidge in his address of Monday night delivered before the budget and administrative officers of the Government, "that action by the National Government deserves all the credit for the rapid restoration of our country's business from the great depression of 1921, or for the steady progress that has since taken place. Unquestionably, however, wise governmental policies, and particularly wise economy in Government expenditures with steady reduction of the national debt, have had a dominant influence. The people gained confidence in themselves because of increasing confidence in their Government. The reduction in taxes made possible by the cutting down of Government expenditures left more income in the hands of the people; it likewise helped to provide funds for building up the capital of the country and augmenting its productive capacity."

The budget system, inaugurated in 1921, needs no defense by the President or others. When it was started the entire governmental structure, possibly as an inevitable aftermath of war, was permeated with extravagance. The people were not getting an honest dollar's worth from their tax dollars. Industry was struggling beneath heavy tax levies. The time had arrived when drastic remedies were vitally needed, and a revolutionary system was adopted under which the primary authority for the recommendation of all departmental estimates was centralized in the President, for whose information and advice the Bureau of the Budget was established.

President Coolidge, in his speech, spoke of the progress the budget movement has made. He called attention to the fact that the country today stands at its peak of efficiency and productivity. This could not have been accomplished, he said, unless the Government had set an example and unless it had cooperated wisely and benevolently with business.

But, said Mr. Coolidge, "the expenses of the Federal Government during the last year are showing a tendency to increase. It would be a big mistake to suppose that we can continue our national prosperity with the attendant blessings which it confers upon the people, unless we continue to insist upon constructive economy in government."

No warning of the perils of extravagance is necessary. The American people recognize the benefits of constructive economy, and they have elected to the Presidency a man who will attend to the systematic conservation of the Government's revenue.

MODERN YOUTH.

An investigation by the American Social Hygiene Association has brought out the fact that "youth is finding itself again." The investigators made a sweeping inquiry into the morals of the boys and girls of the country and while they report that there is some ground for the impression that youth has been deteriorating, they find that delinquencies of the younger generation have been greatly exaggerated. The survey proves that human nature is the same as it has been for ages, and that the popular tirades against youth are running true to form.

A recent dispatch from Albany states that the problem of crime among the young is one of the serious problems facing New York State. The State Commission of Correction has taken the situation in hand, pointing out that 14,552 youths between the ages of 16 and 20 were committed to institutions inspected by the commission during the last fiscal year. When it is considered that during the same time a total of 109,448 males were committed, the number of youths amounting to but 13.3 per cent, it appears that there is greater need for some panacea to keep the adult population from going wrong. From 1920 to 1925 the population of that State increased 7.4 per cent, but there was no corresponding increase in the commitments of youths; and the percentage of the prison population of youthful years has remained practically the same for the last six years.

However, figures are not needed to show that there is nothing wrong with the youth of today. It is to be expected that the present generation will furnish its quota of irresponsible and mischievous imps as every other age has done; and it is likewise to be expected that some who still cling to "the good old days" will hold up their hands in holy horror at the innovations of the young. Certainly an investigation is not necessary to determine the salutary attitude toward life taken by the modern boy and girl. Only in the days when frankness was frowned upon as immodest and children were to "be seen and not heard" was it necessary to turn a moral microscope on youth to determine the state of social health.

The open-mindedness with which the modern youth looks on life should be an asset in keeping him out of crime. It is difficult nowadays to lead a boy into criminal ways, because he knows more about the world and is not easily duped. If the chronic critics of the modern generation would devote their efforts to providing wholesome activities for boys and girls without suppressing their enthusiasm, the country would be farther along the way toward solution of delinquencies.

Mr. Mellon says the country owes almost a billion less than it owed last year. He'd be surprised.

Afghan patriots refuse to obey the laws designed to modernize them. What could be more modern than that?

HOOVER'S THOUGHTS WHILE FISHING.

"Well, this is a waste of time and energy, but it gets me away from the politicians for a few days, anyway . . . I'd enjoy it just as much as if I could lie on the deck and rest but I've got to fish, I suppose . . . They got this trip up as a fishing trip and if I didn't fish I'd be roasted editorially all over the country . . . The people expect a President-elect to fish and I've got to do it no matter how much I hate it.

"Let's see . . . What am I fishing for? . . . I read in last night's papers, but I forget what they said I was to catch . . . Now what was it? . . . Swordfish? . . . Nope, it began with an 's' but it wasn't swordfish . . . Shrimp? . . . Certainly not! . . . Sea bass? . . . Salmon? . . . Sturgeon? . . . I think I cut a piece out of the paper so I'd remember what I was fishing for . . . Yes, here it is . . . Here's the item . . . It says 'The President-elect will fish for sailfish, barracuda, dolphins and kingfish and is expected to bring back a big catch' . . . Well, I guess I've got to go through with it.

"Somehow it seems so silly . . . There's no sense to it . . . Me out here pretending to be interested in fishing when everybody knows I'm chiefly concerned just now with my cabinet . . . What if I did get a sailfish? . . . What good would it do me? . . . I couldn't make it Secretary of State . . . And that's what I want at this minute, a Secretary of State, not a sailfish . . . Still, I'd as soon have a sailfish as my Secretary of State as some of these candidates they're trying to get me to name.

"Ah! . . . A strike! . . . What is it, Mark? . . . Huh? . . . A barracuda, eh? . . . Quite a big feller, too . . . I'll have to pose with it for the press and movies when I get in, of course . . . It's a nice size for picture purposes . . . But outside of that, what good is it? . . . I can't make it Attorney General and it would make a goofy looking Secretary of War . . . Oh, if I could only solve my cabinet problems this way! . . . Just drop over a line and haul in a beautiful specimen of Attorney General or the best Secretary of the Navy ever landed on a light rod! . . . Heigh-ho!

"Another one! . . . What's it this time? . . . A dolphin, eh? . . . All right, dolphin, old boy, I'll make you Postmaster General and, Mister Barracuda, I'll appoint you Secretary of the Interior . . . No, you can't be Secretary of State; I'm saving that for a sailfish!

"Well, they've stopped biting now . . . That's fine! . . . It'll give me a chance to rest and think . . . Now, let me see . . . I'll keep Mellon as Secretary of the Treasury . . . Bill Donovan ought to make a good Attorney General, although I suppose his appointment will stir up a row . . . Morrow will have to stay in Mexico . . . Henry Fletcher is a pretty good man for . . . Hey! . . . For heaven's sake what a bite! . . . It's a sailfish! . . . What's the use? . . . These darned Florida fish won't let a feller pick a cabinet!"

Atlanta Constitution: It is said that the haberdashers at Washington are getting in a supply of oversized hats for the hordes that will invade Washington for the inauguration of Hoover

Poor Amullah.

New Orleans Times-Picayune: Amullah of Afghanistan proved too Eastern for great respect in the West, and is now found too Western for his subjects of the East. And since there isn't any middle ground for him to inhabit, what shall a poor emir do?

'Tis Usually So.

Boston Transcript: France has recently celebrated the centenary of the birth of the man who invented the metal eyelet, which causes wonder how a man with a name as majestic as Francois Jean Guillaume Gobin-Daude condescended to devise an object so insignificant.

On the Other Hand.

Philadelphia Record: Called for jury duty in a liquor case, a Washington resident said he had never heard of prohibition. His case is doubtless rare enough to be news. Persons who have heard of prohibition but have never seen it, on the other hand, are quite common.

Wary Males.

Topeka Daily Capital: A Massachusetts woman who advertised for a husband reports that she has received a "raft of letters" from women who ask her to send them the names of wooers that she doesn't pick, showing that when it comes to marriage there are altogether too many male slackers in this country.

The Idols Fall.

Ohio State Journal: One by one our idols are overthrown and now they tell us that Buffalo Bill used scattering bird shot and not rifle bullets when, galloping around the arena, he shattered glass balls thrown into the air and we suppose some prominent iconoclast will be discovering next that young David had a machine gun that time he went out after old Goliath and got him.

8c Whisky.

Boston Post: The Canadian whisky combine reports to its stockholders that the total manufacturing cost of its product is between 8 and 10 cents per American quart. If it costs only 8 to 10 cents to manufacture a quart of real whisky it must cost a good deal less to make fake whisky. That may explain why the profits in bad booze can be split so many ways and give all concerned a lot of money. If it were not for these enormous profits there might be more hope of curbing the bootleggers.

Trouble in Georgia.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: More trouble down in Georgia over Stone Mountain. Not so long ago there was a formal unveiling of a part of what is to be a gigantic sculptured memorial to the Confederacy. On that day all the troubles of the past, including the long quarrel with Gutzon Borglum, the first sculptor to undertake the work, were forgotten. Along the face of the cliff Gen. Lee was about to ride forever with his marching men—great stone figures against a great stone background.

But will he? Two of the original owners of the site have entered suit to recover the mountain side. They charge the Monument Association with waste, extravagance, insolvency and loss of the public confidence and claim that failure to complete the main carving in twelve years has ended the deed of gift. It will be a pity if this picturesque undertaking ends in the welter of another lawsuit and backbiting failure. There was something fine about it that deserved a kinder fate.

A Man Is No Bigger Than the Thing He Quarrels About.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

TWO friends, who were closer than brothers and never had exchanged hard words or irritated one another, went hunting in the North woods.

A blizzard caught them and they carried their little store of provisions into a deserted cabin and there awaited the storm's passing.

Snow piled high against the cabin windows and made them prisoners. They knew they could not get out for weeks.

At first their imprisonment was an adventure. They laughed much. Their mutual love was insurance against boredom.

But men seldom are greater than their environment. And all values are relative. An income that provides abundance in a village will not pay the rent of a desirable apartment in a metropolis.

The two friends began to lose their sense of values. One complained because the other whistled. One spoke sharply because the other sharpened a knife too much. They snarled for days and then relapsed into sullen, brooding, dangerous silence.

When they were free they tried to resume their old comradeship, but they had discovered littleness in one another and each felt self-conscious and ashamed.

Nearly all of the world's unhappiness can be traced to a similar case.

Men in prison scheme and plot to get a little tobacco. Their rages and rejoicings are caused by incidents that would not attract the attention of free men.

Men in the Army, their horizon limited by the regulations, will brood for days because of an unkind word and fight to avenge the theft of a cigarette butt.

Married people, hedged in by law and custom, will quarrel over the hanging of a picture or make themselves miserable for a week because a piece of toast was burned.

Childish? Of course it seems childish. And yet the victims of such childishness are as helpless as a sick man in the delirium of fever.

When they permitted their horizon to close in and began to focus their attention on small things, they lost their sense of values as inevitably as night follows day.

Man's one hope of remaining manly is to keep his interests wide—to think big. If his thoughts are focused on the job next above him, or a plan to improve his community, or any other thing bigger than himself, his sense of dignity will not let him quarrel about the repainting of kitchen chairs.

Intimate associates fight over trifles because soul imprisonment has taken away their sense of humor. If they stoop to shameful scenes they would have scorned a year ago, it is because they have "gone native." They have shrunk to fit their environment.

LEGISLATIVE PUBLICITY.

There is to be no publicity for speeches in the lower house of the Hungarian Parliament except by grace of the premier and the speaker, observes the New York Evening Post. In this way criticism of the government voiced in the lower house can be kept from reaching the public.

Such a procedure is at variance with the spirit of this age, but it would not have been surprising in the mother of parliaments itself a century and a half ago. At that time the public reporting of anything said or done in parliament was prohibited. Nevertheless, there was a certain amount of such publicity, some of it facilitated by a man who was destined to become one of the greatest figures in English literature—Samuel Johnson.

Johnson wrote the Gentleman's Magazine, which was published by Edward Cave, who had obtained access to the houses of parliament and therefore was able to obtain notes of what went on. Before Johnson's connection with the magazine it had been publishing accounts of speeches and votes in parliament without any attempt at concealment. But this course had led to the passing of a standing order declaring that "it is an indignity to, and a breach of, the privilege of this house for any person to presume to give, in written or printed newspapers, any account or minute of the debates or other proceedings" and threatening those responsible for any such publicity with "the utmost severity."

To evade this order, the Gentleman's Magazine printed its accounts of parliamentary proceedings under the heading, "Reports of the Debates of the Senate of Lilliput," or some similar title. France was referred to as Blefuscu, London as Mildendo, William Pulteney as Winged Pulnub, and so on. The notes which were supplied to Samuel Johnson were sometimes so meager that he had to invent a large part of the speeches, both of the ministry and of the opposition. Being a stout Tory, he took care, as he confessed years afterward, not to let the "Whig dogs" get the best of it in his reports.

As late as 1771, parliament tried to stop the publication of its debates. In that year it ordered several printers into custody, including those of the Morning Chronicle and the London Evening Post. But this step was a last desperate move. The very next year the newspapers published reports of what went on in parliament and were not interfered with. Their right to do so has never since been seriously questioned.

Now there is provision by parliament itself for the accommodation of reporters, although technically they are still at the mercy of any member who addresses the speaker in the ancient formula, "I spy strangers." In England, as in this country, the cardinal sin which a newspaper can commit against a public man nowadays is not to print his speeches.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

A Stroke for Economy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I note through your paper that the Senate has adopted a joint resolution authorizing an appropriation of $25,000 to maintain order during the inauguration of President-elect Hoover. To further our present administration's economy policy I suggest that the Senate authorize an appropriation of $5,000 in its stead and pay to each of the Smith supporters $1 with the understanding that he or she is to keep peace during the inauguration. If this meets the approval of the Senate and is adopted you may instruct that my $1 be mailed to my address. Thank you. J. L. WATSON.

Norlina, N. C., Jan. 28.

Representative Bell's Denial.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read the article in Sunday's edition of your paper with reference to the amendment of Senator Harris, of Georgia, proposing an appropriation of $24,000,000 for the use of the administration in the prosecution of the prohibition law of the country. There is only one statement therein which directly refers to me, which explains why I have confined my correction to this one statement, which reads as follows: "Harris and Bell, arriving at Cleveland, a courthouse town, for an advertised speaking engagement, appeared at the courthouse and found no one there to hear the addresses. It seems to have been decided that the anti-Smith headquarters in Atlanta would make a lot of capital of such a circumstance, so the two men set out to drum up a meeting," &c., &c. I do not now the author of this statement, but I do know that he has a lengthy stretch of imagination or that he deliberately wanted to misrepresent the truth. The fact is, I was not present at the meeting referred to, was in a different section of the State, and had no speaking engagement there.

THOMAS M. BELL,
Representative Ninth District of Georgia.

Washington School Teachers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While the future of the Washington schools is being argued pro and con, we have heard a great deal about keeping the schools for Washington teachers. That sounds well and patriotic, but how many genuine Washington teachers have we in the District system? I would like to bet on the question. There are teaching in the Washington schools a very small percentage of teachers born in the city. The greater number of them are "foreigners."

If the schools are to be rid of these not Washingtonian, we must get a new superintendent, all new assistant superintendents, new supervisors, about 85 per cent new teaching personnel, some new janitors, a new board of examiners, new telephone operators, new clerks, and in some instances new members of the Board of Education.

This is foolishness, of course. Why should Washington, or any other place, object to bringing in new teachers? Competition is good in any line of business, and any business that would fill its measure with the odds and ends of every Government department, as was done ten years ago, and keep the curious anomaly for life, would soon die of self-strangulation, just as our schools will suffocate if some remedy is not to be had.

The genuine Washington teachers and their friends are not afraid of any amount of fair competition. They welcome it. What is to be regretted is that the Board of Education has not seen fit to open up things some so that new teachers will have an opportunity to come into the system. That will give the genuine Washingtonians an opportunity to displace any that can not measure up regularly to fair civil service examinations at regular intervals.

A WASHINGTONIAN.

X. ELEMENTARY SCIENCE.

Aims and Purposes.

In the study of elementary science the child is put into a closer relation with the natural world, thereby helping him to identify himself as a part of it. Through knowledge of the laws and forces of nature the teaching of elementary science seeks to help the child to become a more intelligent observer in the out-of-doors and to become inclined to explore, discover and invent. It is desired through such instruction to develop seekers of truth who by a study of cause and effect may become independent thinkers, and arrive at a better understanding of the world in which they live. Out of his experience with materials and processes there comes an enrichment of the child's knowledge of the purpose and the products of man's industrial activities. It is hoped thus to make the developing child a more valuable member of the home and the community, a conserver of material things and beautiful things, one who contributes and does not destroy.

Methods of Instruction.

Methods and materials used vary with the grade and subject. Methods are: Observation carried on in classroom study of living creatures and other concrete material; museum trips, field excursions, and outdoor lessons; informal exchange of experiences; games, songs, and dramatization; assignment of individual and group projects followed by reports; experimentation with laws and forces of nature simple enough for pupils to work out conclusions for themselves.

Time.

In the District of Columbia the teaching of elementary science begins in a simple way in the kindergarten and is continued in all of the higher grades. In the grades above the third the average time given to it is 40 minutes a week.

Results.

Results in elementary science are of two kinds. There are the concrete results in the form of notebooks recording the work in grades 4 to 8. Telegraph sets, radio sets, electric bells, telephones, windmills, airplanes, kites and water wheels are examples of toys made by pupils to illustrate principles of modern science. Bird boxes, baths and feeding shelves, as well as clubs for bird study follow lessons on birds. Conservation clubs form in some schools as the result of forestry lessons. Thermometers, barometers and snow gauges are made after studying weather.

Abstract results can not be measured easily, but are perhaps the more important. Pupils gain a knowledge of the laws and forces of nature and therefore bring into the home a better understanding of the appliances which operate upon scientific principles. They learn to recognize the common birds, flowers, trees and insects, as well as the principal winter constellations. They learn to observe more accurately and feel a deeper interest in the out-of-doors. This leads to a better attitude toward wild life in general, arouses a desire to conserve the natural resources of the nation, and fosters an increased respect for the laws of nature and of man.

FREE INAUGURATION SEATS ARE ALLOTTED

Directors Increase Facilities for 8,000 "Distinguished Guests" at Capitol.

TEN TICKETS FOR SENATOR

An increase in the apportionment of free seats on the Capitol Plaza for the inauguration of President-elect Herbert Hoover to provide for at least 8,000 "distinguished guests" was announced yesterday at headquarters of the inaugural committee in the Willard Hotel.

Under the new apportionment each senator will receive ten seats and each representative four, instead of the arbitrary four for each member of Congress originally allocated. In addition to members of Congress, others entitled to the coveted stubs are the presidential and vice presidential parties, each foreign ambassador and minister, two each; a total of 100 to members of the Republican national committee; a total of 100 to governors of States; a total of 100 to State committee chairmen; distinguished guests invited, 100, and escorts for those guests, 50. There also will be accommodations for the ten members of the G. A. R. guard of honor and for the chairman of the general inaugural committee and his four vice chairmen, and for newspaper men and photographers.

Colored visitors from every State in the Union will attend the inaugural, R. R. Horner, general chairman of the committee appointed to make arrangements for the colored visitors, predicted yesterday. Horner has more than 100 persons assisting him on various committees, including housing, entertainment, transportation, medical aid and others, with headquarters at Grover Cleveland School, Eighth and T streets northwest.

The contract for printing the parade stand tickets was let yesterday to the Globe Ticket Co. A total of 28,000 seats is now provided for, excluding the stands between the Capitol and Thirteenth street on Pennsylvania avenue. This area is being left open pending a decision as to whether seats there will be let on concessions or built by the committee.

Visitors will have their choice of several tours of the city, ranging between an hour and eight hours in time and between $1.50 and $10 in cost. An official list of places of interest to be visited has been prepared by a committee headed by Miss Mabel Boardman and will be given to visitors.

Official guides, under management of Arthur Hall, transportation and guide chief, will be available for those who wish to see the sights. Parties will be made up to cover the city under official guides.

JURY ACQUITS MAN WHO SHOT INTRUDER

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Frederick Ledbetter, accused of having shot and killed Thomas J. Beatin, Roselle Park, N. J., movie theater operator, when the latter forced his way into Ledbetter's apartment here last November while Mrs. Beatin was visiting there, was found not guilty of the murder charge by a jury late this afternoon.

The jury brought in the verdict after deliberating 37 minutes. Mrs. Elizabeth Beatin, the slain man's widow, collapsed when the verdict was read. Ledbetter's defense was based on self-defense and defense of his home. It was testified that Beatin made a motion toward his hip pocket as he entered the Ledbetter apartment, whereupon Ledbetter opened fire.

Mrs. Beatin, who had been separated from her husband, had planned to marry Ledbetter when divorced. She testified briefly on the stand yesterday, but answered only a few questions of relative unimportance.

Following the verdict today, friends of Ledbetter attempted to stage in the courtroom a demonstration, which was quickly suppressed by bailiffs.

OKLAHOMA GOVERNOR FACES NEW CHARGES

Legislature Passes Three Additional Articles of Impeachment Against Him.

INCOMPETENT, ONE SAYS

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Three additional articles of impeachment tonight faced Henry S. Johnston, suspended Governor of Oklahoma, who is scheduled to answer to eight charges before the senate court of impeachment Thursday.

By one of the largest votes let recorded in an impeachment charge against Johnston, the house of representatives late today adopted an article alleging general incompetency. The other two charges like four previously voted, charged the illegal issuance of deficiency certificates.

A condiment of rumor gave added flavor to the day's inquisitorial proceedings, which were curtailed by consideration of the new charges. A State representative who has remained friendly to the Johnston administration said he had heard the suspended governor discharge his much-discussed confidential secretary, Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, on the day he was temporarily removed from office. Mrs. Hammonds denied the rumor promptly, admitting that she had been asked by numerous friends to resign. Johnston refused to comment on the report.

The article charging incompetency was adopted by a vote of 72 to 26. In the discussion which preceded the action, D. M. Logan, Okmulgee County representative, who had voted against the adoption of all preceding charges announced he would vote for it. Logan was an administration supporter in the attempted impeachment session of 1927, and argued against the adoption of previous charges.

Logan, an attorney, said he believed the house had no jurisdiction in the other articles but that the incompetency charge came specifically under the provisions of the constitution.

Largest Theater Sold; Buyer Pays $6,000,000

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The Hippodrome, the world's largest theater, was sold today for approximately $6,000,000. Although the purchaser, Frederick Brown, a real estate operator, would not disclose his plans, it was indicated that he had a new project in mind for the site and the famous theater might be razed.

In former days the theater, built in 1904, was the scene of many entertainments for visiting celebrities and many notables, among them Sarah Bernhardt, have appeared there. It passed to the Shuberts in 1910 and five years later was taken over by Charles Dillingham. In 1922 it was acquired by the Keith-Albee interests.

Representative Zihlman Purchases Glass Plant

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 29.—Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, of the Sixth Maryland District, becomes owner of the plant of the Zihlman Glass Co. located in North Cumberland, a deed for the property having been executed to him by Z. N. Hewitt, Albert E. Zihlman and Frank A. Treiber, receivers, by order of the court today. Sale of the property to Joseph A. Zihlman was ratified by the court. Joseph A. Zihlman, the highest bidder it is cited, bought the property as agent and in behalf of Frederick N. Zihlman. The amount of the sale is shown as $7,000.

The plant was erected several years ago as a cooperative concern, but became involved and closed down. Representative Zihlman is himself a practical glass blower and holds membership in the Cumberland local.

It is said the plant will resume.

The Film

that is found by dental research to discolor teeth and foster serious tooth and gum disorders.

DON'T be discouraged if teeth are not white and sparkling. You have 9 chances in 10 that they are merely coated with a dingy film. This is what has been found in thousands upon thousands of cases.

You can quickly see by trying the special dentifrice called Pepsodent that removes film where ordinary methods fail to act successfully.

What film is

Film is the great enemy of teeth and gums—a chief cause, according to world's dental authorities, of most tooth and gum disorders. Film absorbs the stains from food and smoking and gives that cloudy look. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays.

Film hardens into tartar. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. To remove film, use the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent. It acts to curdle film and easily remove it in gentle safety to enamel.

Don't expect the same results from old-time dentifrices. See for once and all how white and bright teeth really are. Get Pepsodent at any drug counter, or write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

6 MEN ARE INDICTED ON MURDER CHARGES

George Bongers Will Be Tried in Wife Slaying; Four as Holdup Perpetrators.

38 TRUE BILLS RETURNED

Six men were charged with first degree murder and another was accused of manslaughter in indictments handed down by the District grand jury yesterday to Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy in criminal division of the District Supreme Court.

A total of 38 indictments were reported and five persons were exonerated of criminal charges. One of the charges ignored dealt with manslaughter, while another was one of homicide.

George Bongers, 43 years old, was charged with first degree murder of his wife, Mrs. Eva Iola Bongers. Following a quarrel over domestic difficulties, Bongers shot and killed his wife in Pension Park on October 5 and then attempted to kill himself. Mrs. Bongers died three days after the shooting, while Bongers lay in a hospital for weeks in a critical condition. He is said to have confessed the shooting to police.

The fatal shooting of Philbert J. Bittner, gasoline filling station manager, on Thanksgiving night resulted in first degree murder charges against four negroes, Joseph Hardy, James E. Crawford, Carl M. Terry and Benjamin Branson. The indictment against the quartet is in ten counts, in which charges of premeditated murder while in the act of attempting to rob the filling station at Sixth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest are made against the four.

Killed Woman, Is Charge.

The other man accused of first degree murder was Lawrence A. Gray, colored. He is accuseed of shooting Mary C. Brown, also colored, during the course of an argument at 1745 Kalorama road northwest, on September 16.

Manslaughter was charged against Daniel Lambert, colored, as the result of the death of William Smith, also colored. Lambert was accused of causing Smith's death during an alteraction on December 5, at 5718 Blaine street northeast.

Two charges of assault with intent to rob and with a dangerous weapon were made against James Venney, colored. The victims of the attack were Mrs. Lillian Funkhouser, of 211 C street northwest, and Miss Catherine Downing. Venney, it is charged, struck the woman over the head with bricks and attempted to rob their purses on the night of November 3.

Housebreaking and larceny was charged in indictments against Wesley S. Smith, John Glenn, Daniel E. Lee, and Robert J. Brooks. Indictments charging grand larceny were made against William Richardson, Hazel Curtis Marie Huff and George Young. Accusations of robbery were made against James Walter Randall, Frank P. Thomas, Merrill Monroe, John F. Coltrene, Calvin Scott and Raleigh Vrannock, alias Raleigh Bannock.

Assault Laid to Three.

Alphonso Hill, John O. Mason and Thomas Simms were indicted on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon. Joy riding was charged against Stanley P. Sampson, Joseph P. Fletcher, George Bell and Roosevelt Rogers, while Phillip McAbee was accused of joy riding and grand larceny. Hezekiah Randolph was accused of carnal knowledge; Latimer Matthews, housebreaking; Frank M. Drake, false pretenses; Arthur Wilson, Lawrence E. Caylor and Thomas Ballard, nonsupport of minor children; Lew Kekenes, larceny after trust. Delana Duff, alias Jack Perry, violation of the White Slave law; Karl Esper, forgery and uttering; Jerome Belser, nonsupport of wife and children; and Melvin J. Quinn, removing mortgaged property.

A charge of manslaughter was dismissed against Hyman Weiner. The youth was accused of operating a motor truck which struck and fatally injured Mrs. Annie Shea, on November 28, but Weiner protested he found the woman lying in the street and brought her to a hospital, where he was arrested.

Silas Carter, colored, was exonorated of a manslaughter charge in connection with the death of Ruth Lewis, who was fatally wounded on August 1 at 312½ Virginia avenue southwest. The jury held the shooting was accidental. The jury also ignored a charge of larceny after trust against Lew Kekenes, who was indicted on a similar charge; depredation of property against Pewee Paul and housebreaking and larceny against William Wright.

Family Will Share In Estate of Auth

Widow and Five Sons to Split Property Under Will of Merchant.

The family of Nikolaus Auth, president of the N. Auth Provision Co., who died January 14, were name beneficiaries of his estate in his will, which was filed for probate yesterday in the District Supreme Court.

Mrs. Frances M. Auth, his widow, was left all his household effects, including automobiles and farming machinery, proceeds from certain insurance policies, and use of the home property on Bladensburg road northeast and land in Glen Echo, Md., during her life or widowhood. At her death or remarriage, the real estate is to be divided among his five sons, John N., J. Frank, A. Anton, J. George and J. Henry Auth. The sons, according to the will, are also to divide the remaining estate.

A codicil of the document gave Mrs. Auth use of property in Atlantic City, N. J., which, at her death or remarriage, is devised to two of the sons, A. Anton and J. Frank Auth, with the conditional stipulation that they pay $1,000 to each of the other three sons. A. Anton and J. Frank Auth are named executors, while Attorneys Tobriner and Graham represent the estate, the full amount of which was not disclosed.

Utilities Commission Cited in Deposit Case

The Public Utilities Commission was cited by Justice Wendell P. Stafford in the District Supreme Court yesterday to show cause on February 8 why it should not be required to give a decision on the application of the Washington Consumers Guild, asking that the Washington Gaslight Co., the Potomac Electric Power Co. and the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. be required to furnish the guild with service without a deposit.

The petition was filed with the commission through E. F. Riegel, of 26 Jackson place northwest, who explained to the court that the application was filed some months ago and that the commission held a public hearing in December, but had not handed down a decision.

GLOTH STATUTORY CHARGE IS DROPPED

WAS ARRESTED IN RAID

Accusations of a statutory offense made against William C. Gloth, commonwealth's attorney of Arlington County, Va., and Edith Scudder, after a raid on the woman's apartment last February, and which were scheduled for trial in Police Court in the near future, were dropped yesterday.

The action was taken by Assistant District Attorney Joseph C. Bruce following a conference with District Attorney Leo A. Rover. It was decided that evidence against the defendants was insufficient to bring the case to trial, Bruce said.

The raid in which Gloth and the co-defendants were arrested was conducted by Lieut. Jerry Sullivan, of the Tenth Precinct, at the request of Mrs. Marjorie Gloth, estranged wife of the Arlington County prosecutor.

Several weeks after the raid Gloth called at the home of his wife in Clarendon, Va., to discuss domestic difficulties and was critically wounded by Mrs. Gloth. As a result of the shooting, Mrs. Gloth was convicted of a felonious assault and was sentenced to a year in Arlington County Jail. She served a few months of her sentence and was pardoned by Gov. Larry Byrd of Virginia shortly before last Christmas.

Stolen Bond Plot Is Charged to Trio

Woman and Two Men Held in Pittsburgh for New York Authorities.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—A woman and two men, indicted in New York and arrested here in connection with what Government representatives believe a conspiracy involving the sale of many thousands of dollars worth of stolen securities, today were given preliminary hearings and tomorrow extradition proceedings will be started.

Charles H. Knapp, recently released from prison after serving a year and a half following his conviction in the $320,000 Brotherhood Saving & Trust Co. bond swindle here, and his wife, Irma, were placed in $5,000 bond each. Benjamin (Bennie) Diamond was held in $10,000 bond. Mrs. Knapp and Diamond obtained bondsmen but Knapp was still in jail tonight.

Rentschler Made Head Of Aviation Association

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—F. B. Rentschler, president of the United Aircraft & Transport Co., of New York City, and of the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Co., Hartford, Conn., was elected president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce at its annual meeting today. He succeeds Maj. Lester D. Gardner, of New York.

THIRD MAN IS HELD IN ATTEMPTED THEFT

Jack Schroth Is Apprehended in Prince Georges; Friend Seriously Wounded.

BONDS FIXED AT $1,000

Jack Schroth, 24 years old, of Capitol Heights, Md., yesterday was arersted in connection with the alleged robbery attempt early Sunday morning in which William H. Benton, 38, Hyattsville painter, is alleged to have been shot and critically wounded. Schroth was arrested in a poolroom at Capitol Heights by Sergt. H. G. Machen, of the Prince Georges County police, and Constable L. M. Walden.

Benton is in Casualty Hospital in a critical condition, although doctors now believe that there is a chance for his recovery. He steadfastly refuses to admit to police that he took part in the robbery attempt to which his niece and her husband, Gerald Stroup, of Riverdale, have confessed, police say.

Schroth and the Stroups, in company with Benton, are alleged to have attempted to rob the store of W. A. Davis at Buena Vista, Md., early Sunday morning. Davis fired several shots at the intruders and is believed to have wounded Benton. Schroth and the two Stroups are being held in $1,000 bond each for the grand jury as accomplices in an attempted burglary. Benton has been charged with attempted robbery.

Davis also was taken into custody yesterday by the police and held as a material witness. He was released on $1,000 bond.

Convicted Slayer's Pal Goes on Trial

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Richard G. Gallogly, former college student, today was identified at his trial for murder as the youth who stood in the door of a drug store here the night George R. Harsh, member of a prominent Milwaukee, Wis., family, shot down Willard Smith, the manager, when he offered resistance to an attempted holdup.

Gallogly was identified by T. N. Kilpatrick, a clerk in the store, one of the first State witnesses against the youth, who was jointly indicted with Harsh for the slaying. The Milwaukee youth is under death sentence imposed January 19, when a jury found him guilty of murder.

The trial of Gallogly, who is a member of a socially prominent family here, moved forward rapidly. A jury for his trial for slaying of Smith the night of October 16, was selected at the first session of the court and without preliminaries the State plunged into its case, calling Dr. O. Artega, an interne at the hospital where Smith was taken mortally wounded, to describe the course of the bullet that four days later caused his death. The State did not outline its case to the jury.

Padlock Action Is Begun Against C Street House

Padlock injunction proceedings were instituted in the District Supreme Court yesterday by District Attorney Leo A. Rover and Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Orcutt against the first floor and basement of 1313 C street northwest. Tessie Richards, tenant, and Lorenza Costa, owner of the building, were named defendants.

It is charged that liquor was sold on the premises on eight different occasions between January, 1928, and last October.

Don't let Rheumatism make an invalid of you.

THOSE muscular pains, commonly called rheumatism, are generally due to a run-down condition, with the number of red-blood-cells below the normal count.

S.S.S. aids the system in building up these red-blood-cells and in getting rid of the condition of which the rheumatism is but a symptom. The body becomes strong and disease-resistant, and the rheumatic pains go.

Pains in your muscles and joints make you miserable, less efficient, interfere with your working hours, ruin your sleep. If allowed to continue, as the years pass the danger increases.

But what a change with rich, red-blood-cells in your body—Nature's building material—making the flesh firm—giving strength to the vital organs.

You can't rub rheumatism out. It is deeper than that. It must be knocked out. And the sure way is by helping the fighting blood—the red-blood-cells!

Increase your army of "workers" (red-blood-cells), and those muscle and joint pains, commonly called rheumatism, vanish. S.S.S. has brought this change about for thousands. Why not for you?

"After suffering several years, six bottles of S.S.S. completely relieved me of rheumatism. It also cleared up a skin eruption and gave me a good appetite. I think S.S.S. is a wonderful medicine."
R. L. Buric, Southern Railway, Knoxville, Tenn.

"I was very nervous; had hardly any appetite, and suffered with rheumatism. I tried many medicines, but S.S.S. is the one that did me the most good. I am now well, and feel like a new man."
William Osborne, 2406 Sloan Street, Flint, Mich.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

ORCHESTRA CHARMS IN UNIQUE PROGRAM

QUAINT GEMS WELL READ

One of the most unusual programs of the concert season in Washington was given at the New National Theater yesterday afternoon by the Philharmonic-Symphony Society Orchestra of New York City, led by Fritz Reiner, conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, as guest conductor.

Instead of the usual symphony, the program consisted in the main of three orchestral suites, "The Birds," by Respighi; "The Scythian Suite," by Prokofieff, and "Escales," by Ibert. This procedure gave opportunity to the orchestra and its gifted leader to develop many orchestral graces and daintiness of tone coloring, which contributed additional delights to the concert.

Fritz Reiner, whose splendid work as conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra is well known in the world of music, exhibited a thorough command of the organization which has gained a wide following in the National Capital.

Players Highly Responsive.

The members were responsive to the slightest movement of his energetic and unerring baton. Mr. Reiner understands the art of leadership as do few conductors, which is to coordinate the individual abilities into a comprehensive musical whole. The ensemble tone was of rare beauty, yet the different voices were each given their moments in the court of music and the differing colors of each movement given separate emphasis.

After the opening number, "Festival Overture, 'Chanticleer,'" by Mason, the charming "Birds Suite" enchanted all. The different bird movements were pleasing, but "The Hen" and "The Nightingale" stand out in memory for incomparable phrasing, exquisite melodies and realistic tone pictures of the birds represented.

Two Preludes by Bach.

That Mr. Reiner also knows Bach thoroughly was revealed in his masterly direction of the two chorale preludes by that master, which closed the first part of the program. These miniature symphonic poems were played in a way to stress their tender and mystical loveliness.

Quaint melodies, unique rhythms and memorable tone effects abounded in the Scythian Suite, by Sergei Prokofieff. In its four movements there was much variety.

The program was concluded by "Escales," a suite of three little travel sketches, dainty and of the French impressionist school, adding still more novelty to the afternoon's program.

NEW WORLD DICTIONARY

Based on the Original Webster Entirely New.

The publishers of the New World Dictionary have in past years, in cooperation with hundreds of newspapers, distributed millions of good dictionaries to newspaper readers on the popular coupon plan at a mere nominal cost.

It has been the ambition of the dictionary publishers to make and distribute in like manner a larger and more comprehensive dictionary. With this idea in view, expert lexicographers have been at work for years compiling and editing such a volume. Due to the cost of manufacturing a larger dictionary the task until recently has seemed impossible to accomplish except at a higher price. Expert mechanical engineers have, however, installed labor-saving machinery now being used for the first time. By this means the cost has been reduced to a point where the new book can be distributed, through the cooperation of a large number of newspapers, at the surprising rate of 98 cents per copy.

Our language has changed with the passing of the years. Many words have become obsolete. The meaning of words has changed and thousands of new words have come into use, all of which has had the expert attention of the editors of this better dictionary. It has been designed to meet the demand for a dictionary, which shall be complete in its vocabulary, accurate in its definitions and contain the latest and newest words whose general use warrants their incorporation into a dictionary. It contains not only the ordinary words in general use, but the new and unusual words, many never before published in any dictionary, all of which will be found in regular alphabetical order in the main vocabulary. This dictionary also has a very complete list of synonyms and antonyms, as a separate section, a complete summary of English grammar and many other features of educational value.

It can be obtained only through newspapers on the popular coupon plan. The first coupon is printed elsewhere in this issue. Only three coupons clipped on consecutive days is required to enable readers to obtain this superior volume at a mere nominal rate.

OFFICIALS VARY IN OPINIONS ON BENEFIT FOR GAMBLERS

blers. The gamblers are on the run now in this city and they know they are on the run."

Senator Capper said he was shocked when he read about the benefit performance in The Washington Post. However, he said that he did not plan to do anything about it.

Disgusting, Capper Says.

"It seemed to me rather a disgusting demonstration," Capper said. "I can't quite understand why there should be so much appreciation of what these four convicted gamblers did.

"I have heard a good deal about this sort of thing in Chicago, but this is the first time I ever knew it could happen in Washington. Truly, I am amazed."

Two audiences witnessed the program at the Gayety Theater last Monday after midnight, cleft down the middle because they either were "in the know" or didn't know that friends of four convicted Washington gamblers were rallying to the aid of four destitute families.

Those who weren't "wised up" through sub rosa channels—the wondering but innocent majority—saw just a great big rip-roaring night of entertainment at another midnight show with unaccountable spontaneity, but those who knew were sitting on a strange tribute to the convicted four who chose jail to "squealing" on their comrades in a recent gambling raid. The show went on with only one audible reference to its cause.

Jimmy Lake on Stage.

That was made by Jimmy Lake, old-time star of the burlesque circuits, who was master of ceremonies. "It's for a good cause," Lake said. Well known to those "in the know," but vague at best to the men and women in the audience who were there with the demi-world of the city because it was whispered about a few days before that there would be a "big time at the Gayety Monday night."

What reformers like to call Washington's gangland was there—the bookmakers, bootleggers, gamblers and assorted other racketeers—as well as the doctors, lawyers and business men who had heard about the "big time at the Gayety."

The show went on and Jimmy Lake pulled the strings. He keyed them to interest, stirred them to joviality, instilled the spirit of camaraderie into the whole 2,000 and checked them at the point of revelry with the admonition that "this is a respectable show."

Variety On Show Bill.

The repertoire was complete. The entire casts of the Gayety, the Strand and the Howard were there. The show ran the gamut of burlesque, vaudeville, classic specialties vocal and instrumental and those "in the know" knew that the acts were gratis. And Jimmy Lake was there to temper the feeling that the lid was off. It lasted from midnight to 5 a. m.

Lake, with the tact that is born of long experience on the stage, with his inevitable white carantion, endeavored to instill a spirit of refinement in the atmosphere of things and almost succeeded.

The tipsy little girl who sat on the rail of an upper box would have none of propriety, nor would hundreds of others. They said it was to be a big night and why not?

Specialties Are Presented.

The Gayety's own stock company opened the bill with selected portions of the show. Following in rapid order came the acts from the Strand, where a competitive company is playing; the appearance of Wesley Eddy, master of ceremonies at the Palace Theater, who rendered a couple of songs to the accompaniment of the Palace pianist and cornetist; songs by the Mohawk Quartet, of local fame; jazz specialties by singers, dancers, and the band from the Howard Theater, and miscellaneous tid bits by the amateurs lucky enough to be there.

"The big time at the Gayety" wound up with the figurative reentrance to public life in the District of Joe Freeman, sports promoter of the early 20's here. As the final act, Freeman, one of the sponsors of the benefit program, presented Joe Turner, his former protege, in a wrestling match with the inevitable Masked Marvel.

Gibson Arraigned On Check Charge

Washington Playwright Accused of $7,000 Fraud in Shanghai.

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—William Preston Gibson, playwright, of Washington, today was arraigned before Federal Commissioner O'Neill on a complaint charging the raising of a check in Shanghai. He was held under $3,000 bond for hearing March 20 in removal proceedings.

Gibson, a son of the late Senator Randall Gibson, of Louisiana and a nephew of the late Chief Justice Edward White of the Supreme Court, was arrested in Vancouver almost a year ago on his return from Shanghai, where he is accused of having defrauded merchants of $7,000.

The arrest of Gibson was made on a warrant issued by the United States District Court in Shanghai, information concerning which was cabled to Federal Attorney Charles H. Tuttle by George Sellitt, United States attorney at Shanghai.

"Sax" Drives Away Thoughts of Cold!

He thought he couldn't play that night, but the cold he'd caught that morning had departed. Most professional people know what really knocks a cold in a few hours; many go through the winter without any trouble from colds. It's a compound that comes in little white tablets. Take one, and that first snuffle is just about the last; or several tablets if you've let the cold go until it's serious.

No truly anti-knock motor fuel is being sold except at a premium

Every motorist is familiar with the "knock" or "ping" which comes in a gasoline motor under strain. This "knock" is, strictly speaking, a fuel "knock," and is noticeable particularly in motors with high compression and motors fouled with carbon.

Some gasolines "knock" more than others. But all gasolines have a tendency to "knock" as the compression is raised in the motor.

The majority of cars today are built to operate satisfactorily on a gasoline like "Standard," that is scientifically refined and properly proportioned.

However, there is an extra degree of driving satisfaction in using an "anti-knock" fuel, especially in a high compression motor, or in one that is carbonized from long usage.

But such a fuel must be a genuine "anti-knock" fuel, and no such fuels are being sold, except at a slight advance over the price of gasoline.

This is obvious, since genuine "anti-knock" fuels are compounds of high grade gasoline with other products, which eliminate the "knocking" tendencies of the gasoline, and such products cost more to make.

There is no governmental standard against which the "anti-knock" quality of fuels can be measured. As a result, and through lack of standardized methods of measuring, many fuels are claimed to be "anti-knock," when they are only partially so.

In its research laboratories, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has developed a method of rating the "knock" of fuels. These scientific tests show conclusively that only a few motor fuels are genuinely "anti-knock."

Of these genuine "anti-knock" fuels, the very best is ESSO, rightly called "the Giant Power Fuel." It is made and sold by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

We guarantee ESSO to be a genuine "anti-knock" fuel, with other qualities which make it, in our opinion, the best motor fuel obtainable anywhere at any price.

Thousands of motorists are now using ESSO, finding that while they pay slightly more per gallon for this fuel, they get an extra engine performance never before experienced.

Try ESSO once and experience the extra driving satisfaction it gives. For sale everywhere at the Silver ESSO Pumps with the ESSO Globes.

WRIT TO BE SOUGHT TO STAY EXECUTION

CONDITION LAID TO STRAIN

New Orleans, La., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Complete failure having attended efforts at Washington today to obtain from Supreme Court justices a stay of the execution Friday of Dr. Thomas E. Dreher and Mrs. Ada Bonner Leboeuf, attorney's tonight planned to seek tomorrow a writ of habeas corpus in Federal Court here.

Five justices were asked by Walter B. Hamlin, attorney for the pair, condemned for the murder 18 months ago of the woman's husband, for a stay to permit him to file a petition for a review by the Supreme Court of the action of the Louisiana courts in denying a lunacy commission to determine whether the woman and the physician are sane. All refused.

Defense attorneys tomorrow plan to seek a writ from Judge Wayne G. Borah, of the United States District Court, on the allegation that two of the jurors admitted they had been intimidated and that the condemned pair had not received a fair trial.

If Judge Borah declines to act, the attorneys are expected to carry the fight for a new trial to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and if necessary, again to the United States Supreme Court.

This move is expected to be the last hope. An appeal for commutation probably will be made to Gov. Long, but he has consistently refused to commute the death sentence.

Snatched twice from the hangman's noose by reprieves, Dr. Dreher and Mrs. LeBouef are now declared by their counsel to have become insane from the strain.

One Coast Guard Freed; Jury Has Second's Case

Elmira, N. Y., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—With the indictment against Frank L. Beck dismissed by Federal Judge John R. Hazel on the ground of insufficient evidence, the case of the other defendant coast guardsman, Glenn Jennings, charged with manslaughter, for the shooting of Jacob D. Hanson, prominent Elk, went to the jury today at 2 o'clock.

The indictment against Beck was dismissed by Judge Hazel shortly after the opening of court this morning, after United States Attorney Richard H. Templeton had made his third motion for the defendant's discharge. Judge Hazel's decision was made on the ground that there had been no evidence to show that Beck had any connection with this particular case.

RITES FOR LEWIS E. REED.

Funeral Plans for Housing Corporation Head to be Made Today.

Funeral arrangements will be completed today for Lewis E. Reed, 56 years old, president of the United States Housing Corporation, who died unexpectedly Monday night in his apartment at 3701 Sixteenth street.

Mr. Reed became president of the United States Housing Corporation a year ago, succeeding Robert Watson. He became treasurer of the corporation in 1920. He came to Washington in 1918 after having been connected with several hotel corporations. He was a member of the Washington City Club and of the Manor Country Club.

SMITH AND HOOVER JOKE OVER ELECTION

paign after all, so the governor declared, and the President-elect undoubtedly concluded that if the man before him could look at it that way then he certainly could.

Looking back, observers agreed that of all the callers Mr. Hoover has had the governor is probably the first one to give him a hearty campaign laugh. They were 25 minutes at it. Mr. Hoover and Mr. Smith, with Mr. Raskob and Mr. Kenney remaining sort of quiet just as they have always been in "Al" Smith's life, always at his side, but letting the governor have the show. It is generally believed to be Kenney with his many millions who is largely giving the governor this much-deferred vacation. His first taste of America's concentrated luxury—the same Kenney who told the Senate campaign investigation committee very frankly that he hoped Mr. Smith would campaign in his private car and that he would contribute all the money the governor needed in his campaign.

Yet he was just as quiet and retiring, not awed, as Mr. Hoover and the governor talked, as he is whenever newspaper men sweep around his friend to ply him with questions.

The get-together of the two men—victor and vanquished—was so lacking in restraint, so cordial, in fact, that it is reasonable to suppose Mr. Hoover told his best joke—about the time in China during the Boxer trouble, when the Germans stole a cow belonging to him and Mrs. Hoover. They didn't know who had stolen the cow, but they wanted it back very much for the rich milk that it gave. So they led the calf through the streets, kicking it or punching it in the ribs every now and then to make it "moo." Finally the mother cow heard the call and responded with her "moo," so the Hoovers went to the Germans to claim their cow—and the Germans took the calf.

The friendliness of the two men and the cheerful atmosphere of their meeting was far different from the attitude of R. L. McKenny, publisher of the Macon, Ga., News, who came out of the Hoover home just as the governor appeared.

"Am going to wait and see Smith," he shouted to newspaper men. "It was our people who fixed him," and he parked his car on the side of the drive way to see Smith come in. McKenny's paper was the only large Georgia daily that refused to support Smith. It has always been strong for prohibition.

Leaving Mr. Hoover, the governor and his party drove back in a driving rain to the Miami Biltmore Hotel at Coral Gables for breakfast. He is not used to being up so early, so in order to fill his appointment he had to go without breakfast. Then after breakfast his friend, J. M. Smoot, president of the Miami Jockey Club, appeared to take him to the races. But the governor suggested in that way of his, that he did not want a swim. So the Smith Day at the races was postponed until Friday.

The rain and the decided drop in the temperature today made fishing out of the question for Mr. Hoover. He may get away for another outing tomorrow.

Founder of Catholic Women's League Dead

Montreal, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Miss Bellelle Guerin, founder of the Catholic Women's League of Canada, died last night. She received honors from two Popes for her service to the church.

Miss Guerin founded the league in 1910 at a small gathering at her home after the Eucharistic Congress in Montreal. Today the league has a membership of 35,000.

She was en route to Charles Town, W. Va. The body was removed from the train here and will be returned to Vermilion tomorrow.

PRISONER'S BATTLE ON TRAIN IS FUTILE

"Boston Billy," on Way to 50-Year Term, Is Subdued by Three Officers.

STOLE LIVERMORE GEMS

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—"Boston Billy" Williams, otherwise James Francis Monaghan, former street corner tough boy of Worcester, Mass., almost kept his promise today to "beat the rap."

"The rap" was 50 years in prison, and the man who police say netted $1,000,000 in thefts and ended up with a cash capital of a "sawbuck," early this morning took another desperate chance in the series of dramatic episodes he has packed into his 26 years.

First, he kicked down a guard while the train in which he was being returned to prison was being transferred here, seized the officer's pistol and then, temerarily freed of handcuffs, threw it through a window of the wash room and tried to crawl out. Another guard, a detective, rushed in, drew his revolver and fired as Monaghan tried to worm through the shattered glass.

The bullet tore a furrow through Monaghan's scalp and he fell back to the washroom floor with the cry, "You've got me this time."

The bullet, fired at an angle, sped on, drilled through the steel wall of the Pullman car and flattened itself against the opposite side of a berth in which a woman and her baby were sleeping. Neither was hurt.

Leaping to his feet, Monaghan fought like a caged cat, in spite of his wound. He grappled with the detective while a third guard, who was on the platform, rushed in. A blow from a blackjack ended the struggle and the handcuffs were snapped once more on the criminal's wrists. Tonight, his head bandaged, Monaghan lay in his cell in Dannemora Prison at Clinton, his dream of freedom still a dream.

"Boston Billy" is the thief and gang leader who committed the $100,000 jewelry robbery in the home of Jesse Livermore, at King's Point, Long Island, in 1927.

R. L. Slagle, University Head, Dies Aboard Train

Undersecretary Mills' Father Dies

Noted Financier and Patron of Arts Was 72 Years Old.

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Ogden Mills, financier and patron of the arts, died at his home in East Sixty-ninth street early today of pneumonia. He was 72 years old.

At his bedside were his son, Ogden L. Mills, Undersecretary of the Treasury, and his daughter, the Countes of Granard. His other daughter, Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps, is in Palm Beach attending the illness of her own daughter.

Born in Sacramento, Calif., Mr. Mills received his elementary education in that State and later came East to complete his studies at Phillips Exeter Academy and Harvard.

He only recently began to relax from the responsibilities of an active business life. He was an officer in several corporations and a director in many others. His contributions to art included donation to the Metropolitan Museum of Art of the George Catlin colection of Indian paintings and a collection of bronzes.

His wife, the former Ruth Livingston, whom he married in 1882, died in 1920. They had homes in New York, Newport and Paris.

Ogden Mills was a son of Darius Ogden Mills, a descendant of early colonial stock who went to California during the gold rush of 1849, where he organized the bank of D. O. Mills & Co., in Sacramento, and later the Bank of California, of which he was president for many years.

Woman Literary Editor Dead in Indianapolis

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Miss Anna Nicholas, literary editor of the Indianapolis Star, died here this afternoon, following a recent operation. She was 79 years old.

For more than half a century Miss Nicholas was a prominent figure in literary and newspaper circles of Indiana. She was credited with being the guiding genius to many Hoosier authors and writers who achieved Nation-wide fame. It was Miss Nicholas who gave the late James Whitcomb Riley the inspiration he needed when, as a timid youth from Greenfield, he came to her desk with his earliest poems.

Prince Edward Island's Former Premier Dead

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—John H. Bell, 80, former premier of Prince Edward Island, Canada, died in a hospital here today. He was struck down by an automobile and his skull fractured here Saturday night. An inquest will be held tomorrow.

POPE AND PREMIER PLAN PAPAL STATE

Act Through Intermediary to Reach Agreement on Roman Question.

SETTLEMENT HELD NEAR

Rome, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Pope Pius and Premier Mussolini are now in direct contact for settlement of the historic Roman question through Ernesto Pacelli, advocate, who daily visits first one and then the other.

The position of intermediary has been entrusted exclusively to Pacelli, who played one of the leading parts in the recent agreement for a settlement. He is the brother of Mgr. Pacelli, papal nuncio in Berlin.

Signor Pacelli is charged with presenting the ideas of the pontiff and the premier to each other. He goes from the papal apartment in the Vatican to Premier Mussolini's private house and holds daily conversations with him, after which he returns to the Vatican to report the duce's ideas to the Pope. In turn he gets new instructions regarding what position to take with the premier when he reports back.

All this negotiation leads to the conclusion here that the conversations are nearing an end and that there may shortly be some official announcement or some manifestation that an accord has been reached between the Pope and the premier.

The fact that both the Pope and Premier Mussolini have identical maps of the land about the Vatican which it is proposed to incorporate in the newly formed papal state is considered as lending color to reports that a settlement is nearer than has hitherto been suspected. It understood the pontiff and premier are now virtually agreed as to the delimination of the Pope's projected independent domain.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole. Jars and Tubes.

This extravagance menaces health

To brush teeth and forget gums, is an extravagance that may demand as its price health, beauty and youth. In this life of ease and luxury, gums are undernourished and under-exercised. If neglected, they surrender to diseases that sweep the system and often cause loss of teeth. Only dental care can stem the advance of gum diseases once they are contracted. Prevention is easier and less painful.

Be liberal with yourself. See your dentist every six months. Continue to brush your teeth. But also brush gums vigorously with the dentifrice designed to help keep them firm and sound . . . Forhan's for the Gums.

When you have used this dentifrice for a few days you'll notice a vast improvement in the way your gums look and feel. In addition, note how effectively and safely it cleans teeth and helps to protect them from decay. Get a tube of Forhan's from your druggist and start using it today.

HUGE THRONGS SEE 1929 AUTO MODELS

SALES TOTAL INCREASED

Continued seasonable weather again yesterday and last evening drew additional thousands of motoring enthusiasts to the Washington Auditorium, where the Ninth Annual Automobile Show is well on its way to new records for attendance. The visitors, in addition to being numerous, further made their presence felt by the general intelligent interest displayed in the wide variety of 1929 models on exhibition.

Members of the show committee and exhibiting dealers agreed that never before has there been in evidence such a thorough understanding of the displays. An overwhelming proportion of the show visitors, it was asserted, go to the Auditorium with an impressive background of automotive knowledge, which they are seeking to bring completely up to date by inspecting closely the very latest mechanical improvements incorporated in the more than 150 models of 36 makes which are on display.

The dealers report that visitors are firing questions at them which demand fairly technical explanation and, they state, most of the questioners not only appear able to absorb the information readily, but frequently pursue the matter into details. This keen and intelligent interest is regarded by members of the Washington Automotive Trade Association, which sponsors the exhibition, as being an excellent development since, they point out, "there is a real appreciation of the remarkable work the engineers of the industry have done upon the 1929 cars."

The attendance last night was said by show officials to have been the largest this year and among the largest ever seen at the local show. The total number of visitors since the opening last Saturday now is known to be well in excess of that during the corresponding period of last year's exposition and with the show continuing for the remainder of the week it seems certain that a new record will be set. Although last night's crowd was extremely large, little congestion was reported, the throng finding ample room in the wide aisles and the spacious booths.

A generous volume of sales is reported by the exhibiting dealers, and in this respect also it is forecast that last year's show will be eclipsed.

Rudolph Jose, chairman of the show committee, will speak over Station WMAL this evening in a radio feature sponsored by the Washington Automotive Trade Association. His subject will be "Automobile Safety in 1929." Musical numbers will round out the program.

THERE is no gainsaying the tremendous popularity of the new De Soto Six. The public has heaped upon this magnificent Chrysler-built six a record of success without precedent or parallel in the industry.

From August 4—when the first announcement was made—to December 31, more than 35,000 De Soto Sixes were built and shipped from the factory, and demand is insistently calling for more.

Thus De Soto Six comes to its first automobile show with a record of success never before attained by any new car in its initial five months of production. Again, the public pays eager tribute to the beauty, comfort, performance and value that only Chrysler can give in a car so moderately priced.

For Boils—apply
Dr. Gordshell's all Healing Salve

Having prescribed "Dr. Gordshell's Salve" for more than 40 years, and having knowledge of same for more than 50 years, I wish to say that I have found it an excellent preparation in the treatment of Boils, and similar eruptions.

We have sold it in our drug store for the past 50 years, and have had good reports of its effects.

I write you this letter, feeling that physicians should be more thoroughly acquainted with its merits.

Very truly yours,

WASHINGTON CITED AS CITY OF WEALTH

Surpassed Only by Nineteen States, R. A. Lewis Tells District Bankers.

DAIRY MERGER IS VOTED

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

With the wealth of its residents surpassed only by that of nineteen States, and its population "estate minded" to a degree not found generally throughout the country, Washington offers an exceptional field for the development of the trust business, Reuben A. Lewis, secretary of the trust company division of the American Bankers Association, last night told the new fiduciaries section of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, at its first dinner meeting at the Willard Hotel.

More than 60 trust officials of some 29 Washington banks attended the session, which marked the formal launching of the new section's program as an active unit of the District association. There were addresses by Deputy Comptroller of the Currency F. G. Awalt, Robert Griswold, president of the Corporate Fiduciaries Association of Baltimore; F. W. Denio, president of the Corporate Fiduciaries Association of Boston; Wilmer J. Waller, vice president of the District Bankers Association, and Aubrey D. Carter, who handles trust matters for the Treasury Department.

Few States as Wealthy.

Mr. Lewis, who delivered the principal address, told the association that Federal estate tax returns indicate that only nineteen States have as many wealthy persons within their boundaries as has the District of Columbia. He said statistics show that in 1927 there were 98 estates of more than $50,000 each, and aggregating $37,285,905, that were passed on in this city.

He cited the fact that the District has no inheritance tax to impose on the estates of its residents and pointed out that only three other States, Alabama, Florida and Nevada, offer similar freedom. This, he said, proves an inducement to people of wealth—particularly those who have amassed sufficient wealth to permit them to retire—to locate in Washington.

"Our records indicate that the residents of Washington are much more highly educated to the value of making a will than the average American," he said. "Based on returns from cities in 30 different States, we have found that only 45 out of 100 leaving estates die with wills.

Large Percentage Make Wills.

"In the District the returns for the four years ended 1927 disclose that 65 out of 100 made wills. The figures are a tribute to the intelligence of the residents of the District of Columbia, who are sensible enough to provide for the distribution of their property in accordance with their own wishes, rather than let the hard and fast rule of the statutes control this distribution."

Lewis said we are witnessing a revolution in the American's frame of mind, who more and more is thinking in terms of income instead of principal.

Griswold told the section of Baltimore's early struggles to organize a trust group, and of its accomplishments in the field of uniform fees. Denio urged frankness in relations with member banks. Carter cited figures to show that while one out of every three national banks in the country is authorized to perform trust functions, ten out of every twelve in the District have this power.

The speakers were introduced by F. P. H. Siddons, chairman of the section, who outlined its problems and purposes.

Dairy Merger Is Voted.

Stockholders of Chestnut Farms Dairy, Inc., late yesterday voted favorably on an agreement under which the local concern will become a subsidiary of the National Dairy Products Corporation, one of the largest operating and holding companies in the dairy field.

Details of the consolidation are yet to be completed and consummation of the transaction still awaits final approval, Henry N. Brawner, jr., president of the company stated, following the shareholders' session.

Under the plan, the entire outstanding issue of $1,000,000 in preferred stock will be called at $110 a share, Brawner announced. This 7 per cent issue yesterday sold at 109 on the Washington Stock Exchange. The basis on which the 12,500 shares of common stock will be called is yet to be determined, President Brawner said. This stock last commanded 205 in the local market.

Incorporated under the laws of Delaware in 1923, the National Dairy Products Corporation controls about 23 companies operating in 1,600 cities and towns, throughout 13 States. The company has two issues of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock outstanding, totaling $11,924,400. There are 1,466,868 shares of common stock outstanding. The latter is listed on the New York Stock Exchange, and closed yesterday at 135¼.

It was learned that under the proposed merger agreement the local company will retain its present officers, directors and management. Crane, Parris & Co., who handled the issuance of both stock and bond issues placed on the market by Chestnut Farms Dairy, Inc., will manage the calling of the company's preferred stock, payment for all of which will be made at the firm's Fifteenth street offices.

The local dairy, incorporated in 1924 as the successor to a business organized in 1895, handles approximately 60,000 quarts of milk daily. Besides President Brawner, officers are Edgar N. Brawner, vice president; H. A. Shultels, treasurer; J. N. McCarty, secretary.

Stocks Move Upward.

Trends were upward yesterday on the Washington Stock Exchange, with Riggs National Bank stock leading the general advance. This issue moved up more than 5 points to 577 and 577½, in a turnover of 25 shares.

Four other bank stocks came out. Of these, National Bank of Washington moved to 312½ and Federal-American National Bank moved to 342. Minor recessions were noted in American Security & Trust, which sold at 470¾, and East Washington Savings Bank, which traded at 39.

Influenced by merger reports, Chestnut Farms Dairy preferred advanced to 109. Gains were noted in Commercial National Co. preferred, which sold at 104, and Washington Gas Light, which went to 121, after opening at 120.

Holding at former levels, Merchants Tranafer & Storage preferred held at 109; Washington Mechanics Mortgage common, at 11; Potomac Electric 5½ per cent preferred, at 108½.

The bond division was represented only by Washington Gas 6s, series B, $1,000, of which sold at 105¼.

December Business Shrinks.

Reports from the Fifth Federal Reserve District, which embraces this city, indicate that 80 firms in six wholesale lines experienced a smaller volume of business in December, except in drugs. Decreases under November sales were

AUTHORITIES DIVIDED ON NEW GOLD INFLUX

LAID TO DROP IN STERLING

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The first gold to be shipped to America from England since last November arrived on the Aquitania today and totaled $7,500,000. In addition, $5,500,000 was taken in London by New York bankers to be shipped on the Majestic, sailing tomorrow.

This brings the volume of the present movement to $13,000,000. Last fall about $50,000,000 was received from England, and about $58,000,000 has been received in recent months from Canada, but these totals have been offset by ear markings of gold by the Federal Reserve Bank for the account of Bank of France.

The takings of gold in London today included $3,000,000 consigned to Brown Bros. & Co., and $2,500,000 for Dillon, Read & Co. Of the gold arriving on the Aquitania, $5,000,000 was for the American Exchange Irving Trust Co., and $2,500,000 for Speyer & Co.

The present gold movement has resulted from a drop in sterling exchange to below the point at which imports of gold become profitable. While revival of the gold movement from England is viewed enthusiastically in many Wall street circles, as a means of easing the credit situation, officials of the Federal Reserve Bank regard the movement with misgivings, fearing that it may stimulate another frenzy of stock market speculation.

ARGUMENTS HEARD ON DEPOSING BOOTH

Daughters Say Fight Against Salvation Army Chief Originated Here.

CASE IN BRITISH COURT

London, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Catherine Booth, daughter of Gen. Bramwell Booth, of the Salvation Army, today submitted an affidavit in chancery court at a hearing on an injunction obtained in behalf of her father against the high council, in which she declared the agitation for removal of the general had originated in America.

Efforts to reach a compromise on the case growing out of the deposition of the general by the high council having failed, a hearing on the injunction was resumed this morning.

Arguments turned largely on the question of the general's fitness for his post and most of the proceeding was occupied with submission of documentary evidence and speeches by opposing counsel in support of this evidence.

The injunction had been obtained by the Booth faction to restrain the high council from electing a new general. W. A. Greene, attorney fo Gen. Booth, argued that the general had not been given the proper opportunity to meet the charges of unfitness brought by the high council.

Among the documents submitted was an affffidavit by Commissioner Edward Higgins, chief of staff, questioning the general's fitness, both mental and physical, to continue his labors. A second affidavit was by the high council, declaring the case of the general had not been prejudiced by the council's refusal to hear his legal representatives. This action was explained as being part of Salvation Army regulations which forbid recourse to the law courts and it was contended the admission of such legal evidence before the high council would have been unfavorable to the general because it would have been contrary to the whole spirit of the army.

Catherine Booth submitted an affidavit countering the arguments of the defense that nothing had been said in the meetings of the high council reflecting on the general's mental condition. She cited several cases of such references and said one of the general's feebiest signatures had been photographd in support of such reflections. She added that the photograph had not been submitted at meetings of the high council.

She denied she had said the general would not go to law.

Iowans Band to Fight High Cost of Funerals

Atlantic, Iowa, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—A group of southwestern Iowa residents have formed a corporation, the announced purpose of which is to lower funeral expenses.

The organization, incorporated in Delaware, is known as the United Burial Association and proposes to purchase burial equipment in wholesale quantities that its members may obtain the benefit of lower prices. Eventually, it is hoped to establish a factory for the manufacture of caskets, the articles set out.

Notices sent out to prospective members assert the association will furnish standard service and high quality goods at minimum cost.

PRINCE VIEWS DIRE POVERTY IN TOWNS

DEATHS ADD TO DISTRESS

Newcastle on Tyne, England, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The Prince of Wales, in his personal investigation of poverty in the mining regions of the north of England, today spent one of the most cheerless days he has ever devoted to his country, perhaps not even excepting his service at the front in the great war.

Twice he encountered homes where death had fallen within a few hours of his arrival, and everywhere poverty was evidenced by empty grates, improvised and inadequate clothing for children and men without overcoats, shivering in the wintry blast that caused the prince to wear two overcoats.

The prince always has liked to get into intimate touch with the lives and activities of his countrymen of all classes and stations and never has bothered about conventions when obtaining first-hand knowledge. So today he tramped about the distressed mining villages of Durham, entering the cottages of miners, carefully inquiring into their condition and want, and bringing a new air of cheerfulness wherever he went.

He used his automobile only to convey him from village to village. He carried the easy manner he has so often shown under happier circumstances and was ready to shake hands with the village girls who lined up to greet him the moment his arrival became known.

The day was only the first that he intends to devote to familiarizing himself with this least prosperous section of the kingdom which he may some time head. He returned here this evening and will resume his tour of villages in Northumberland tomorrow.

At Windlaton, the second village he visited, he knocked at the door of the home of Frank McKay, a 70-year-old sack weighman, who, with his four sons, has long been unemployed. A daughter of the old man came to the kitchen door weeping bitterly. The prince bared his head and entered the sparsely furnished room. The daughter, in a voice broken with sobs, told the prince that her mother lay upstairs, where she had died a few hours before.

The prince placed his hand gently on her shoulder with the words "cheer up." He remained for ten minutes to comfort as best he could the bereaved daughter.

At Newfield, near Pelton, the prince again found a home which death had invaded. This time it was one of the two children of a miner named Stoves. The child had died Saturday, but the burial had been delayed until tomorrow because the parents had been unable to raise sufficient money.

In this same village the prince called at several cottages where he found poverty beyond description. For more than twelve months virtually the entire male population has been without work. Women with bloodless faces stood at the doors with children, many of whom were barefooted or with poorly shod feet, blue with cold and with hands deep in the pockets of home-made trousers made from old clothing. The overcoats of the men had long since been sold to buy food.

Stars' Play Explained in Bridge Game

G. M. Scott and John H. Smith Compete With Work and Whitehead in Twelfth of Series Given Over WRC.

Stellar lights of the Bridge world made up the quartet for the twelfth of this season's Radio Bridge Games broadcast from Station WRC. Paired against Mr. Work and Mr. Whitehead were Gratz M. Scott, president of the the Cavendish Club of New York, and John H. Smith, of Ridgewood, N. J., a noted member of the Knickerbocker Whist Club of New York.

Mr. Scott, as South, the Dealer, opened the bidding with one Club on this hand: Spades, J, 10, 4; Hearts, 10, 8, 7; Diamonds, A, 8, 6; Clubs, A, K, 10, 4. Mr. Whitehead, West, passed. His cards were: Spades, A, K; Hearts, 6, 4, 3; Diamonds, 10, 9, 5; Clubs, 9, 7, 6, 5, 2. Mr. Smith, North, made an improving bid of one Heart on this holding: Spades, Q, 9, 7, 6, 3; Hearts, A, Q, J, 9, 5; Diamonds, 7, 4; Clubs, Q.

Mr. Work, East, held: Spades, 8, 5, 2; Hearts, K, 2; Diamonds, K, Q, J, 3, 2; Clubs, J, 8, 3. Mr. Work bid two Diamonds, as a lead-directing bid. Mr. Work considered the fact that South had bid one Club and North one Heart, while Mr. Work himself held strong Diamond and the King of Hearts. From Mr. Work's viewpoint it was probable that if he passed, South would bid No Trump, and might do so in any event. If that bid were made, it was important that West open the play with a Diamond lead, thus establishing that suit in Mr. Work's, East's, hand, before the latter lost his Heart entry.

Mr. Scott, South, however, bid two Hearts in support of his partner's call. Mr. Whitehead, West, went to three Diamonds, reasoning that he held two sure tricks and the probability of a third by ruffing the third round of Spades.

Mr. Smith, North, passed. In spite of his two-suited hand and his partner's assist of Hearts, he felt high-card values did not warrant a rebid unless his partner could show greater than the minimum of supporting strength. Mr. Work, East, also passed. Mr. Scott, South, then gave his second assist by bidding three Hearts. All passed, and Mr. Smith, North, became the Declarer, with his contract three Hearts.

Mr. Work, East, opened the play by leading the King of Diamonds, and Mr. Scott's hand went down as Dummy. Mr. Smith, Declarer, before playing from Dummy, studied his cards. He saw he had to lose two Spade tricks and also a Heart if a finesse against the King failed. If the finesse failed he would also have to lose a Diamond trick unless he discarded his losing Diamond on Dummy's King of Clubs before attempting the trump finesse.

Having decided to make the Diamond discard and then try the trump finesse before planing further, Declarer played Dummy's ace of Diamonds to the first trick. Mr. Whitehead, West, played the 5 of Diamonds; Declarer the 4.

Dummy then led the Ace of Clubs; Mr. Whitehead played the 2; Declarer the Queen; Mr. Work the 3. Dummy continued with the King of Clubs; Mr. Whitehead played the 5; Declarer discarded the 7 of Diamonds; Mr. Work played the 8 of Clubs.

Declarer was then left with nothing but Spades and Hearts in his hand. If he could finesse successfully against the King of Hearts, and find the adverse trumps split normally, 3-2, game would be easy, for then trumps could be drawn and Declarer still would have enough left to withstand two ruffs, which he would have to take in the process of establishing his Spades. But should the trump finesse fail the situation would require careful handling. Attempting the finesse, Mr. Smith led Dummy's 8 of Hearts. Mr. Whitehead played the 3; Declarer the 5; and Mr. Work, East, won with the King.

Mr. Work led the Queen of Diamonds, to weaken Declarer's trump holding. Dummy played the 6, Mr. Whitehead the 9 and Declarer trumped with the Jack of Hearts, retaining his 9 as an entry to Dummy.

Declarer then proceeded to start the establishment of his Spades before taking out trumps. It was important for him to retain his trumps in order to withstand two more forces to which he would inevitably be subjected. The risk of having the third round of Spades trumped had to be taken. Declarer's first move was to lead the 3 of Spades. Mr. Work followed with the 2, Dummy with the 10; Mr. Whitehead won with the King.

Mr. Whitehead led the 10 of Diamonds; Declarer was forced to trump with the Queen of Hearts; Mr. Work played the 2 of Diamonds, Dummy the 8. Declarer continued with his Spades, leading the 6; Mr. Work played the 5, Dummy the Jack; Mr. Whitehead again won, with the Ace.

Mr. Whitehead then led the 6 of Clubs; Declarer trumped with the Ace of Hearts; Mr. Work played the Jack of Clubs; Dummy the 4 of Clubs.

The Spades established, Declarer led the 9 of Hearts, Mr. Work played the 2, Dummy the 10, Mr. Whitehead the 4. Dummy continued the suit with the 7 of Hearts; Mr. Whitehead played the 6; Declarer discarded the 7 of Spades and Mr. Work the 3 of Diamonds.

Mr. Smith's, Declarer's, two good Spades took the last two tricks, giving him game on the hand, with a score of 30 trick points and 40 for honors. Mr. Smith showed his command of the game, after his trump finesse failed, by taking the risk of leading Spades before exhausting adverse trumps. The Spade lead might have resulted fatally, and would have done so had West, instead of East, held three Spades, so that he could have given his partner a ruff after taking the second Spade trick with his King. However, Declarer recognized that he could not establish his Spades without taking the risk, so he did the one thing that made game possible.

In discussing the bidding of this hand at Contract, Mr. Work gave it as his opinion that South should open the bidding with One Club, just as in Auction. He also stated that many able Contract players would not approve that bid because they object to naming a four-card suit. Mr. Work conceded that there is more danger in four-card suit-bidding in Contract than in Auction, but also there is even greater necessity for the accurate portrayal of a player's holding, for the benefit of his partner.

Mr. Work's own belief is that in the long run—even in Contract—it pays to bid four-card Ace-King suits, Major or Minor, when the hand has a side Ace.

Therefore, the contract bidding of this radio hand, according to Mr. Work, would be—South, one Club; West, pass; North, one Heart. East's first declaration would be more doubtful in Contract than in Auction, because the loss, if the two Diamond bid were defeated, would be greater. It would be a contract to take eight tricks with a hand that could expect to produce only five, facing a partner who has passed one Club. It must be remembered, however, that each opponent has bid only one, so there is a probability that West has some high cards. Therefore, as a lead-directing bid, East's Diamond declaration probably is justified at Contract.

After East's two Diamonds, South should bid two Hearts, and West three Diamonds. He can not tell that East's bid has been made with so light a holding. He himself has passed with two quick tricks and he has normal support in Diamonds. North, with a really strong Heart suit and a peculiarly divided hand, would be warranted in bidding three Hearts after South's raise. East would then pass; and there would be some doubt whether South, who already has bid twice, would be justified in bidding for game. However, most players probably would risk the bid.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Habits and Vices.

IS smoking a vice? Should a girl forswear marriage because men walk a mile for a smoke?

The men are raving, through the column today, because Tess, age 30, has refused even to "date," much less marry, a man who smoked.

"It is to laugh! Can you imagine a newspaper in the year of grace, 1929, publishing a letter like that scream from the saintly Tess, who hasn't had a date in 30 years simply because all men smoke, drink or swear. Suffering cats, must we stand for this? Will you tell me what evil there is in a man smoking? How can that make him unfit for a woman to marry?

"I can't count the girls I've gone with. Most of them smoked. Many drank. A few swore. Did I confuse there things with morals? I did not. But I observed their morals, too. Several seemed to possess morals. Some possessed sense. Others were just a combination of sex appeal and emptyheadedness. But I never met a girl so dumb that she thought a man who smoked was unfit for marriage. My guess is that this dame will wait another 30 years and then die and date an arch-angel."

And Bill is just boiling over. He's married, too, despite a pipe that works twelve hours a day.

"Now, what's the idea of starting in as if there were some low evil connected with such everyday habits as smoking, and swearing, even if in some cases we might class drinking as a real vice? Pretty soon anything done by a man will be a crime; done by woman, an achievement. Women like our friend Tess ought to band together and go some place and stay. She is 30 and has never had a date. Does anybody actually know any woman of 30 who has never had a date? I do not. My wife does not. Who does know any such woman? She has probably dated some fellow who gave her a wrong idea of what men were like, and he probably smoked, drank and swore, so she sets up a cry that men who drink, smoke or swear are unfit to marry or even to date.

"Men are as decent as women, a lot more modest, and whether they smoke, drink, swear or go to church they are human beings and not some sort of animal entirely inferior to woman with her paint, powder, perfume and curling iron.

"I smoke a pipe, I drink, I swear. My wife suffers no ill effects from any of these habits any more than I suffer because she used cold cream.

"Women like Tess are not women at all. Heaven only knows what they are, where they come from, or why they are here. Does any one know? What earthly use is a woman like this Tess? BILL."

Brr-rr! Didn't Tess make Bill mad! And all poor Tess wants is a nice hubby who does not swear, who has never smoked, never tasted liquor and never missed church. The line forms on the left.

Program by Gershwin on Air Tonight

"An American in Paris" to Be Offered First Time on Special Chain Not Including WRC—Verdi in Milan Over WMAL.

A program composed entirely of the works by the modern American master, George Gershwin, is to be played in the LaTouraine Concert at 7:30 o'clock tonight from a special chain of stations associated with the National Broadcasting Co., headed by WEAF, New York, and including WGY, Schenectady; WGR, Buffalo; WHAS, Louisville; WCAE, Pittsburgh, and WWJ, Detroit, but not WRC.

"An American in Paris," Gershwin's latest sensation, will be played for the radio audience for the first time in this program. The sum of $5,000 was paid by the sponsors of the LaTouraine Concerts for the privilege to be the first to present this selection to the radio audience. In addition, the program will present excerpts from the famous Gershwin "Rhapsody in Blue," and a medley of his musical comedy, revue and dance hits will be played.

George Gershwin was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., on September 26, 1898, and began his musical career as a pianist and "song plugger" for a New York publishing house. Before reaching the age of 21 he had written the score for a musical comedy, "La, La Lucille." His first attempt in the larger musical forms was the "Rhapsody in Blue," written for Paul Whiteman's Orchestra in 1923. This was followed by his "Concerto in F," which was written as the result of a commission from the New York Symphony Orchestra, under Walter Damrosch, in 1925. "An American in Paris," the outstanding modern work of the day, being performed for the first time anywhere a few weeks ago by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra in Carnegie Hall, New York City, is the first in which Gershwin has dispensed with the piano.

A musical omelette seasoned with the melodies of many lands and many times will be served to radio listeners in the Palmolive Hour from WRC at 9:30 o'clock tonight. From Tschaikowsky's "Waltz of the Flowers," by symphonic ensemble n. "Bicycle Built for Two" by the Revelers, to "Birth of the Blues" and "Dance, Little Lady," from Noel Coward's current stage success, "This Year of Grace," is the gamut of musical moods and periods to be run by the Palmolive entertainers.

Arias from Thomas' opera "Mignon," and "One Alone," from Romberg's "The Desert Song," are the solos to be sung by Olive Palmer and Paul Oliver tonight.

Overture, "Jean de Paris," Boieldieu; suite, Rameau; suite, Gretry; "En Bateau," Debussy; "Serenade," Widor; "Pavane," Ravel, and "Claire de Lune," Debussy.

Verdi in Milan will be featured in the musical episode to be broadcast from WMAL at 8 o'clock this evening. The particular episode in the life of this famous composer that will be reproduced is the opening of Verdi's "Home of Rest for Aged Musicians" in Milan. This home was founded by him for poor and dependent musicians over 65. It was opened in the year 1899 and great celebrations attended it in which various of Verdi's works were played.

"Just Tell Them That You Saw Me" will be the feature of the program that "Daguerreotypes and Silhouettes" will broadcast at 9 o'clock tonight from station WMAL. Paul Dresser is the author of this heartrending song of former days, and having specialized in writing countless popular songs of the last century, his compositions fit particularly well into the setting of "Daguerreotypes and Silhouettes," a setting which corresponds to an old family album in bringing to mind pictures sad and joyful of early years. Other numbers of olden times will include "Robin Adair," "Old Black Joe" and "The Heart Bowed Down."

John Steel, tenor will be the star of the La Palina Smoker at 9:30 o'clock tonight from WMAL.

Station WJSV will broadcast a noonday concert, between 12:30 p. m. and 1:30 p. m., and will return to the air at 7 o'clock for the evening's entertainment.

The Carolinians Dance Orchestra will be heard from WOL at 7 o'clock, after which the station will sign off until 10 o'clock, when the Wardman Park Dance Orchestra will play for two hours. The regular early evening features are scheduled.

Stations WRC, WMAL and WOL will broadcast short addresses in connection with the community chest of Washington during the early evening hours.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

EVICTED.

The frost has come and the trees are bare.
The garden looks like a room unkept,
A littered room that is seldom swept,
As if its owner had ceased to care.

The wind tossed leaves are strewn about,
The plants are yellow and brown and pale
That men of the law had ordered out.

Helpless she sat near her broken things,
Cold, indifferent, she watched them there,
The end had come, and she'd ceased to care,
What matters the pain which eviction brings?

Strangely I thought of her face today,
With the litter of rubbish about her spread,
"The Frost has evicted the flowers," I said,

Jane Interprets the Mode

New York, Jan. 29, 1929.

EVER since the so-called "egg-shell" colors were introduced the couturiers have been experimenting with every tint of off-color white. They are, for the most part, highly agreeable and much easier to wear than a dead white.

There have been whites with the faintest tinge of beige, of yellow, of blue, of gray. Many of them are so pale in tint that under normal lighting they appear to be pure white—but if we place beside them a bit of the same fabric in white we quickly see the greater warmth and life of the tinted material.

Premet has launched recently one of these off-color whites which harmonizes well with the mode of the moment and should play an important role, more especially in the evening mode.

This color is called petrole, which is the French name for petroleum. As the name suggests, it is of a greenish cast, but so pale a tint is it that it is difficult to say when it is green and when it is white.

In slightly darker tones this same color is excellent for sports wear, and as such it makes its appearance in a number of outdoor models.

If you have difficulty in wearing white I suggest that you experiment a bit with some of these off-color variations, which contrast less abruptly with the skin tint.

Those of us who are not taught to sew as youngsters are prone to have an awesome reverence for sewing, and the fear of attempting anything so intricate.

Too bad, because it is not only not awesome at all, but actually such a lot of fun! And it is so necessary to a lovely lady, regardless of her finances or the lack of them.

And because we w. nt you all to be lovely ladies and, what's more, know that you can be, regardless of the size of your wardrobe budget, we invite you to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet which tells you how to sew.

"Mariposa," meaning, if I do not forget my Spanish, magnolia, is the name Paquin has given the exotic evening ensemble I sketched for today.

And magnolia it certainly is, "black and gold and waxy white." For the coat is black velvet from the hem to the blouse, and from there to the white ermine collar it is gold lame with black velvet applique. And it is lined with white velvet. The dress is of gold and black lame, with a black chiffon foundation of small pleated flounces and two chiffon ruffles.

That is why a woman with a very florid complexion can sometimes wear reds if they are not bright red.

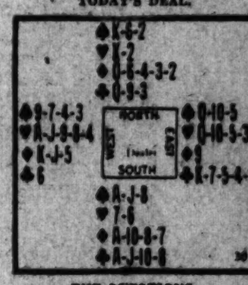
WORK ON BRIDGE

AUCTION BRIDGE AND CONTRACT BRIDGE. TODAY'S DEAL.



THE QUESTIONS.

What should the bidding of this hand be at Auction and Contract?

What should the play be to the first three tricks?

THE ANSWERS.

At Auction, South would bid one No Trump; North might pass or jump to two for the purpose of shutting a lead-directing bid by East. Neither West nor East would bid.

At Contract, South would bid one No Trump; North, with a count of 10, two No Trumps; and South with 18—the minimum for a rebid—would go to three No Trumps.

The play for the first three tricks should be:

Trick 1. West, Eight of Hearts; North, the King; East, the Ten, and South, the Six.

West leads the fourth best of his long suit. Dummy seizes his only chance to take a Heart trick by jumping in with the King; East plays a high Heart to encourage West to continue the suit whenever he obtains another lead.

Trick 2. North, Queen of Clubs; East, the Deuce; South, the Jack, and West, the Six.

Trick 3. North, Nine of Clubs; East, the Four; South, the Eight, and West, the Two of Spades.

At trick 3, Declarer appreciates that his Diamonds can not be established without losing a Diamond trick; and, with the adverse Hearts ready to run, the losing of a trick will mean a lost game. Declarer consequently attempts to run game before the adversaries obtain the lead by capturing four Club tricks and three Spades. These, with the one Heart trick already won and the Ace of Diamonds, will carry him to his goal. He can go game if East has the King of Clubs and the Queen of Spades.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

JANUARY 30.

ONE of the leaders in America and lecturer on domestic science in our day, Mrs. Ida Jalley Allen was born this day, 1865. She is a graduate dietitian of Metropolitan Hospital, New York City, and has been dietitian with various other hospitals. She has been a frequent contributor of articles on domestic science to the Ladies' Home Journal, Delin ator, Country Gentleman, Good Housekeeping and Pictorial Review.

Mrs. Allen has lectured on the Redpath Chautauqua circuit and for the United States Food Administration. Her books include "Mrs. Allen's Cook Book," "Wheat Substitutes," "Meat Substitutes," "Bride's Book" and "Mrs. Allen on Cooking, Menus and Service." She is also the author of a correspondence course. Many recently she has been addressing housewives over the radio.

The English poet and dramatist, Julia Augusta Webster, was born this day, 1839. She was particularly noted for her admirable work in translations from the Greek. She took high rank as a dramatic poet.

Her works include "Disguises," "In a Day" and "Daffodil and the Croxaxicans." Ann Taylor, English writer for children, was born this day, 1782.

"Salt of the Earth."

SALT is cheap—at least in our country. That is because there is a great deal of it to be obtained. If we went to a country where salt is hard to get, the price would be high.

Venezuelans Making Use of a "Hill of Salt."

Neither men nor animals can live without salt. We obtain some salt when we eat certain vegetables, as well as other kinds of food. If we eat enough of such foods, we may be able to do without the salt-shaker; but salt we must have in one way or another.

In some parts of central Africa, salt is hard to obtain, and brings a high price. In Gallas, a mountain land lying near the equator, it is said that men sometimes trade their wives for salt. We do not hear of women in that country trading their husbands for the same purpose—maybe husbands there are not supposed to have such a high value!

Animals of forest and jungle find out where there are "salt licks," or springs, and go to those places. Horses are given slabs of salt to lick.

Men usually obtain salt from regions where oceans or salt lakes once rested over what is now dry land. It is commonly found in the form of rock, and thus we have the name "rock salt."

Rock salt is often found in cubes measuring about an inch on each side. It may have tints of yellow, red, purple or blue. Sometimes it is gray; sometimes it has no color and you can see through it as if it were window glass. Gray color shows that it is impure.

In olden times a large part of the salt supply came from sea water. If a gallon of sea water is "boiled away" or if it is allowed to evaporate by the heat of the sun it will leave a quarter of a pound of salt. Salt is still obtained in this manner at points on the coasts of Spain, Italy and France. It is rather coarse, and carries the name of "bay salt."

Youthful Chic.

Even young girls of 10 or 12 may be smartly and simply dressed for the South if they wear straight little white linen frocks trimmed with insets of navy blue and white linen. A coat of the same printed linen is worn over the dress, and a smart little navy blue felt hat is included.

Sunshine All the Time.

Perfumed Luxury.

Make-Up Bands.

To avoid the disagreeableness of having traces of cream and powder in the hair after a facial clean-up, it is well to bind over the hair a becoming wide band of flesh-colored rubber.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

METHODS OF ESCAPING INFLUENZA.

THE Detroit Health Department gives the following advice as to methods of controlling influenza:

1. Keep yourself in the best possible physical condition. This can be done by eating regularly, getting plenty of sleep with windows open, taking some outdoor exercises every day, keeping your office temperature at 68 to 70 degrees, and seeing that you have a good supply of fresh air. Do not allow yourself to become unduly fatigued, as fatigue greatly lowers resistance. Dress for the weather. If it is cold be sure to have heavy wraps. If it turns warmer, remove your outer garments. This is particularly important in shopping. Women who wear heavy wraps for the outdoor weather should remove these wraps when shopping in warm stores. Colds and pneumonia often result from becoming overheated (as one is bound to be with heavy wraps on in a store) and then going out into the cold. When indoors carry coat on your arm. To wear it is dangerous.

2. Avoid unnecessary handshaking and other actual contact with persons.

3. Be sure to use your own towel and your own drinking cup or glass.

4. Keep the hands and face scrupulously clean, thus avoiding the possibility of transferring infection to other persons.

5. If you have a cold be especially careful to avoid any unnecessary contact with other persons and be sure to always cover your sneeze or cough with your handkerchief. After using your handkerchief, wash your hands before shaking hands with any one.

6. Don't neglect your cold. If you have the slightest suspicion of fever go home and go to bed immediately and call your physician. Having called your physician, stay in bed until he tells you that you can get up, and follow his advice explicitly.

This is good personal hygiene to follow through the winter-spring season, regardless of the presence of influenza. It is fully as good as a means of avoiding the colds, coughs and pneumonia of the season as it is for the epidemic conditions which prevailed during December and January. It will be noticed that every item relates to what the individual shall do. No part of it says anything about the other fellow. It does not call for any concerted action or any waiting for the other fellow to do something. It tells how each fellow should look after his own yard. If every fellow does that mush what the other fellow does takes care of itself.

CONSTIPATION CURES.

Follower writes: Notice you urge agar for constipation. A life insurance company recommends psyllium seed.

REPLY.

There is no battle between any insurance company and myself. The insurance company also recommends agar and I also recommend psyllium seed.

They are both cut off the same stick. They act in about the same way. Agar is the cheaper and, therefore, I give it preference.

SHINGLES.

G. P. writes: What is shingles? What is the cause? Cure? Is it dangerous?

REPLY.

The scientific name is herpes. It is the result of infection of the nerve roots. In its infection cause it is frequently related to rheumatism. It may be a cousin to pneumonia.

Only very rarely is it dangerous. But painful—O, my! The local application commonly used is a simple zinc ointment. The salicylates are used internally when anything is given. Nature cures.

What Today Means to You

JANUARY 30.

"AQUARIUS."

IF January 30 is your birthday the most propitious hours for you today are from 9:15 a. m. to 10:15 a. m., from noon to 2:15 p. m., from 4:45 p. m. to 5:45 p. m. and from 9:15 p. m. to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 3:15 p. m. to 4:15 p. m. and from 8 to 9 p. m.

The astrological influences of today will create a desire "to do." Many postponed or disagreeable tasks will be wiped off the slate or the seemingly impossible made possible through concentrated effort.

Children born today will be bright and vivacious. They will give and receive a lot of enjoyment out of life. They will be apt but not serious students and will seemingly do and get things without much effort.

You will be thought of first in terms of character and second in terms of ability. Your character will enter into whatever you do. It will shine out and through your work. Your ideals are high and you will have the capacity to maintain them although you may live a practical life in a practical world. You will never brood over apparent incapacities or obstacles, but will be a fighter for those things which you consider necessary for the enlargement and happiness of your life—whether they be spiritual, mental or material gains.

Neither success nor adversity will ever get the better of you as you will be able to rise superior to either one. You have a shrewd mind and a far-seeing vision. You are usually a lap or two ahead of those about you and start many things upon a foundation of faith, trusting the future to add its stones of reality. Dreams for you are not an idle pastime, but are mental pictures which you intelligently try to reproduce in some more tangible form.

You are not afraid of work nor do you choose the easiest road over which to travel. You have a happy disposition and content yourself with things as they are without kicking against the inevitable.

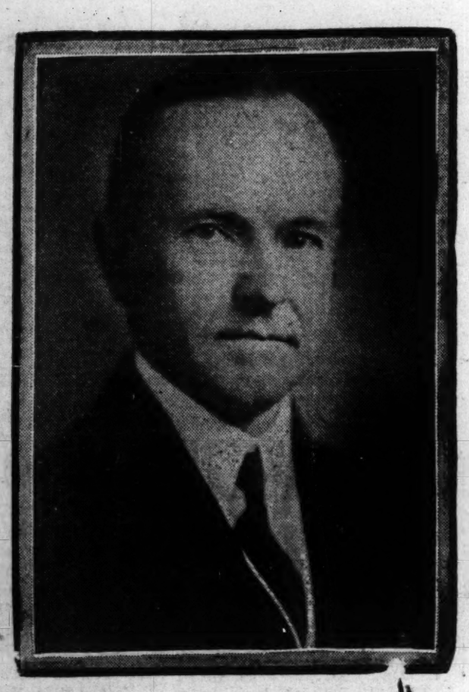
These Prominent Washingtonians Laud the Community Chest



President Coolidge Says:

"The Community Chests have demonstrated their value and importance. They represent probably our greatest advances in the administration of charity through the great purpose of giving a large vision of the obligation of the whole city, of the integrity of charitable administration and of the overcoming of prejudice—all of these things have been brought into living being by the Community Chest. It occupies a position that must be built stronger and stronger if we would build the spiritual side of American life."

CALVIN COOLIDGE

President-elect Hoover Says:

"I believe that the Community Chest plan of providing for local benevolences is the best which has been devised. By eliminating much of the cost of collection, it increases the amount actually available for charitable purposes and makes for a wiser and more equitable division of funds in accordance with the needs and opportunities of each. The Community Chest idea focuses the thought of each community at one time on the duty and the privilege which is theirs to aid the deserving and to relieve suffering and misfortune."

HERBERT HOOVER

Answering the Question---

"How Much Shall I Give To The Community Chest?"

The Community Chest represents 57 appeals combined in one. Giving in the past has not been adequate to meet the human needs of Washington. Therefore giving must be on a different basis than to separate appeals.

Much of the giving in the past has not been recorded, as one gave to balls, bazaars, tag day, etc. The total of one's past gifts, therefore, usually is not sufficient to meet the amount of one's Community Chest gift.

No one can tell anyone what he must give, but the following basis of giving is suggested as an average from the experience of other Community Chests adapted to the Washington situation.

Some persons with more responsibility than the average can only give less, while others with less responsibility can often give more.

Incomes up to	Per ct. of Income	Amount Given	Average for each of 57 Agencies
$1,200	one day's pay	$4	$0.07
1,800	1/3%	9	.15
2,400	3/4%	18	.31
3,000	1%	30	.52
5,000	1 1/2%	75	1.31
7,500	2%	150	2.63
10,000	2 1/2%	250	4.38
15,000	3%	450	7.89
20,000	4%	800	14.03
25,000	5%	1,250	21.93

Rise in Call Loan Rate Helps Unsettle Market; Selling Follows Advance.

DEMAND FOR UTILITIES

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The stock market churned about confusedly today, with the general tendency toward lower levels, although a handful of utilities and industrials were bid up from 5 to more than 14 points.

A rise in the call loan rate to 7 per cent after holding at 6 for nearly two weeks, was an unsettling factor, although $7,500,000 in gold arrived from England late in the day, and London advices indicated that $5,000,000 would be shipped tomorrow.

Another cause of uneasiness was the meeting of the U. S. Steel directors after the close. Some fears were expressed that if the much rumored extra or stock dividends should fail to materialize, the market would sell off sharply tomorrow. This view was not generally accepted, however, as most traders of late had expected nothing more than a favorable earnings report at this time.

Steel Report Satisfactory.

The steel corporation's report, showing $11.61 per common share for 1928, in contrast to only $8.81 per share in 1927, was generally regarded as satisfactory, although it fell somewhat short of more optimistic estimates.

The market opened rather quieter than of late, but with prices pointed upward. Heavy selling came into the market before noon, however, carrying a wide assortment of important issues off 2 to 6 points. As money went no higher than 7 per cent and further gold shipments were announced, short covering became heavy and most losses were reduced. Total sales, 4,291,700 shares were the smallest for a full session since January 17.

The day's news included the arrival of Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, supposedly to confer with Federal Reserve officials. Action to stem the flow of gold to New York, is regarded as imminent and may take the form of a higher rediscount rate at London, which would probably lead to similar action at New York.

General Motors Reports Increase.

General Motors reported an increase in dealer sales of 18 per cent in 1928. Inland Steel raised its dividend rate to $3.50 from $2.50.

The heavy buying of utilities was regarded as discounting future merger and expansion developments. The Associated Press indice for 20 of this group rose more than 4 points to a new high record. Philadelphia Co. nearly equaled its previous high in a gain of 14½ points, while American Power & Light and American Water Works jumped more than 7 points to new tops.

Burroughs Adding Machine, Delaware & Hudson and Allis Chalmers mounted 9 to 10 points, while International Nickel and Westinghouse Electric gained about 4 ponits.

Steel Off Nearly A Point.

U. S. Steel fluctuated between 183 and 187, closed at 184¾, off nearly a point. Oils and motors were generally heavy. Allied Chemical, Commercial Investment Trust, Greene Cananea, Indian Refining, General Motors (old), and Motor Products, lost 3 to 6 points.

The commodity markets generally felt selling pressure. Cotton closed 30 to 70 cents a bale lower and grain sold off slightly.

Foreign exchanges were generally steady, Sterling showing notable lack of response to the flow of gold this way, although cables were quoted slightly lower at 84.84 15-16.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Ridicule of talk that winter wheat has suffered any severe damage to injure it, about to bring a lively tumble in wheat values today. Notice was taken that wheat primary receipts were largely essential of winter wheat centers, and speculative selling of future deliveries were broadened out, with prices dropping to 5½c below figures obtainable last week.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1¼c to 1½c under yesterday's finish, corn 5¼c to five cents off, oats 3c to 1¼c down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 20c.

In connection with disbelief expressed in various quarters today that domestic winter wheat had suffered any unusual amount of crop damage, one trade leader here said that 1913-14 had produced the largest United States wheat crop on record up to that time, although the winter was very cold. He added that the winter of 1918-19 was the coldest in 50 years, but the wheat out-turn at the ensuing harvest was also of record-breaking volume. Free selling on the part of houses with Eastern connections accompanied these assertions, and numerous standing orders to let go of future delivery holdings at certain fixed limits, and thus put a stop to losses, were forced into execution as the market plunged rapidly downward.

For at least the time being, it was in vain that leading experts pointed out that wheat crop conditions so far this season are radically different, that wheat had a late start, and there have been six zero periods experienced in January without snow protection and with alternations of rain and thaw that have resulted in widespread ice covering.

On the other hand, reports of increased offerings of Argentine wheat to Europe, together with lower quotations at Liverpool, were an evident factor in bringing about downturns in Chicago prices. Predictions, too, were current that wheat clearances from North America are to diminish and Argentine clearances enlarge. Meanwhile, primary domestic arrivals of wheat today totaled 1,048,000 bushels, compared with 942,000 bushels a week ago and 841,000 bushels the corresponding day last year. Today's wheat receipts at Kansas City, St. Louis and Omaha were 358 cars, against 181 cars a year ago.

Notwithstanding advices that cold weather had occasioned much greater farm use of corn, the market today both of corn and oats duplicated the action of wheat, but with better commission buying on the fall. Purchases of more corn to come here from Kansas City were reported. Some corn export business was noted at the Eastern seaboard, but steamship space at the Gulf of Mexico was being canceled; even at distress rates.

Provisions ran into free selling orders, and averaged lower despite steadiness of hog values.

TECH AND EASTERN FALL IN SCHOOL SERIES UPSETS

Barrow Picks Yankees to Repeat

Secretary Says Club Is Stronger Than 1928 Team That Won.

Tierney Sees Giants in Thick of Fight in National Race.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—It's the season when baseball men have just got to do a lot of talking.

With Miller Huggins wintering at St. Petersburg, Fla., and John J. Mcraw basking in the sunshir at Havana, Ed Barrow, secretary and general manager of the New York Yankees, and Jim Tierney, secretary of the New York Giants, have put in their claims for the two major league pennants.

If for no other reason than to get away from the subject of holdouts, Secants, Tierney today predicted the Giants, Cubs and Pirates would fight it out for the National League pennant.

Secretary Barrow went Tierney one better and forecast the fourth straight American League flag for the Yankees.

Says Lary Will Make Good and Improve Infield.

"With Pennock, Lazzeri and Moore back in shape," Barrow said, "they'll make the Yankees stronger than last year. Lyn Lary will make good at short and improve the infield, with Koenig shifting to third. Ed Wells, the southpaw from Birmingham, and Gordon Rhodes, the young right-hander from Hollywood, will strengthen the pitching staff."

1—New York.
2—Philadelphia.
3—Washington.
4—Detroit.
5—St. Louis.
6—Cleveland.
7—Chicago.
8—Boston.

Tierney sees the Giants beating the Cubs and Pirates out in a close race if John McGraw is able to keep actively at the helm of the club all season.

"I can't see who will stop us if McGraw isn't forced to let somebody run things," Tierney said. "We would have won last year if he hadn't been forced away from the team when he injured his leg in Chicago."

The Giants are counting on Tony Kaufmann, the reformed pitcher, and Fred Leach, acquired in a trade from the Phillies for Lefty O'Doul," to strengthen the outfield. The infield is airtight, except at second base, where Andy Cohen and Andy Reese, under the coaching of Bert Niehoff, will battle for the berth. The catching staff is all right with Hogan and O'Farrell, and perhaps occasional assistance from Ray Schalk, signed as McGraw's first assistant.

Giants Pitching Staff Is Considered Capable.

The pitching staff of Benton, Genewich, Fitzsimmons, Hubbell, with possible aid from Carl Mays, trying a comeback; Bill Walker, Harry Kelly, a rookie from Memphis; Tiny Chaplin, Dutch Henry, and Warren Ogden, is considered capable.

With the receipt of Warren Ogden's signed contract today, only seven Giants remain unsigned. They are Welsh, Lench, Lindstrom, Terry, O'Farrell, Cummings, and Buckeye.

The Cardinals will have a hard time finishing in fourth place, according to Tierney, who predicts all kinds of trouble for the National League champions.

"The Cardinal pitching staff doesn't look good to me," he said. "Alexander is almost through. Southworth will have a tough time breaking in Selph and Gelbert, two youngsters, around second."

Sharkey's Trainer Picks Headquarters at Miami

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—With the arrival here today of Jack Sharkey's trainer, Tony Polozzolo, announcement was made by Jack Dempsey that W. L. "Young" Stribling and his party will arrive tomorrow to prepare for his fight with the Boston sailor February 27. Sharkey and his party will arrive in Miami Beach Friday night, Dempsey announced.

"Pa" Stribling gave Dempsey his information on the arrival here of the Georgia youngster. The latter, the elder Stribling said, has acceded to Dempsey's repeated requests that he refrain from flying until after the fight. Young Stribling, with his wife and children, Pa and Ma, and his younger brother will arrive by train tomorrow.

Polozzolo today selected the Kennel Club arena as the site for Sharkey's training. This leaves a casino around the corner from the Kennel for Stribling's workouts.

Almost the Naked Truth

By JAMES S. COLLINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Painful as it usually is to watch his ballroom gyrations in the ring, it pays to stick to the bitter end when Sid Terris, the galloping ghost of the Ghetto, is performing. St. Nicholas Arena fans who walked out on Sidneh's Isadora Duncan exhibition against Babe Herman last night will never do so again. In the first place, they know now that anything is likely to happen, and usually does, when Sidneh is one of the principals; in the second, they probably never again will have the opportunity to do so. The looping right smash let loose by the sorely belabored Babe just in time to connect with Sidneh's brittle chin as he took a graceful leap forward in the sixth undoubtedly spelled the end of the ring career of Terris.

Until that wild right found a corporeal spot in the Ghetto ghost's chin Herman was missing by whole parasangs. Most of Sid's punches, too, went wide of the mark, and the spectators quickly began to suspect that the boys were not trying. The referee agreed with them and endeared himself to the fans by threatening to throw them both out of the ring forthwith. It was then that Terris loosed a fusillade of shots that put Herman down for the count of nine and roused the Babe to a retaliatory rally that threatened to spill Sidneh just before the gong ended the fifth. The result will go down in the records as a knockout by Herman in the sixth, but in the memory of this observer as a K. O. by Referee Mike Hylas. If the Babe insists on being credited with a putout, Mike at least is entitled to an assist. So is Lady Luck and so, my lords and gentlemen, is Sid Terris.

Football Injuring Robs Boxing of Likeliest Heavyweight.

A great prospect and a possible heavyweight champion of the world was lost to the ring, it now appears, when Al Lassman, N. Y. U. football captain, was accidentally kicked in the head in the Carnegie game at Pittsburgh last fall. Lassman, a former intercollegiate champion, who was regarded by competent judges as the best heavyweight any college has produced, has reluctantly decided to abandon his intention of entering the professional ring.

Not only will it be a long time before he fully recovers from the injury which left him partly paralyzed for many weeks and caused an impairment of his memory that still persists, but his doctors have told him it might be fatal ever again to indulge in so violent a sport as boxing. Lassman was one of the few fighters who seemed actually to relish rough going in the ring and he had set his heart on one day winning the heavyweight championship.

Lassman Victim of Kick but Bronson Felt the Pain.

The unfortunate kick which laid low the N. Y. U. star inflicted irreparable injury on another than its immediate victim. With an even break in the luck, his physicians eventually will restore Al Lassman to his former self, but they can never fill the dent in the pocketbook of Jimmy Bronson.

Mr. Bronson, it was understood, was to have managed Lassman in his ring campaign. Other members of Gene Tunney's entourage were downcast last summer when the champion suddenly announced his retirement from the ring, but Mr. Bronson, his chief second and closest advisor on the niceties of pugilistic conduct, was looking at the back of an envelope through rose-colored glasees and smiling happily when Gene made the announcement that paled the pan of Will Gibson.

Mr. Bronson undoubtedly had been figuring his prospective cut of the earnings of the earnest young collegian whom he had every reason to hope would one day don the regal robe Mr. Tunney was so cavalierly throwing aside. When a shining angel in the person of Maj. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, jr., entrusted Mr. Bronson with the custody of a costly piece of fistic bric-a-brac he had acquired, Mr. Bronson's cup of joy ran over and spotted up one of his multicolored waistcoats. Rene Devos looked like the coming champion of the world and Mr. Bronson was slapping down an extra herring for every meal and snapping his fingers in the face of poverty.

Ace Hudkins took the herring out of his hand and the smile off his face by clawing out a win over Devos, but still Mr. Bronson was not downhearted. Lassman was his ace in the hole, and now Al has folded up and asked to be dealt out hereafter. It's a cruel world, as Mr. Hoover reminded Mr. Smith.

Tom Cheek's 104 Years Proved You Can't Beat the Horses.

After stalking him for 104 years, death finally found old Tom (Pop) Cheek where it might have looked for him at almost any time within the last 90 years—in a stable beside a horse's stall. Although he had far more time to do it than is vouchsafed the ordinary mortal, Pop died a witness to the fact that you can't beat the horses in the long run. The day he died the aged trainer put his last cent on his own horse, Basha, in the second race at Havana. Basha also ran, but old Pop saw him safely back in his stall before he himself lay down on a cot beside it and died.

Death Ends 90-Year Career Of Tom Cheek at Cuba Track

HAVANA, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—A turf career extending over a period of 90 years has ended here with the death of Tom (Pop) Cheek, 104-year-old trainer. Cheek died of a heart ailment last night.

Shortly after he had seen his horse, Basha, an also-ran in the second race at Oriental Park, he complained of a violent pain in his chest. Physicians said the trainer was suffering from heart trouble, but he refused to go to a hospital, preferring to go back to the stables with his horse. A few hours afterward he dropped dead beside Basha on which he had placed all his money in the afternoon.

Followed Ponies for 90 Years as Stable Boy, Jockey, Trainer, Owner.

Chicago, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Tom Cheek, 104 years old, who died last night at Havana was known as the patriarch of the race tracks and probably died as he would have wished—in the stall with Basha, the horse on which a few hours before he had wagered all his money.

For 90 years he had followed the ponies, first as stable boy when only 12 years old, then as a jockey and finally when weight forced him from the saddle, he became a trainer and at last owned his own string of horses.

While there are no records to show it the aged turfman claimed to have been born in Fauquier County, Virginia, on July 25, 1825. Except for the years he spent in the war with Mexico and in the Civil War he had been connected with the horses throughout his life.

For the past few years he has brought his horses to the Chicago tracks during the summer and taken them to Cuba for the winter season. When racing first returned on a legalized basis to the Chicago district a few years ago Cheek came here with a stable consisting of one steed, a 4-year-old colt called Red.

He Saddled Paul Revere's Horse, Is Facetious Claim of Friends.

The first race in which Red ran at Aurora, the old man saddled the animal himself, hoisted the jockey into the saddle, bet the few remaining dollars in his pockets on the animal, then stood in the infield waving his cane and shouting as he saw his horse come in a winner at odds of almost 35 to 1.

Red furnished him with a small stake here, but died less than a year later, after which he acquired Basha, which has been his bread winner ever since, although he was unable to win with Basha here. However, he took the horse to Ohio, where he won enough to pay the fare of himself and his racer to Cuba.

Race track followers were wont to be facetious about Cheek's claim of being more than 100 years old. These jibes he always accepted in good humor, even when the story went around that he was the boy who saddled Paul Revere's horse when the patriot started on his famous ride.

Fugazy's Ally May Tempt Dempsey

Offer to Amaze Former Champ, Sportswriter Told.

New Arena Backed by Six Millionaires, Says Cole.

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (U.P.).—In ten days—on February 8, to be exact—the realms of sport and finance are to be startled by an announcement which will make all previous blasts of fistic ballyhoo seem like the hushed whispers in the reading room of the public library.

At least if the above mentioned realms are not startled and shaken, the fault will be theirs. Young Mr. Edwin Cole, of the New York Coles, who sat upon the floor in Humbert J. Fugazy's Broadway office today, spinning air castles and mammoth sports arenas out of such stuff as dreams are made on, promises it. And young Mr. Cole—"Call me Ed, boys"—admits he has not made a mistake in eight years.

On that date set, Cole, a personable young promiser if ever there was one, promises to announce the names of six millionaires whose fortunes, applied to the erection of a monster fight auditorium in the heart of this city, will make the late Tex Rickard's 600 millionaires take to tin cups and lead pencils for a livelihood by comparison.

Cole to Stand on Dempsey's Doorstep With Long Check.

Moreover, on the day following the Sharkey-Stribling fight, Cole proposes to be standing on Jack Dempsey's doorstep down in Miami Beach with a certified check a foot and a half long, containing more figures than a Ziegfeld chorus.

Dempsey, according to Cole, who is associating himself with Fugazy in the project, has promised these ambitious rivals of the Madison Square Garden an audience before he lends one of his slightly cauliflowered ears to any other propositions.

"The size of the check will make Dempsey's eyes blink worse than Gene Tunney did," admitted Cole, refusing to deny that it would be for $500,000.

"We will offer Jack a record sum to fight either Paulino or Godfrey. But to get back to our arena * * *"

The name of the six millionaires who are to put the 600 of Madison Square Garden in the shade of comparative penury will rock and stagger the world of finance, Cole confessed.

With an airy wave of his cigarette holder he dismissed the wealth and prestige of J. P. Morgan, the younger Lightly he tossed about the financial reputations of Guggenheim and Rockefeller. As for the Rickard group, of whom the late promoter had been so childishly proud, well, it was doubtful, according to Cole, if they could get jobs as ushers in the new coliseum which shortly will rear its rafters high above the metropolis.

The papers have not yet been signed, Cole said, but what's a mere signature when six millionaires get together to back a project of this kind for the ennoblement of fisticuffs and kindred sporting activities?

"To Let" Sign on Garden May Be Necessary.

When the names of these philanthropic sportsmen—Cole intimated he would sink a "a million of my own" in the new arena—are announced in ten days, the "To let" sign may be expected to go up on Madison Square Garden at any moment.

The new arena will be erected upon a site recently purchased—or at least considered—by Fugazy, Cole said, or it may be built a stone's throw from the present garden on the land now occupied by the old car barns, or possibly where the Woolworth Building now stands.

"Moreover," said Cole, "you don't need to print a line of this in the newspapers, if you don't want to."

A NEW ANGLE Is Discovered IN ANGLING

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Persons who believe in the sportsmanship of fishermen, particularly of those Viking spirits who go out into the North Atlantic in small boats in winter to catch the cod, if any, will be disturbed to learn that the lust for gain has contaminated the sitting pastime and that the codfish is not always what he seems.

There are angles even in the innocent sport of angling, and one is tempted to ignore the annual Vassar daisy chain next spring for fear of learning that the daisies are synthetic and the beautiful young ladies ringers, loaned through the courtesy of Mr. Ziegfeld, who think amo is a scouring powder.

Since I learned that the Army mule was only a livery stable mule and a civilian, I should have been prepared to believe that the codfish is not always entirely fish, but no doubt occurred until I read a protest from a fisherman stating that another fisherman was deprived of the cash pool on a public fishing boat in these waters through a sordid trick.

Lead Sinkers Swing the Verdict to Undeserving Codfish.

With four companions he sailed for a day's fishing in the open sea, and, thinking it was a fair, honest game between sportsmen, the five anglers contributed to the pool which custom awards to the person catching the largest fish.

"But," he states, "one of the party happened to go down to the after end of the lower deck and saw several members of the crew stuffing lead sinkers down a cod's throat. Afterward this fish was weighed with the rest and the man who entered it won the pool, beating out another angler with a much larger cod. What is our country coming to?"

As if this dishonest denial of posthumous honor to a deserving fish were not enough to depress readers of delicate ideals, there is an editorial note following the protest which indicates that there is little honor among fishermen. I had hoped that the editorial note would explain that it was merely a quaint custom of men who go down to the sea in codfish boats to store their spare sinkers in the interior of a trustworthy cod, always removing them, however, before the weighing.

But it develops that their motives undoubtedly were dishonest and that the practice of weighting the codfish by artificial means is almost as old as the custom of ballasting prize fighters' hands with pig iron. Moreover, it even lacks the innocent purpose which gave rise to this practice.

It should be understood that in the first place prize fighters did not load their hands through any desire to obtain an unfair advantage. It was done because the boys thought one hand was heavier than the other. So they would add some weight to the light hand. If this made the hand heavier than the other one, they would load the other one, and so forth, until the two hands balanced.

The editorial comment, written by a man of apparent authority on the matter of loading the codfish, states that the evil is a familiar one. He even goes so far as to reveal a hitherto unsuspected trick which is bound to place the sport of cod fishing under a cloud and call for a Judge Landis to drive the rascals out.

"House" Fish Is Another Custom of Dishonest Anglers.

"In some instances," he states, "a large fish is secreted in a hidden ice box and is brought out when the weighing takes place. This fish usually is large enough to outweigh the actual prize fish caught that day. To guard against the weighing of sinkers in the prize-winning fish, the captain should cut open the fish which wins the honors."

This is the first time I have ever heard of the employment of a house fish to deceive the public. I understand that in resorts of a certain type where there are slot machines the house sometimes keeps an employe mingling among the customers, or fish, to count plays on each machine and step up quickly to drop his quarter in the slot whenever the machine is due to yield $5, and the late Tex Rickard, when he was running a gambling house in Nome, used to pay alert young men $5 per night to step up to a table and win some money, which they would promptly turn back to the cashier, in order to stimulate business.

Is There No Honesty in Sport? Golf Even Suspected.

It seems that these young men knew how. But never have I heard of anything quite like the house fish which remains on ice and is dragged out to win the pool until it has earned its weight in platinum and is reverently returned to the sea, weighted not with grate-bars, but with the perfidious sinker.

Is there no honesty in sport any more?

I thought golf was a blameless game until Mr. Leo P. Flynn, in a talkative moment, told me of his negro caddy in a Florida tournament who had prehensile or tenacious toes and would grasp his ball out of a cuppy lie and tee it up for him without removing his hands from his pockets.

Paulino Signs to Meet Christner February 22

New York, Jan. 29 (United Press). Paulino Uzcudun, Basque heavyweight, accepted terms today to meet K. O. Christner, of Akron, Ohio, in a ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden February 22. Christner signed for the bout after his fine showing against Jack Sharkey last Friday night.

The winner may be matched with the survivor of the Johnny Risko-Max Schmeling heavyweight bout, scheduled in the Garden Friday night.

3,000 WATCH CENTRAL IN STUNNING TRIUMPH, 29 TO 17, OVER LEADERS

By WALTER HAIGHT.

A Central High School Basket Ball Team—the worst Central High Basket Ball Team in modern District high school history—yesterday performed a basket ball miracle winning its first game in seven starts and defeating Tech's Five, 29-17, before 3,000 frantic scholastic championship series followers in the new Tech High Gymnasium. The Central victory completed a day of upsets, Business High being the first to contribute by knocking down a favorite in Eastern by the convincing margin of 46-26.

As a result of its defeat by Central Tech's position as the leader of the series is by no means secure. It was Tech's second defeat in seven games and puts Western, with its four victories in six starts on the heels of the leaders. Western must win over Eastern and Business to tie for the title providing Tech disposes of Business, something that is extremely uncertain, especially after yesterday's jolt.

Coach Burt Coggins must have rounded up all the fighting spirit, pep, stamina and whatnot within miles of Central High yesterday and passed it out to his players. Likewise Coggins must have searched his squad for the hardiest looking specimens. From the opening gong Central played a rapid-fire game that had Tech worried.

Goldblatt, of Tech, Twists Ankle in Second Period.

An injury to Capt. Jake Goldblatt shortly after the start of the second period and with the score tied was a blow to Tech's chances. Goldblatt severely twisted his ankle and had to leave the game. There are those who will point to the injury to Goldblatt as an answer to the Central victory. However, Goldblatt failed to make a field goal in the first quarter.

It is doubtful if Goldblatt at his best could have stopped Central. The Tech star did return for seven minutes of the last quarter. He limped noticeably and his only score was a foul shot.

Coach Coggins did no experimenting yesterday. He started Capt. Fisher, Lampson, Romig, Cross and Parkins, and he did not break up that combination until Romig, after playing an effective game, was forced out of action on personal fouls.

Lewis and Singman Lead Business in Triumph.

The complete rout of the Tech forces came in the closing minutes. Central had sent three men cutting through the famous "zone defense" and with the end nearing Tech discarded that form of defense and was no match for their rivals in the man-to-man style. Central had the ball at least two-thirds of the 40 minutes, but kept it continually in motion, making no attempts at "freezing" despite its lead.

Capt. Jake Lewis and Lester Singman were playing their last games for Business. The former failed in studies, while the latter graduates before the next game. This pair appeared to have decided to celebrate at the expense of Eastern. Lewis kept a steady stream of shots going through the rim, making seven field goals and two foul goals for sixteen points, while Singman contributed five field goals and two foul goals for twelve points.

Coach Sanborn kept shifting his guards, but Eastern could never get in the running after the first ten minutes of play.

Tech had a 2-point lead on Central virtually before the echo of the opening whistle had died away. Edelblut got the tap and Goldblatt fired the ball to Talburt who twisted it in an approved "snowbird" fashion. Foul shots by Brown and Goldblatt gave Tech rooters visions of a one-sided game.

Romig, who was the chief cog in Coach Coggins' new attack against Tech's zone defense, was first to score for Central. He was in the usual block play position, but on a signal he would dive out to meet the ball, either turning quickly for a shot or passing to a teammate on sidecourt. Fisher's long shot matched a basket by Talburt just before the quarter ended with Tech ahead, 6 to 4.

Romig tied the score, pivoting to put the ball through and a moment later Goldblatt twisted his ankle and had to retire. The remainder of the period did not produce a point. Central had possession of the ball most of the time, passing outside Tech's defense but trying to break through to score. Romig again scored on his semiblock play just after the teams resumed play and De-Lisio stretched Central's lead to 10 to 6 with a looper from the center of the court. Parkins made a foul for Central.

Brown, Tech guard, was fouled, and was awarded two technical foul shots called on Capt. Fisher, of Central, for speaking out of turn to Umpire Hughes. Brown only sank one of the tries. Scoring for the remainder of the third period was even, with Central leading, 15 to 12, as the gun fired.

Central Five Steadily Draws Away From Series Leaders.

Italian Heavy Boxer En Route to New York

Secretary of Red Sox Kills Self at Ball Park

Price was found on a runway at the park and rushed to the City Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

He had been suffering from ill health for some time, and it is believed he had cut his throat in a fit of despondency.

First Punch Wins Bout For U. S. Boxer in Paris

Eddie Dowling Beaten In Fight at Annapolis

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 29.—Eddie Dowling, of Washington, lost an eight-round decision to Meyer Kaplan, of Baltimore, in the feature bout here tonight in the Veterans of Foreign Wars program in the State Armory. Dowling weighed 125 pounds and Kaplan, 132. Dowling did not want to engage in the fight before he entered the ring because of the weight conditions, but after much discussion and much persuasion on the part of his manager he decided to fight.

New York Investigates Herman-Terris Contest

New York, Jan. 29 (United Press).—The New York Athletic Commission today ordered an investigation of the Sid Terris-Babe Herman lightweight bout at St. Nicholas Arena last night. Terris dropped Herman for a count of nine in the fifth round. In the next round Herman knocked Terris out with one punch.

Pending the investigation, the purse of Terris is being held up. The reports of Referee Mike Hylas and the judges will be heard by the commission.

Terris entered the ring a 6 to 1 favorite in the betting and two years ago scored a knockout over Herman in a bout at Cleveland.

Legalized Horse Racing Bill Fails in Rhode Island

Providence, R. I., Jan. 29 A.P.).—Finance Commissioner Frederick Spreck today returned to the house of representatives with his disapproval the Lawton bill providing for legalized horse racing and the pari mutuel system of betting His disapproval was based partly on "inadequate financial provisions" and partly because it would "provide for granting police protection to a form of gambling which is now banned by our State law."

Newport County members of the general assembly are almost unanimously in favor of the bill, which has now gone to the house finance committee. State Chairman William C. Pelkey, of the Republican party, which is in the majority in the legislature, has, however, expressed the party's opposition to the measure.

Low, British Golf Star And Authority, Dies

London, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—John Laing Low, famous British golfer and for many years recognized as an authority on the game, died today at Woking, aged 60.

FEBRUARY 27 BIGGEST DAY OF STRIBLING'S CAREER

Georigan Gets Real Chance At Miami

Boston Sailor Muffed One Opportunity—in Dempsey Fight.

By JAY R. VESSELS
(Feature Service Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—There's one biggest day in the life of every man in every business or trade. Even boxers have them.

February 27 probably will be the biggest day for William Lawrence Stribling. On that day at Miami Beach he fights Jack Sharkey for what may amount to first claim on the heavyweight championship of the world.

Sharkey has already had his biggest day. And he muffed it. His day was July 21, 1927. But he permitted Jack Dempsey to trick him into ignominious defeat.

Neither Stribling nor Sharkey was classed better than second raters as long as Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey were in the game.

Stribling Concentrating on K. O's. And With Success.

Strib, who had been shuffling along with indifferent success, concentrated on a punch. He was successful, if 36 knockouts in his last 42 fights mean anything. Sharkey, financially independent because of his heavy earnings in 1927, made a less pretentious start, but he rapped over the few opponents selected for his warmup bouts and is th. choice of many a critic to make good in his second try for a shot at the title.

There isn't much difference in the men, as shown by scales and tape measure. Strib is taller than the 6-foot Gob by three-quarters of an inch and has a superior reach by 2½ inches, but Sharkey evens it up with his weight advantage of 7 pounds. Stribling is 24 and Sharkey 26 years of age.

Georgian Punched Away Reputation As Wrestler."

Both men profess to know something about the scientific end of boxing. Perhaps that is why both had so many unsatisfactory fights in the eyes of the fans a year or two back.

Strib's reputation as a wrestler was increasing with each engagement until he decided to literally punch his way into the picture. Sharkey's reputation was none too favorable because of the tolerant attitude he frequently took toward third and fourth-class opponents.

The victor probably will be matched with the winner of an early-summer bout between Tom Heeney and Paulino Uscudun, for a September fight with the heavyweight crown as the prize.

ESSIE slipped through on the inside and steadily worked her way forwardly, took command with a rush when straightened out in the stretch and outlasted STAR MAIDEN in the final drive. STAR MAIDEN, in nearest pursuit of DOROTHY E in the early stages was carried wide by latter entering the stretch and lost much ground; but for that she might have won. SUN BRIDE gained steadily on the outside of the field and finished going strong. BELLEAU raced in spots. SAUCE closed a big gap from a slow beginning. LIFE TIME was crowded leaving back stretch and almost went down. DOROTHY E stopped badly.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won driving. Place easily. Went to post at 3:02. Off at 3:03. Winner, W. E. Martin's ch. c. AGAPANTHUS displayed keen speed in the going, was taken under slight restraint until final quarter-mile, where he was clear, but had to be strongly ridden to maintain his advantage. WILLIAM P stole through next to inner rail down back stretch and forced a steady pace and made a game bid through the stretch under punishment. RAINSTORM, a forward contender throughout, was tiring rapidly in final sixteenth. MINERVUS finished stoutly. SESQUI appears a nonmudder. SUNSARD saved ground entering stretch and moved up fast, but then stopped badly through the stretch drive.

THIRD RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Start good and fast. Won handily. Place easily. Went to post at 3:24. Off at once. Winner, E. E. Major's b. f. WELL TURNED took command down the back stretch and, rated in front to the stretch turn, opened up a commanding lead, but was doing her best to withstand THUNDER GIRL. Latter dropped out of contention early in running and closed a big gap on the outside of her field to finish going strong. SWEET LACRUSE, prominent the entire distance, held on well in the final drive and outlasted MEADOW LARK. The last-named raced evenly and had no excuses CLARIE AMOUR could not improve her position.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start poor. Won driving. Place same. Went to post at 3:52. Off at 3:53. Winner, F. Bambara's b. g. TIN HAT	110	2	7	7d	8	8	8	8	Robbins	20	8	4

VOLANTE running to his best form in the going, disposed of SON AMI after the first quarter mile, drew out into a commanding lead thereafter and won with something to spare. SON AMI, hard ridden, displayed good speed but could not keep pace with the winner. BRIAR BROOM, under intermittent punishment the final half-mile, held the others safe. EVERLASTING closed a good gap. LUCKY DRIFT was not persevered with. GERMAINE CHAUVELOT dropped out of contention after going three furlongs.

FIFTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,200. The Empire State. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won driving. Place same. Went to post at 4:21. Off at 4:22. Winner, C. E. Hamilton's ch. g. (4), by Manager Waite—King's Daughter. Trained by J. Gass. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. No time given.

LEW BLACK	100	4	2	3d	4	4	4	4	Hebert	12	3	out

ROYAL SON, outpaced the first half-mile, moved up fast on the inside entering the stretch and drew clear the final furlong under strong pressure. ROSINANTE, in close attendance of the pace throughout, outlasted MAURICE in the final drive. The latter had good speed in the going and held on gamely when final test came, but hung as if short. LEW BLACK did not appear partial to the soft going.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won handily. Place easily. Went to post at 4:44. Off at 4:45. Winner, Three Rivers Stable's ch. f. (4), by Dominant—Solisa. Trained by R. Ryan. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:25 4-5, 0:51, 1:18, 1:45, 1:59.

SPEEDWELL	106	4	3	4	4	4	4	4	Turk	15	3	1

INFANTA held her opposition safe for speed and, keeping close to the inner rail, continued with determination the final three furlongs when challenged and held MASCARA safe at the end. The latter was unable to improve her position when called upon, though never far from the leaders. WAMBA always held SPEEDWELL safe.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LETTER SIX, $13.62, $6.48, $4.30; FENLIGHT, $4.62, $3.60; ROCK CANDY, $4.56.

LETTER SIX broke well, was allowed to rate along to far turn, where he closed fast on inside to take lead and won nicely in hand. FENLIGHT, well up in early part, came to the middle of the track, closed fast and was next best. ROCK CANDY, on outrun, closed three furlongs, where he closed with a rush. FRETWELL had plenty of speed but weakened fast at end. GRAF UND STIFT broke down.

SAINTS EASY FOR G.U. PREPS

Army of Embryo Hilltoppers Trounces St. Albans, 20 to 7.

OUTCLASSING the St. Alban basketers throughout, the Georgetown Prep Five won easily over the former yesterday afternoon in a 20-to-7 game at Garrett Park. Following a custom of Coach Sanborn, of Eastern, Georgetown Prep used an army of players in the game and they all performed well despite the fact that Dick Watkins, a regular, scored the majority of points for victory.

With Watkins hitting the rims seven times for baskets, his many mates held St. Albans in tow throughout and their close guarding enabled Watkins to gain for them a 12-to-2 advantage by half time

Carter Scores All But One of St. Alban's Points.

After the intermission, De Sibour and Peralta chimed in with baskets to increase the score, while the best St. Albans could do was to score 5 points. Crouch was their best point maker, with three baskets for 6 points, while Carter registered the only score for the Saints, a foul toss in the final quarter.

The game gave the many Georgetown Prep substitutes the chance that they have longed for all year, and, although none of them registered any markers, they played good games which will go a long way in helping Coach Brooks in knowing just what he is going to have for basket ball next season.

TECH AND EASTERN BEATEN IN SERIES

Cross, Parking and Fisher did the bulk of the scoring in increasing the margin to 24 to 12. Tech's first score of the period came after seven minutes of play and was a foul shot by Goldblatt. MacCartee and Brown made field goals from side court a few moments later but Central was carrying on its offensive when the game ended.

Business trailed Eastern for five minutes at the start of that game but once Lewis and Singman found the range the contest was turned into a Business rout. Business led 10-6 at the end of the first quarter, 24-8 at the half and 38-16 at the end of the third period.

It was late in the game before Cappelli made his first field goal. Lucas, diminutive Business guard, played a prominent part in the Business defense and passing game.

ST. JOHN'S AND DEVITT MEET IN PREP LEAGUE TODAY

Second Place In Circuit At Stake

Winner to Be in Position to Tie Gonzaga for Lead.

Entrance of Emerson Quintet Is Not Yet a Certainty.

THE St. John's and Devitt Prep fives will provide the action for this afternoon in the District Prep School Basket Ball League. The game is scheduled at the Boys Club gymnasium, Third and C streets northwest, starting at 3:15 o'clock.

Both of these teams have been beaten by Gonzaga, the third member of the newly formed circuit, and the winner of today's contest will be in a position to overhaul the Purple five in the second round of games.

St. John's will send a better combination into today's game than the one that bowed to Gonzaga in the opening contest of the league. Coach Zube Sullivan will probably use Hudson and Gallagher in the forwards with Slagle at Center and Lucas and Atchison in the guards. This group has been working out together for the past week and has shown good form in scrimmages.

Devitt Will Miss Services of Captain, Ineligible.

Although Devitt will miss the services of Rufus Vincent, captain and star center, the team appears a formidable foe for St. John's. Vincent is ineligible, being over the age limit agreed upon by the contending teams.

Whether or not Emerson Institute's Five will be admitted to the league could not be learned last night. It is understood that St. John's and Devitt have agreed to admit Emerson and to change the eligibility rules to allow that school to use all of its players. However, the consent of Gonzaga must be gained to complete Emerson's entrance.

R. Lloyd Breaks Wrist; Lost to Navy Court Team

Special to The Washington Post

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 29.—The services of Russell (Whitey) Lloyd have been lost to the Navy Basket Ball Team for the remainder of the season as the result of a fracture of the left wrist, it became known today. Lloyd sustained the injury in the Pennsylvania game at Philadelphia last Saturday. He played throughout the game, however. Since then he had suffered considerable pain, and today an examination revealed the fracture. Doctors say it will require several weeks for the break to mend.

Lloyd is an all-around athlete, being half back of the football team and is captain of the field and track team, participating in the sprints and hurdles. He plays guard on the court team. His place probably will be taken by Bob Bowstrom, 200-pound tackle of the football team. His loss is a particularly big blow, in view of Dennett, star forward, and Carmichael, another forward, being out by injuries. He will be in shape for the track, however

CRESCENT BASKETERS AHEAD

Crescent A C basketers won handily over the Northwest Cardinals, 35 to 22, last night in the Central High Gymnasium. Russell, with 10 points, and Streets, with 15, starred for the winners.

WASHINGTON GRAYS WIN.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fort Leonard Wood, Md., Jan. 29.—The Washington Grays had little trouble beating the Fort Leonard Wood Five here tonight, 52 to 31. The two teams battled nip and tuck in the first half, which ended with the Grays leading by but one point, 20 to 19, but they stepped out and simply toyed with the soldiers in the final period.

McDonald, with 18 points, led the winners, with Forney scoring 12 tallies and Buscher 10.

RIVALS MEET TONIGHT IN RING

City Club and J. C. C. Teams Clash After Challenge.

RIVALRY that has smoldered for two months will burst into flame tonight when the Jewish Community Center and City Club boxing teams clash at the Center Auditorium in a program of six bouts.

Holders of the city championship and unbeaten in three years of competition under the guidance of Coach Jim McNamara, the J. C. C. boxers face in the City Club Team their most serious challenger. Coach Joe Bateman has surrounded himself with a likely array of talent, although his ace, Joe Lesser, will be unable to box tonight on account of illness.

Mike Tardugno to Meet Tomagni in Feature.

Lesser originally was cheduled to box Mike Tardugno, J. C. C. featherweight, in the feature match of the program following challenges bandied about by the rival coaches last month. Joe Tomagni has been given the Tardugno assignment by Coach Bateman.

The J. C. C. Team will be bolstered tonight by Angus Tardugno, brother of Joe, a bantamweight, who has been rated better than his older brother. He will engage Hugo Stellabotta, of the City Club.

Only members of the Jewish Community Center and the City Club will be admitted to the bouts tonight, owing to the District code prohibiting admission fees for bouts. The program follows:

150-POUND CLASS—Eddie Wineberger (J. C. C.) vs. Ken Byrnes (City Club).

K. of C. Tossers Play Y. M. C. A. Five Tonight

The K. of C. Tossers entertain the Y. M. C. A. Independents tonight in the Tenth street gymnasium beginning at 8 o'clock. The newly installed Caseys won their first game after organization last Sunday when they defeated the Fort Myer Basketers, 51 to 12.

3 Senior Class Games In Boys Club League

The Terrors won over the St. Martins, 20 to 11, in a 100-pound class game of the Boys Club League last night. Amin and Garner, with 6 points each, starred for the Terrors.

Three important senior class tilts are scheduled for tomorrow and Saturday which will go a long ways in deciding the second half title. The Celtics and DeLuxe teams meet on both nights in games which will decide the championship. The Hartfords and Yorks meet in the third game of the schedule on Saturday.

A win tomorrow for the Celtics will give them the championship. A loss will give the DeLuxe chance to tie them for the lead with Saturday's game the answer to the championship. There is intense feeling over these contests, which promise plenty of good basketball.

STRICT RULES PROTECT TEAMS

Players Restricted to One Team in South Atlantic Games.

THE increasing popularity of the South Atlantic A. A. U. basket ball tournament, which last season found Washington represented by more teams than any other city in the United States, is due in a large measure to the elimination of unfair tactics so liable to crop out among teams not properly supervised. The Washington Post, in sponsoring the tournament for the third successive year, has noted a remarkable change in the conduct of the teams.

The tournament has served chiefly to prevent the "jumping" of players from team to team. Where formerly it was not uncommon for a number of the city's outstanding courtmen to perform nightly with a different club, these players are not so greatly desired by teams, which have as their goal the South Atlantic championships, and are not sacrificing team play for the sake of gaining the strength of star players on certain days.

Coach Goldfarb, of J. C. C., Tells of Funny Experiences.

The effect of this practice of "jumping" by star players has worked untold harm against teams which have adhered strictly to their rosters from the start of the season, although in many cases it is amusing. Coach Manny Goldfarb, of the Jewish Community Center, yesterday pointed out the lengths to which some ambitious managers go in order to win games.

"Our team was and still is unbeaten," said Goldfarb, "but we have had a hard time keeping our record clean. It was a joke the way some teams tried to beat us. We had four games scheduled one week with four supposedly different teams, and you know that it was virtually the same opponent that we played each night. At least four of the players of the teams were recruited to play against us in every game. The way they shifted from team to team was funny. Sometimes you don't know who you are playing until your opponent takes the floor, and then it is an even chance that most of the players have played against you with any one of three or four other clubs. They don't seem to win, though."

Players in Tourney May Compete Only With One Team.

Goldfarb's story is a striking example of the manner in which star players hop from team to team, but the South Atlantic tournament has succeeded by ironclad eligibility rules in eliminating any trick of this sort. A player can compete on no more than one team in the tournament and can compete in only one weight division.

Oftentimes two or more teams may claim the services of a certain player, but under the rules of the tournament the team that the player first chooses to represent in the South Atlantic games is entitled to the exclusive use of his services.

Managers and team representatives have beseiged the sports department of The Post for team entry and A. A. U. registration blanks, which are now available any afternoon or evening. The entries have continued to mount until a record-breaking list is virtually assured.

Willie Wolfe, Central Star, To Join Wilkes-Barre Club

Diminutive All-High Outfielder to Play in Pro Ranks.

WILLIE WOLFE.

WILLIE WOLFE, Central High School outfielder, who was a unanimous choice for an All-High position last season, is to make his debut in professional baseball in March, when he will join the Wilkes-Barre Club of the New York-Pennsylvania League.

Wolfe, who graduates from Central this week, will sign a contract with the Wilkes-Barre Club in a few days. He has been carrying on negotiations with Mike Koenig, manager of the club, who first was attracted to the diminutive Central athlete by the glowing reports of his ability received from Earl Clark, local ball player, who is now with the Braves, but who formerly played with Koenig in Richmond in the Virginia League.

Since his sophomore year at Central Wolfe has been a regular on the baseball team, despite his size and lack of poundage. Each year he has been selected on the All-High Team. He also performed with independent organizations, including the Jewish Community Center and the Corinthian Clubs, and was recognized as one of the outstanding sandlotters in the District.

Had Wolfe chosen to remain at Central until June, he would have been named captain of the varsity team, it is said at the Mount Pleasant institution. He is counted by many as the most polished ball player ever to graduate from Central, with his natural ability his greatest asset. Throughout the high school series and on the sandlots he proved himself a phenomenal outfielder, a powerful batter and a nimble and heady base runner. Base runners took no liberties with his throwing arm.

200 Wrestlers Enter N. Y. A. C. Tournament

New York, Jan. 29.—A wrestling tournament will be held Wednesday night in the new clubhouse of the New York Athletic Club. Two hundred entries have been filed and many more are expected. To handle the large number of contestants five mats will be in use, so that five preliminary contests may be held simultaneously.

Among the colleges and athletic clubs to be represented are Princeton, City College of the City of New York, Rutgers, Columbia, Lehigh, Pennsylvania, Brown, German American, Lenox A. C., Boys' Club and N. Y. A. C.

Contests will be held in eight different classes, from 112 pounds to heavyweight.

Virginia Not Yet Ready To Name New Coach

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Announcement was made here today that no successor to Earl Neale as head coach of the University of Virginia was selected last night at a joint meeting of the athletic council of the university and the student athletic organization.

Members were said to be unable to agree upon a suitable man from the 40 applicants. Neale recently resigned to become coach for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Virginia Bows, 29 to 20, To North Carolina Five

Chapel Hill, N. C., Jan. 29 (A.P.).—The University of North Carolina defeated the Virginia Cavaliers, 29 to 20, in the Tin Can here tonight in a rather slow game of basket ball. The game was featured by much passing, but there was little spectacular shooting to liven up the game. The Phantoms nosed ahead in the closing minutes to win.

The score lead through the first half changed several times, the Heels leading at the intermission, 13 to 11. As the second half opened Capt. Bob Millen, of Virginia, got an easy shot, to tie the score, and in the next 10 minutes the lead changed nine times.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

The Parent Counselor.

The Flag Wept.

The winds of winter covered the pole with ice and the ropes were stuck. And thereby hangs a tale.

"Evelyn," said the teacher, "I want you to go out and climb the pole and take down the flag."

Now, isn't that a pretty picture?

But here's a better one. The teacher was obliged to climb the pole herself while an army of photographers had a good time recording her feat in photographs. And the pictures say she's not the classic contours of Gilda Gray.

Through public reproach this child received mental punishment of the severest order. To put it mildly, the teacher was discourteous. To state it stronger, she was dumb.

A good teacher could have persuaded the child to try by making the lowering of the flag an honor to be applauded by the other pupils. Then how different would the girl's attitude have been. A teacher with judgment would have hesitated before she sent a small child on such a job. It looks to me as though it was a man's job anyway.

We teachers and parents can not preach or teach courtesy, fairness and ordinary decency while we practice its opposite without sowing the seeds of dishonesty.

An incident like this coarsens the whole atmosphere of school and home. It costs teachers and mothers the confidence and respect of all of those who look on as well as the particular victim who gets the bad break.

I can hear the flag say: "Better that I wave forever from a masthead of ice than that the feelings of one of my little ones, for whom I am a symbol of protection, be hurt."

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.

The Awakening.

In the Christmas holidays I met a very respectable college boy who was visiting in this town. Before he went back he phoned me to say good-by. Was this wrong? Immediately on his return to college he got the flu, and I wrote him a letter of sympathy. Now he asks for my picture. Should I send it and ask for his? Or should I not answer at all? It is my first letter from a boy.

FIFTEEN.

Answer—So far everything is fine. Let him have your picture.

Personality is not a mysterious something with which the fairies endowed you as you lay in your cradle at birth. Personality, at least as other people see it in you, is the manner in which you present and express yourself in your face-to-face relations with other people. To be able to approach people easily, impress them favorably, and talk with them pleasantly is a resource of the highest importance to any person who would live a happy, useful life in our social world. Yet such ability comes only with intention and practice.

Now, why not mark yourself? Benjamin Franklin did a wonderful job in this way. He was the best self-analyzer I have ever met in the biographies of great people.

Can one be trusted to mark himself? If he was a conceited prig would he mark himself as humble? If he was as unsocial and explosive as T. N. T. would he claim that he was even-tempered and tactful?

Why don't you try this idea of marking yourself? Our service bureau has a little scheme for the development of personality through a study of yourself. Write for it.

"Ten Minutes More, Mother."

When I say to my 12-year-old girl, "Come in now and get ready for dinner," she teases, "to stay just ten minutes more." There is always a fuss. What's the solution?

TROUBLED MOTHER.

Answer—When it is really time for her to prepare herself call her and insist that she come. Reason with her. Show that teamwork is necessary and that it is only fair to all the family for all members to be prompt. Habit is a large factor in this scene.

Friend in Need.

I have recently married, and we have a baby. My wife insists that I push the baby carriage part of the time. Isn't this an imposition? HUSBAND.

Answer—Yes, it is. You should push it all the time. A woman with a baby works at least twelve hours a day, not counting the night shift.

MY ANTI-REVOLUTIONARY ACTIVITIES HAVE MADE ME A MARKED MAN — REBELS IN THE FOUR CORNERS OF THE EARTH WOULD REJOICE WERE I DISPOSED OF!

MENACE SURROUNDS ME CONSTANTLY — INTERNATIONAL THIEVES TRY TO STEAL MY ART TREASURES — FANATICS TRY TO ASSASSINATE ME — IT IS THE PENALTY I PAY FOR MY WEALTH!
OGEEGOSH! ARE WE SAFE NOW?

GASOLINE ALLEY — What Is Vs. What Might Have Been

BUT, DOC, I COULD JUST AS WELL SOLD AT 28½. THERE'S 11½ POINTS GONE! I MIGHT JUST AS WELL HAVE HAD THAT 1150 AS NOT.

WELL I BOUGHT AT 28½ AND SOLD AT 24. THAT WAS REAL MONEY I LOST — NOT MONEY CHALKED UP SOMEWHERE ON SOMEBODY'S BOOKS BUT MONEY I'VE EARNED, FINGERED AND HAD A PERSONAL ACQUAINTANCE WITH.
YES THAT WAS TOUGH, DOC. I'M SORRY

I SUPPOSE DOC IS RIGHT BUT JUST THE SAME HE HADN'T COUNTED HIS ANY OFTENER — EVEN IF MINE WAS ONLY ON PAPER. AND A LOSS IS A LOSS, WHETHER THEY TAKE IT OUT OF YOUR POCKET OR OUT OF YOUR MIND.

BOBBY THATCHER — To Be Taken in Charge — By George Storm

BUT WHAT OF THE BANKNOTES THAT WERE FOUND AMONG BOBBY'S EFFECTS DURING HIS ABSENCE?
WELL SIR, YOU COULD A KNOCKED ME OVER WITH A FEATHER WHEN YOU FOUND THAT MONEY IN THE LAD'S ROOM — BUT, OF COURSE ALL OF MY MONEY WAS IN TENS —
I CAN CLEAR THAT UP TOO, BROTHER FITTS —
YOUNG THATCHER BOUGHT A TOOTH BRUSH AT THE DRUG STORE AND CHANGED A TEN DOLLAR BILL LAST NIGHT — THERE'S THE FULL AMOUNT!!
THAT SETTLES IT — I'LL TAKE HIM IN CHARGE WHEN THE EVENING TRAIN PULLS IN!

PRICES ARE FIRMER IN DULL BOND MART

High-Grade Rail Issues Advance; Losses Elsewhere Are Recovered.

FEDERAL GROUP IS SOFT

New York, Jan. 29 (A.P.).—Prices were firmer in today's dull session of the bond market. High grade rails advanced on investment buying, while the secondary rails declined under profit taking. More than $50,000,000 in new bond financing, including $32,000,000 for Railway Express Agency, Inc., successor to American Railway Express, was absorbed in the investment market. Sales totaled $10,311,000.

Fonda, Johnstown & Gloversville 4½s climbed to a new high at 50, but broke nearly 4 points on profit taking. Declines also were recorded in Rock Island 4½s A, Des Moines & Fort Dodge and Minneapolis & St. Louis issues, the latter's refunding 4s closing 3¾ net lower at 29¼ after selling up to 34½. Seaboard Air Line convertible 6s, Baltimore & Ohio first general 4s and Pennsylvania gold 4½s showed improvement.

Public Service of New Jersey 4½s resumed the leadership of the utilities with a jump of 5¼ points. Northern Ohio Traction & Light 6s ran up nearly 2 points to a new high at 103¼. North American Edison 5½s closed fractionally lower after touching a new peak. International Telephone & Telegraph convertible 4½s were fractionally higher.

International Cement 5s ran up 3½ points to a new high at 116, in expectation of record business this year for the industry, but declined near the close. Anaconda Copper 6s advanced fractionally, while the 7s declined 3 points on light trading. Sugars were soft, with Camaguay declining 2 points.

Italian industrials featured the mixed trading in the foreign list, Montecatini 7s with warrants, climbing 1½ points, and Fiat 7s with warrants, 2¼.

U. S. Government obligations were soft.

LEGAL NOTICES

WILLIAM W. BRIDE and WALTER L. FOWLER, Attorneys.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, holding a District Court in re condemnation of land for drainage alley in parcels 226-11 and 226-12, in the District of Columbia. District Court No. 1961. Notice and order of publication. Notice is hereby given that the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, pursuant to the provisions of Section 1608 to Section 1610, inclusive, of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia, have filed a petition in this court praying for the condemnation of the land necessary for the extension and widening of a public drainage alley in parcels 226-11 and 226-12, in the District of Columbia, as shown on a plat or map filed with the said petition as part thereof, and praying also that this court empanel a jury in accordance with the law provided for in such cases to assess the damages each owner of land to be taken may sustain by reason of the extension and widening of the said public drainage alley, and the condemnation of the land necessary for the purposes thereof, and to assess as benefits resulting therefrom the entire amount of said damages, including the expenses of the proceedings, upon each lot or part of lot or parcel of land which will be benefited by said extension and widening in the proportion that the said jury may find said lots, parts of lots or parcels of land will be benefited as provided for in and by the aforesaid Code of Law. It is, by the court, this 16th day of January, 1929, ordered that all persons having any interest in these proceedings, be, and they are hereby, warned and commanded to appear in this court, on or before the 11TH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1929, at 10 o'clock a. m., and continue in attendance until the court shall have made its final order ratifying and confirming the award of damages and the assessment of benefits of the jury to be empaneled and sworn herein; and it is further ordered, that a copy of this notice and order be published twice a week for two successive weeks in the Washington Evening Star, The Washington Post and the Washington Times, newspapers published in the said District, commencing at least ten days before the said 11th day of February, 1929. It is further ordered, that a copy of this notice and order be served by the United States Marshal, or his deputies, upon each of the owners of the fee of the land to be condemned herein as may be found by the said marshal or his deputies, within the District of Columbia, before the said 11th day of February, 1929. By the Court. JENNINGS BAILEY, Justice. A true copy. Test: (Seal.) FRANK E. CUNNINGHAM, Clerk. By MAUD A. ROGERS, Assistant Clerk. 23.24-30.31

ATTENTION FOCUSED ON LEFT-HAND TURN BY MODEL STATUTE

CONFUSION IMMINENT WITH TOURIST INFLUX

Motorists Hold Experimental Regulation Is Nuisance and Bar to Safety.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

With the pooled intelligence of the country's foremost traffic minds marshaled for a Nation-wide drive on behalf of uniform motor vehicle regulation, it is believed that the time has come for local traffic authorities to recede from their stubborn defense of the National Capital's ill-advised and unnatural left turn regulation.

This is the almost universal opinion in Washington motordom — among motor car dealers, car owners and motor association leaders, and generally among those espousing the cause of traffic law uniformity. It is the sweeping drive in the interest of traffic uniformity and the model municipal ordinance drafted by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety that serves now to focus attention again on the local rule which has been widely assailed.

Despite the fact that country-wide traffic uniformity is the demand of the hour and despite the further fact that District traffic officials sat in the Hoover conference which has expressly ruled against the type of left turn in use here, the rule is continued and was applied to many more intersections seven months ago. At the time of the drafting of the model municipal ordinance, there was no questioning the authoritative quality of the decision which declared in favor of the turn discarded here. The decision was made unanimously.

Conference Was Representative.

The conference which rendered it was made up of every element composing traffic, as well as those officially charged with its supervision. Groups represented included city and State traffic officials, motor car manufacturers, dealers and owners, street railway, casualty insurance, taxicab and railroad and bus interests.

The feeling on the part of those who are calling for a change of the present left-turn system is that if uniformity is to be Nation-wide, each city will have to forego a few of its pet regulations which are at variance with the Hoover code. That no city has fewer regulations to give up than Washington is pointed out as further argument that there is a compelling reason for the National Capital adopting the uniform method of making the left turn from the center of the street.

With the present left turn continuing to create chaos at busy intersections and the probability that it will create more as the touring movement gains momentum, the demand for a return to the old regulation becomes more articulate and widespread.

It is based chiefly upon two respects in which the regulation is held to be flagrantly opposed to the principle of uniformity.

Complications Are Numerous.

First, it is pointed out, the present rule calls for a different driving practice at different intersections, depending upon whether the intersection is controlled by a signal light or a policeman. At the former, left-turning traffic is shunted to the right. At all others, it draws to the left, where it is held properly to belong if traffic is to move smoothly, speedily and safely.

What hope is there for anything but chaos and confusion when alternate intersections may call for the application of radically different turning practice?

That is the question being increasingly asked as Washington motorists go on demonstrating that mastery of the regulation is a forlorn hope, complicated by a host of difficulties that prevent even the conscientious, intelligent driver from doing the right thing. It is a question that the average motorist in Washington is convinced has been answered emphatically and definitely in the negative. Many months of unqualified failure, this group believes, indicates the wisdom of eliminating the regulation.

Yet, the traffic office, in the face of the vast amount of evidence with regard tothe nonworkability of the rule and the further fact of its summary rejection by the Hoover conference experts, continues to think otherwise.

Tourists Complicate Matter.

The second respect in which the law fails, the universally recognized need for traffic uniformity is, as previously pointed out, the confusion it creates on the part of tourist visitors to the National Capital. At the present season, it is recognized, the number of such visitors is relatively small, but throughout the entire year there are some motoring guests here whose efforts to make left turns confuse the entire traffic situation.

Washington today stands on the eve of its greatest touring season. In a few months spring will bring its deluge of visitors, whose likelihood of understanding the regulation is remote, the regulation not only is confusing in its difference from the left-turn rule they have at home, but also in that it calls for something diametrically different from one intersection to another.

Among those who have observed the chaos produced by the regulation it is a source of never-ending wonder that Washington, with its wide streets, should have imposed upon it a rule that was adopted, as a last experiment, by a few municipalities whose thoroughfares were too narrow to permit left-turning traffic to halt in the center of the intersection.

Confusion Inevitably Results.

Another point made by those who would see the present regulation displaced in favor of the old rule in the National Capital is that the whole theory of modern traffic control looks to the segregation of vehicles. They can not understand how this end can be intelligently served by a gesture which shunts both right and left turning vehicles into one lane, where they retard and confuse each other.

The arguments which supplement the case of those opposed to the regulation are regarded as strong and soundly based.

It is maintained, however, that they are not needed. The only point that should reasonably be required against the present regulation is its failure to conform to the great national movement toward uniformity. As generally viewed by those who oppose it on this ground, no defense of the rule, however stubborn, is justified. To them it fails to meet the basic demand of uniformity.

Post-Pickford Contest Closes With Great Deluge of Votes

Louis Johrden, Post Staff Photographer.

A deluge of votes marked the closing hour of The Washington Post-Mary Pickford Contest. The picture shows the contestants and judges as the last votes were polled yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock. The winner will be announced within the next few days.

Winner of Visit to Hollywood May Not Be Known for Several Days; Judges Check Totals of All Girls Entered.

The Washington Post-Mary Pickford contest closed last night at 6 o'clock, with all contestants making a final spurt down the home stretch in an effort to come under the wire first.

Due to the deluge of votes polled Monday and yesterday, the contest judges were unable to complete the tally last night, and several days will elapse before the identity of the winner is made public. In addition to counting the votes polled at the eleventh hour, the judges are faced with a lot of detail work incident to checking the entire vote, which means recapitulating the votes cast for each contestant.

No totals have been announced since Sunday, and figures made public then showed that Miss Hilda Phillips, Janet Coon, Irma R. Hugin and Dorothy Brandt well ahead of the other contestants.

The contest has been under way for more than two weeks and has aroused considerable interest not only among the young women participating, but among the public as well.

Under the rules of the contest, the winner will be given a free trip and visit to Hollywood, the capital of the moving-picture world. The winner will ride to the California city on a special train over the Santa Fe Railroad and will spend a week at Pickfair, the palatial home of Mary Pickford and her husband, Douglas Fairbanks. She also will be a guest of Miss Pickford at the movie studios, where she will witness the filming of the star's new photoplay, "Coquette."

COOKING LECTURES BY EXPERT SLATED FOR POST READERS

Mrs. F. B. Northcross Will Give Practical Four-Day Course Next Week.

WOMEN IN OTHER CITIES ENTHUSIASTIC OVER AID

Washington housewives will have an opportunity Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week to learn, without cost, the latest methods of cooking and serving wholesome and appetizing meals.

Mrs. Frances B. Northcross, home economics lecturer, has been invited to Washington by The Washington Post to give a series of practical lectures and conduct a free cooking school at the Ambassador Theater on those dates. The lectures will be offered from 2 o'clock to 4 o'clock each afternoon during the four days.

Yesterday The Washington Post received a telegram from Mrs. Northcross accepting the paper's invitation to conduct the free cooking school here. In her telegram, the lecturer said:

"Appreciate privilege of conducting cooking school. Wives and mothers engaged in world's biggest job running American homes. Their problems will be lightened by school and lecture demonstrations of latest cookery methods. Local merchants will be invited to participate in school.

"(Signed) MRS. F. B. NORTHCROSS."

Experienced as Lecturer.

Mrs. Northcross has had long experience as a housekeeper, teacher and lecturer before women's clubs and organizations over the entire country. In giving her many valuable ideas to the women who attend her cooking schools, she employs a direct but charming manner.

An entirely new light on cooking and housekeeping problems will be given by Mrs. Northcross. With her wide and intimate experience with housekeeping affairs and her careful study of the latest developments, she is eminently prepared to offer constructive ideas to housewives who are anxious to increase their knowledge of home affairs.

Women in cities where Mrs. Northcross has lectured express the greatest enthusiasm for her ideas and her methods. They say that she presents her subject understandingly and interestingly.

One feature of the lecturer's work which has appealed to many women is that she does not appear in the role of critic, but rather as a friend who has made actual contact with new conditions and is capable of presenting them to women who want to learn. She brings the results of years of practical experience as a housekeeper and a long term of intensive study of rapidly changing methods.

Methods of Cooking Change.

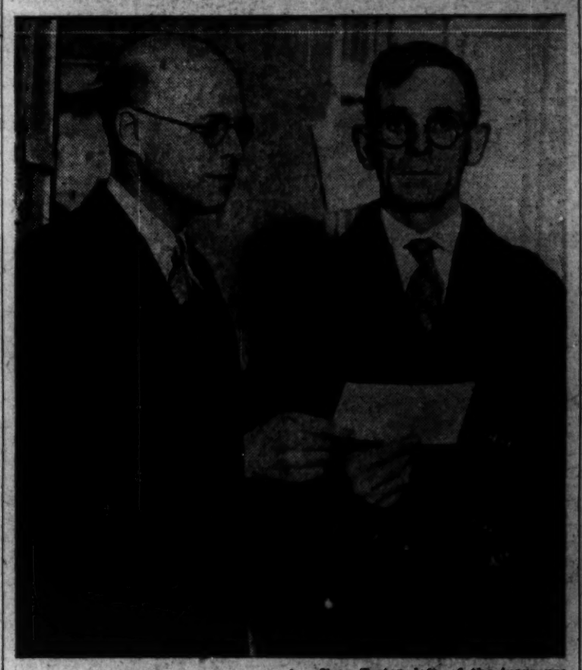
Methods of housekeeping and cooking do change constantly, Mrs. Northcross points out. Every day new methods and new ideas come into being, and even the most alert housewife finds it impossible to keep up with them unless she has the help of someone who has made a study of her problems and their solution.

In her lectures, Mrs. Northcross not only demonstrates the newest and most practical methods of preparing delicious foods and of keeping house efficiently, but goes thoroughly into family financing. She demonstrates the latest methods of keeping the family budget and shows how money may be saved and more attractive meals served at the same time.

The cooking school is an annual affair donated by The Washington Post to housewives who want to learn the newest developments in cooking and housekeeping.

Although the hour for opening is set at 2 o'clock, the doors will be unlocked at 1 o'clock and every one is invited to come and bring a notebook and pencil.

Injured Man Receives Post Insurance Check



Vern Tester, left, of the insurance department of The Washington Post, handing over a check for the first benefit paid under The Post's insurance plan to J. Y. Long. Long got his policy only a week before he was injured by an automobile.

First Policyholder to Get Benefit, Praises Prompt Payment Accorded.

Two weeks after his Washington Post insurance policy had been issued to him, J. Y. Long, 54 years old, of 731 Seventh street southwest, received a benefit, the first to be granted. Yesterday, just one week after Long had been struck down by an automobile in front of the Union Station, he was given a check for $7, covering one week's disability under his policy.

To Long, who is a carpenter for the Washington Terminal Co., one of the most notable features of the occurance is that he received a benefit payment before a collector had called at his home for his subscription to The Post.

He received his policy, containing a pedestrian clause, providing for weekly payments of $7 for seven weeks in case of injury while walking on the city streets, January 12. On January 22 he was struck by an automobile while going to his work at the Union Station.

"Your man said there wouldn't be any waiting period with this policy," Long told The Post last night, "and there wasn't a bit of delay. I certainly was lucky to be protected."

Long was injured on the head and also suffered severe bruises on the calf of his left leg. He was given emergency treatment at Casualty Hospital and attempted to return work. He found he was unable to go on, however, and went to his home, where he remained in bed all of last week.

FRIED TO BE GUEST OF TRADE BOARD AT BANQUET SATURDAY

MANNING GETS COMMAND OF STEAMSHIP FOR TRIP

Captain to Call on President and Secretary of Navy While in Capital.

Under orders from the United States Shipping Board, Capt. Georgs Fried, hero of the Florida and Antinoe rescues, will come to Washington Friday or Saturday on the first leg of a tour of several of the country's principal cities.

Announcement of this was made yesterday coincident with the making public of letters of commendation sent by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur to Capt. Fried and Chief Officer Harry Manning, who manned the lifeboat that effected the rescue of the Florida's crew last week. Manning will command the America during Capt. Fried's tour, and will be on the bridge today when the ship is scheduled to clear from New York.

To Call on President.

During his Washington visit Capt. Fried will call on President Coolidge and Secretary Wilbur and will be a guest of the Washington Board of Trade at its "cruise-around-the-world dinner" Saturday night at the Willard Hotel.

Fried Due Here Friday.

It was learned yesterday that Capt. Fried had accepted the invitation of the local trade body to be a guest of honor at its annual frolic. The invitation was sent through the United States Shipping Board.

Capt. Fried will be met at the Union Station Friday by a reception committee headed by W. W. Everett, president of the board. All seats for the "cruise around the world" were sold some time before Capt. Fried was invited to be a guest. Robert J. Cottrell, secretary of the organization, said yesterday. Eight hundred persons, including many senators and members of Congress, will attend.

Wilbur Offers Praise.

In his letter of commendation to Capt. Fried, Secretary Wilbur praised his 20 years of service as an officer and enlisted man of the Navy and Naval Reserve "as in keeping with the highest traditions of the Navy and the American merchant marine."

Referring to the details of the rescue, the Secretary said: "The evidence is abundant that it was through your skillful use of the radio and radio direction finder that you were able to make correct deductions and so navigate your vessel as to be the only one to make contact. The seamanlike manner in which you laid your vessel to, lowered a lifeboat and effected the rescue at night, in the teeth of a winter gale, are worthy of especial note. An equally successful rescue on your part in January, 1926, of the crew of the British steamer Antinoe while you were master of the steamship President Roosevelt gives eloquent evidence that these rescues are due to your skill as a master mariner, and not to mere good fortune."

SINGER IS ACCUSED IN SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Mme. Coquelet, Awaiting Hearing in Check Case, Is Named Corespondent.

FILED BY OFFICER'S WIFE

Mme. Henrietta Coquelet, 36-year-old concert singer, who was arrested last week on a warrant charging violation of the bad check law, was back in the spotlight yesterday, this time as the corespondent in a divorce case.

Mme. Coquelet was named in a suit for absolute divorce filed by Mrs. Conception DeRibas MacMillan, of 2923 Cathedral avenue northwest, against her husband, Col. Marion B. MacMillan, an official in the United States Veterans Bureau. MacMillan lives at 2033 Florida avenue northwest, and it was at that address that Mme. Coquelet was arrested last week, according to the police.

Accusations of misconduct were made against the singer and MacMillan in the suit, which was filed by Attorneys Wilton J. Lambert, Rudolph Yeatman and George D. Horning, jr.

Married in Cuba, She Says.

Mrs. MacMillan says in her petition that she was married at Camaquey, Cuba, on August 2, 1899, and one child was born of the union.

She and her husband left Cuba in 1907 and went to New York City, where they lived until 1924, when they moved to the District and established residence. The alleged relationship between MacMillan and Mme. Coquelet occurred last August, according to the petition.

Mrs. MacMillan declared that her husband had an income of more than $800 a month and asked the court to provide her adequate alimony and to preserve her rights to property now owned or acquired in future by her husband.

Obtained Her Release.

Mme. Cocquelet is now at liberty on bond in connection with the bad check charge. The case against her was postponed in Police Court the day after her arrest and is scheduled to be called in the next few days.

MacMillan was instrumental in obtaining her release from the House of Detention, where she was held after her arrest. At that time MacMillan said she was his cousin.

Mme. Coequelet's arrest on the check charge followed a report by her to the police that her purse containing $3,000 in $100 bills had been cut from her arm while she was shopping in a department store.

She was arrested by Detective Sergts. Ira E. Keck and Bernard W. Thompson, who said that prior to her report that the purse had been cut from her arm she had cashed checks aggregating more than $1,000 in department stores which had been returned marked 'insufficient funds.'

Man Freed From Prison Celebrates; Is Jailed

Patrolman Quentin Heyne, of the First Precinct, testified he saw West walking with unsteady step and exchanging pleasantries with passersby along Seventh street northwest, caring not whether he had been formally introduced to those he addressed.

When arrested for intoxication, the policeman declared, West told him that he was celebrating his release from a Virginia prison, where he had served five years for theft of some cantaloupes, beans and a few bottles of ginger ale. Judge John P. McMahon sentenced him to pay a $10 fine or serve 10 days in jail and, lacking the fine, West went to jail.

GUN PLAY ON ROOFS ENDS IN 2 ARRESTS

Police Believe Burglaries in Northwest Section Will Be Cleared.

ONE SUSPECT WOUNDED

With the capture of two colored men last night, following gun play on the housetop of 3540 Park place northwest and adjacent residences, police believe they will clear up numerous recent robberies that have occurred in the northwest section of the city.

The men caught gave their names and addresses as Mason Jon Hickerson, 17 years old, of 1051 Forty-eighth street northeast, and Clarence Dixon, 32 years old, of 1407 Fifth street northwest. The later was shot by the police when he endeavored to escape over the housetops, and is under guard at Freedman's Hospital with a bullet wound in the calf of his leg.

The two colored men were captured following a telephone report made to Tenth Precinct police by Leon Standish, of 422 Newton street northwest, that burglars were in the home of Mrs. Lillian B. Pollner, at the Park place address which abuts Standish's home. Mrs. Pollner is said to be visiting in Indiana, and no one is staying at the house at the present time. Police reserves were dispatched to the scene.

Hickerson surrendered at the officers' command, they said, but Dixon ran in an attempt to escape. Patrolmen Lee and Huff fired at the fleeing man as he made his way over adjacent roofs, and one of the officers brought him down with a bullet in his leg.

New School Sites Studied by Board

Location of the colored junior high school and colored health school authorized in the House District appropriations bill recently passed, on a large tract of land "far out" in the Northeast section of the city, is under consideration by members of the Board of Education.

Two separate sites, tentatively selected by the buildings and grounds committee of the Board of Education, were looked upon with disfavor by several citizens' organizations, and it was for this reason that District officials sought other sites suitable for the needs of the two schools.

The exact location of the site under consideration was not made known by District officials. It is known, however, that the tract under consideration covers approximately 10 acres and is located in that section of the Northeast north of the Bladensburg road.

D. A. R. Candidate Hits Out at Foes

Mrs. Talmadge, of Georgia, Here for Parley, Charges "Whispering Campaign."

Advanced rumblings of what promised to be an old-fashioned D. A. R. election battle at the triennial election next April were heard yesterday, when the first verbal broadside of the campaign was fired by Mrs. Julius Y. Talmadge, of Athens, Ga., candidate for president general.

Mrs. Talmadge charged that a "whispering campaign" had been started against her candidacy by certain unnamed persons, regarding her "loyalty to and unswerving support of adequate national defense."

After stating her record on national defense, Mrs. Talmadge declared that she is in Washington to attend the Woman's Patriotic Conference on National Defense. Mrs. Talmadge is a delegate to the conference from the Georgia Americann Legion auxiliary.

In her statement Mrs. Talmadge asserts: "I have always stood for an America for Americans. I am unequivocally consecrated to the support of adequate national defense, not only from enemies without, but from enemies within our country."

Wife Charges Prenuptial Fraud in Divorce Action

Charging prenuptial fraud, Mrs. Dorothy Rittenour, of 1728 Twenty-first street northwest, yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court to annul her marriage to Russell Rittenour, of 408 A street northeast.

Through her counsel, Raymond Neudecker and William C. Ashford, Mrs. Rittenour charged that she was married to the defendant at Clarendon, Va., on June 9, 1927, and lived with him until last April 20. She discovered that her husband had not been absolutely divorced from his first wife, Katherine Nolan, whom he married in 1918, the suit charged.

Bicycle of Messenger Injures Young Woman

Miss Pauline Aschenbach, 22 years old of 1007 L street northwest, suffered injury to her leg and back yesterday evening when she was struck and knocked down at Eleventh street ano New York avenue northwest by the bicycle of a messenger boy.

Miss Aschenbach walked to her home following the accident, and was treated by her family physician, Dr. Frederick H. Morhart, of 1704 Sixteenth street northwest. Her injuries are not believed to be serious. The bicycle that struck the young woman was ridden by Joseph F. Bowes, 14 years old, of 1816 Potomac avenue southeast.

Auto Hits Veteran, 77, On Soldiers' Home Road

August Keis, 77 years old, an inmate of the United States Soldiers' Home, was struck by an automobile and injured last night about 8 o'clock while walking near the tennis courts in the home grounds.

The aged veteran was taken to the Soldiers' Home Hospital and treated for lacerations to the scalp and bruises to the body and legs. His condition is not believed to be serious. The automobile that struck Keis was operated by Francis E. Draley, 33 years old, of 3314 Thirty-seventh street, Mount Rainier, Md., police said.

2 Baltimore Runaways Plead to Be Sent Home

Two Baltimore schoolboys, who played hookey from their classes Monday to head for the balmier clime of the South, walked into the First Precinct Station late yesterday afternoon and gave themselves up as runaways with the request that they be sent home.

They are Donald A. Delcher, 16 years old, of 1803 Ramsey street, and Carl R. Gratz, 14, of 401 South Smallwood street, Baltimore. They were sent to the House of Detention, and their fathers, Don W. Delcher and Carl Gratz, were notified. They came to Washington last night to get their sons.

Permit to Close Streets Favored

The Senate District committee yesterday favorably reported a bill to permit the Commissioners to close certain streets. At present the Commissioners, in order to do this, must obtain an authorization from Congress.

Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty and Maj. L. E. Atkins explained to the committee the plans for establishing a magnificent municipal center just south of Judiciary Square, and the senators decided to make a tour of the area before acting.

Chairman Capper promised Fred Coldren, of the National Park and Planning Commission, that he would do everything possible to bring about passage of the bill to speed up the condemnation of land for Federal park purposes. The measure is being held up by Senator Caraway (Democrat), of Arkansas.

Flagstaff Is Replaced Before Lee Mansion

A new flag staff 100 feet in height in front of Arlington, or Lee Mansion, in Arlington National Cemetery, as insisted on recently by Union veterans of the Civil War, has been erected there by the War Department.

The staff was ordered replaced in that location by Secretary of War Davis following a hearing on its relocation before Maj. Gen. B. F. Cheatham, quartermaster general, in December. The Commission of Fine Arts had suggested another location.

ANACOSTIA CITIZENS FAVOR CHEST DRIVE

CIRCLE UNIT PLANS FETE

The Anacostia Citizens Association, meeting last night in the Masonic Temple, Fourteenth and U streets southeast, adopted resolutions indorsing the Cramton bill, providing for the George Washington Memorial Parkway, the Simmons bill, appropriating $10,000,000 for the second five-year building program, and the Community Chest.

The chest method of finance and disbursements was indorsed after a talk by Dr. George C. Havenner, president.

A resolution of regret over the resignation of Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, as Assistant Engineer Commissioner in charge of District highways was also passed.

The Southeastern Washington Citizens Association, meeting at Tyler School, 719 Eleventh street southeast, instructed its executive committee to seek a hearing before the District committee on the proposed incinerator location. The association favors a site at Second and Water streets southeast, instead of the proposed location at Fifteenth and Water streets southeast.

The association also voted approval of the proposed addition of $3,000,000 for school buildings and grounds to the 1931 District budget estimates. The merger plans of the Capital Traction Co. and the Washington Railway & Electric Co. were discussed.

Plans for a street carnival and parade to be held next spring will be formulated by the Iowa-Thomas Circle Citizens Association, it was decided last night at a meeting at the Northminster Church, Eleventh street and Rhode Island avenue northwest.

Action on a proposal to rename the association the "Mayflower Park Association" was deferred. A. Goldstein, of the Community Chest committee, spoke. Mrs. Ella M. Thompson presided.

Morris Cafritz Renamed Head of Jewish Center

Other officers elected are E. I. Kaufman, Morris Gewins and Morris Garfinckle, vice presidents; Albert Sheffer-man, recording secretary; M. Offenburg, corresponding secretary; Charles A. Goldsmith, treasurer, and Harry Viner, assistant treasurer. Frederic William Wile was elected to the board, all other members being returned.

Bankrupt, Says Merchant.

A petition to be adjudged a voluntary bankrupt was filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Isaac Goldstein, merchant, of 617 H street northeast. Through his counsel, Louis B. Arnold, he declared his debts amounted to $3,883.24 and his assets, exceeding exemptions, to be $3,057.49.

FORMER POLICEMAN IS TAKEN IN DRY RAID

90 QUARTS CONFISCATED

Former Policeman Guy E. Knott, 34 years old, 326 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, was arrested last night by police of the Sixth Precinct at that address on charges of illegal possession and sale of liquor. Ninety quarts of alleged corn whisky were also seized in the place, according to Detective M. J. Dowd and Policeman J. F. Boswell, who conducted the raid.

The raid was made following a reputed sale to a police informer Monday they said, after a warrant was procured. As it was, the officers almost overlooked the cache, finding the hiding place when they had about given up the search and were preparing to leave the premises.

As they were mounting the cellar stairs, however, after having completely searched the house, Boswell noticed a pile of dirt banked against one of the cellar walls, and decided to return and dig under it. His efforts were rewarded by the finding of a hole in the wall in which the liquor, bottled in half-gallon, pint and half-pint jars, was hidden.

Knott and the contraband liquor were taken to the Sixth Precinct Station, where the man was still being held last night in default of $500 bond. According to the police, Knott was dismissed from the police force some time ago because of his bootlegging activities.

Beetle Quarantine Spread To Surrounding Country

The quarantine against the Japanese beetle was extended by Secretary Jurdine yesterday to take in the entire District of Columbia and parts of Maryland and Virginia, including Cecil County, Md., and Alexandria and Arlington County, Va.

Provisions of the quarantine require inspection and certification of farm products during the summer from June 15 to October 15, inclusive, with the exception of a limited number of vegetables. Agriculture Department officials said the quarantine would not militate against transportation of produce not affected.

Wife Awarded Divorce; Husband's Suit Beaten

The domestic difficulties of Fred G. Sonne and his wife, Mrs. Vida Sonne, of 614 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, were settled yesterday by Justice Peyton Gordon in equity division of the District Supreme Court. The court dismissed a bill of the husband asking annulment of his marriage and granted a petition of Mrs. Sonne for an absolute divorce.

The parties were married at Rockville, Md., on November 29, 1911, and have an adopted child. In her suit, filed by Raymond Neudecker and William C. Ashford, attorneys, Mrs. Sonne charged her husband with acts of infidelity and named a corespondent, and the husband filed the cross-bill of annulment, declaring his wife had been married to Robert Saxton in Alexandria, Va., in 1902 and was not legally freed of the first marriage when she became his wife. The husband's charge was held void.

Capital Bicycle Club, Aged 50, to Celebrate

The fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Capital Bicycle Club, an organization which enjoyed wide popularity back in the eighties, will be observed tomorrow evening at a dinner in the Cosmos Club attended by "old-time" members.

Dr Leland O. Howard, chairman of the entertainment committee, expects an attendance of 50. The club was organized half a century ago yesterday by Herbert and Fred D. Owen as a group meeting at the east portico of the Capitol, and from nine members grew to an organization of 300, numbering many prominent residents. Clarence G. Allen is secretary of the group planning the anniversary dinner and J. Boteler is treasurer.

Superstition Costs Man Most of His Furniture

A heavy toll for being superstitious was paid by Joe Zimberg, formerly of 407 O street southwest, testimony in a procedure at Police Court yesterday revealed.

Zimberg maintained residence with John W. McCarthy at the O street address. McCarthy committed suicide on Saturday, and Zimberg, police said, was superstitious of living in a house where a man had died and went to Baltimore. While he was away three youths were arrested in the house of death and Zimber was notified to return to the city.

Going to the O street address with police of the Fourth Precinct, Zimberg found most of his furniture completely wrecked. The fixtures of the house were also damaged.

As a result of the alleged vandalism, Shorley Rodway and Walter Smith, acquaintances of Zimberg, were arraigned before Judge Gus A. Schuldt on charges of destroying private property and joy riding. They are alleged to have taken the automobile of Coleman Davis and driven to the O street house and destroyed the furniture during the absence of Zimberg. They were held for grand jury action in $1,000 bail, and a third youth, Harold Lewis, who was implicated in the joy-riding charge, was held in $500 bail. They were arrested by Detectives Robert J. Barrett, B. H. Knapp and H. L. Dull, of the Fourth Precinct.
